

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

A JOURNAL for FLORISTS. SEEDSMEN and NURSERYMEN

EASTER NUMBER

The Most Greenhouse For The Least Money

This good looking Practical Purpose House is 18 ft. wide, 50 long and divided in two compartments.

Here is what we call our Practical Purpose House. It will grow exactly as good stock as can be grown in any house, regardless of price.

It is just as free from repairs and will last absolutely as long as the most expensive house ever built.

It has our regular standard work room. The entire layout is neat and exceedingly good looking.

It differs from our regular iron frame private house construction, in having a straight eave instead of a curved one, and an Angle Iron Eave Plate instead of a gutter.

The posts extend 2½ feet in the ground and are imbedded firmly in concrete instead of being bolted to a cast iron sill. This is exactly the way it's done in our largest houses built for the florists, where solidity and strength are of greatest importance.

As the posts and not the foundation wall carry the weight, the concrete wall itself extends only six inches instead of 2½ feet below the ground.

In short, this Practical Purpose House is the most house that's practical for the least money.

You or your employer are most welcome to full particulars, including the prices.

Don't Be Caught Short

Without our patented cardboard Wreath Forms

Experience has shown us that most of our trade has paid too much for their Wreath Forms because they held back their orders until shipment had to be made by express. This increased the cost of the merchandise from 25 to 35 per cent. Besides, our customers lost business because they did not have the goods on hand—their customers would not wait when delivery could not be made at once. The profit on such specialties comes through having the goods on hand when wanted. It does not pay to approach the Christmas holidays with little goods on hand.

Therefore we suggest to you that you place your orders now for fall requirements in Christmas Wreath Forms.

Send for our line of samples of cardboard Wreath Forms as illustrated in this advertisement. Do it now. Prices and samples will be sent gratis on request. We make the following sizes:

Wreath Forms—4, 6, 8, 10, 12 and 16-inch.

Star Forms—4, 6, 7, 9 and 12-inch.

Heart Forms—5, 6 and 7-inch.

Cross Forms—14x21-inch and 18x30-inch.

Write us today about your requirements.

GLADIOLUS

A. B. C. "QUALITY" BULBS (True to Name)

Gladioli are now too well known for their value as cut flowers to need any commendation on our part. Everyone of the varieties offered below is a real "Gem" and this is a grand opportunity to secure many valuable Florists' sorts at a nominal cost. Order early as supply of some kinds is limited—size 1 1/4-inch up invariably produces good results when grown outdoors.

GLADIOLUS WHITE GIANT

The best and largest pure white Gladiolus at Covent Garden Market, London, England. This variety has been used as a substitute for Liliun Giganteum "Easter Lilly." Very recommendable.

Price: 1 1/4-inch and up, per 100, $6.75; per 1000, $65.00.

A LETTER FROM A MAN YOU ALL KNOW

S. BRYSON AYRES CO.,
Kansas City, Mo.

Detroit, Mich.

Gentlemen:—We had some seeds of Ce'losia Chrysantheflora from you last season. The crop was extremely fine and the colors were a revelation. We would like to get three or four more packets of the seeds.

Very truly yours,

John Breitmeyer's Sons,

J. A. PETERSON & SONS

Westwood, Cincinnati, Ohio

at the National Flower Show, Indianapolis

The exhibit comprised products mainly of Randall manufacture, which accounts for a superior showing. Comparing on a basis of quality, price and service, a constantly increasing number of florists throughout the country award Randall products because of high quality, moderate price and strong sales promoting qualities.

Ball's White Aster

Introduced by us last season and although a most unfavorable year for asters, has given very general satisfaction. It is a well rounded flower, pure white, exceptionally free flowering and distinctively double. $\frac{1}{8}$ oz., 75c; $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., \$1.35; 1 oz., \$5.00. We take this opportunity of thanking our customers for their letters of appreciation of this aster.

The Ball Calendula

We take this opportunity of announcing the introduction of the Ball Calendula for July, 1922.

This new orange Calendula represents a very great improvement in size, length of stem and fullness of flowers. It has exhibited these superior characteristics uniformly for the past 4 years not only with us but with other growers, whose testimonials, with further announcements, will appear later. Although an average crop of seed is expected, we suggest you place your order with us at once. Trade pkt. of $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., \$3.00; oz., \$5.00.

Ball's Summer Peas

For the past 15 years we have grown summer Peas extensively and we annually make most searching tests of new varieties. We have stocks of the following kinds ready for prompt shipment and know this list cannot be improved upon for standard varieties. Listed in the order of their value for cut flower purposes; priced to include postage and insurance.

THE NEW JAPANESE KURUME AZALEAS

Unquestionably these new Azaleas are the most important flowering plants that have come forward since the introduction of the Lorraine Begonias and its types and the French Hydrangeas, and we believe they will, in a short time, due to the ease with which they are handled, their many varied colors, and the satisfaction they will give to the amateur, become even more popular than these standard favorites.

The illustration here shown is a 5-inch pot plant, the photograph of which was taken just eighteen months after the cutting was inserted in the propagating bench. It is one of the plants that was shown in our exhibit at the International Flower Show at New York, which attracted so much attention. This plant demonstrates the speed with which good salable plants with an abundance of flowers can be developed.

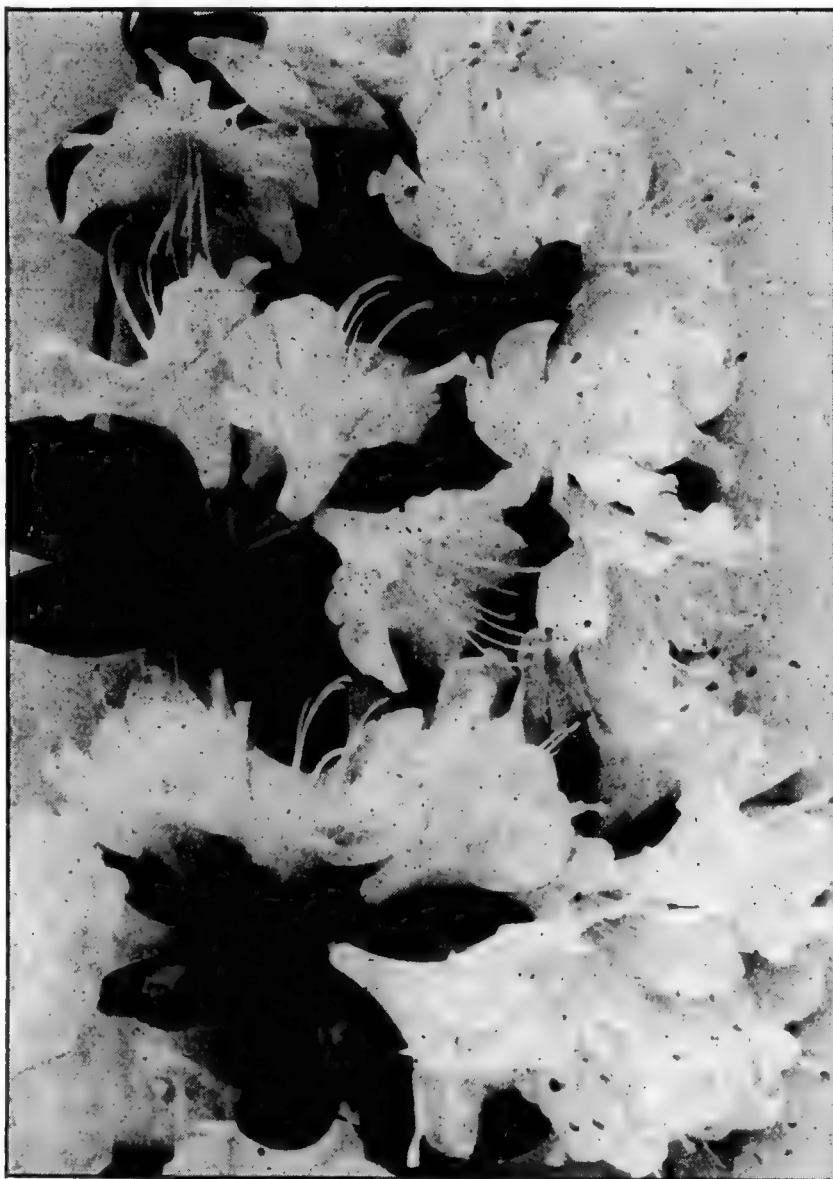

It will be noticed that with the exception of the variety Hinamayo, introduced some 6 or 8 years since, we are offering these new introductions under descriptive English names and not under the Japanese names under which they were imported.

This may be open to criticism but in explanation of same we will state that the Japanese stock supplied to us was so badly mixed, 3 and 4 different colors having been supplied under one label so that identification was impossible. Furthermore, we believe the trade, as well as the public in general, will better appreciate the descriptive names under which we are now offering them.

YOUR ASSORTMENT OF EARLY SPRING AND EARLY FLOWERING PLANTS HAS BEEN GREATLY CURTAILED THROUGH THE EFFECTS OF QUARANTINE 37. YOUR CUSTOMERS COMPLAIN OF THIS LACK OF VARIETY AND SAMENESS. THE KURUME AZALEAS WILL HELP TO RELIEVE SOME OF THIS MONOTONY.

We are now booking orders for delivery Fall of 1922 and Spring of 1923 of good 2 1/4-in. pots of the following varieties:

An Appreciation

The National Flower Show went over big in every way. We appreciate the large attendance of the trade and the many visitors here at our establishment. We appreciate, too, the many nice things that were said about the condition of our stock, which was reflected in the premiums awarded us by the judges. To those who were here the past week, we say, the latchstring is always outside and we hope you will come again and again.

3-inch pots, $35 per 100.

4-inch pots, $50 per 100.

Every retail store and grower should feature Crotons this Easter and spring. We know our stock will please you and your customer.

CROTON LEAVES AND SPRAYS

Cut Croton Leaves and Sprays have been supplied by us in the past few years to some of the leading florists, who have featured them in mantel, table and funeral work. Cut Crotons will last in a cool place from three to four weeks. We can supply them every day in the year.

Very highly colored sprays at 50c each; cut leaves, $5 per 100.

When you have orders for funeral or table work "out of the ordinary," order Craig's Cut Crotons.

DRACAENAS

There is no other variety of foliage plant so attractive as the highly colored Dracaena. The small and medium sizes can be used to great advantage in making up the popular Easter baskets, while the large specimens have always been in great demand for decorative purposes. We are now growing more Dracaenas, in greater variety, than any firm in the country.

DRACAENA GODSEFFIANA

PATERSON, N. J. — BATH, PA.

Business is to be had—lots of it—this Easter, by those who will go after it. We've the flowers and the stores; go bring the buyers in.

FROM a host of indications, this Easter is going to set the telegraph instruments buzzing, engender pep in the retail shops, tax the output of the greenhouses and hoist "sold out" signs in many localities before the day is over. This conclusion is not aimlessly optimistic, but is based on reports regarding supply and demand all the way from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Boston, New York, Pittsburgh, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, San Francisco, Seattle—they are all ready for a big business, and although a minority fear the possibilities of a glut, a fair estimation of the horsepower of "Say It with Flowers" gives the stimulating encouragement that the supply will not inundate the demand.

Probabilities.

It is not possible, of course, to foretell to completeness just what conditions will be when the big occasion arrives. Old Sol and J. Pluvius are on the fence and either may leap into the situation, but it will be a peculiar freak if the buying public this Easter does not hearken to the voice of the flowers more than ever before. Everybody celebrates Easter and flowers have always been the appropriate thing at that time. It has been claimed that Christmas goes far ahead of Easter in dollars. But the patrons of many florists have not developed the idea of buying so "unsubstantial" a gift as flowers at Christmas time; yet these same patrons can be relied upon to hear the call of the Easter lilies and plants.

It is a surprising fact that the almost universal prevalence of "tight money" has had but slight effect on the florists' business. This last year on all the great holidays a large business was done and, chronologically, there is no reason why bad business conditions generally should spoil this Easter for the trade.

As intimated before, there are those who anticipate, as is their wont, a vast oversupply, a languid demand and a consequent drop in prices that will swamp the profits. But when it is all over, they will say, "I told you so," in any case. Hopefully, the great preponderance of the trade comes nicely within the class of coöperators—those who follow the faith that they will get out just what they put in and who have had their shoulders to the advertising wheel since last Easter and who are confident that their compensation is ahead of them. The Indianapolis show was a manifestation of their faith.

At Easter, as at all great flower days, a glut is feared beyond all other evils, and, especially as this is to be a late Easter, the time-worn premonition is shadowing many. Now, a glut, according to Webster, is an "overload" or a "surfeit." In this respect, the trade can be compared to the farmer who had a wagon with weak wheels.

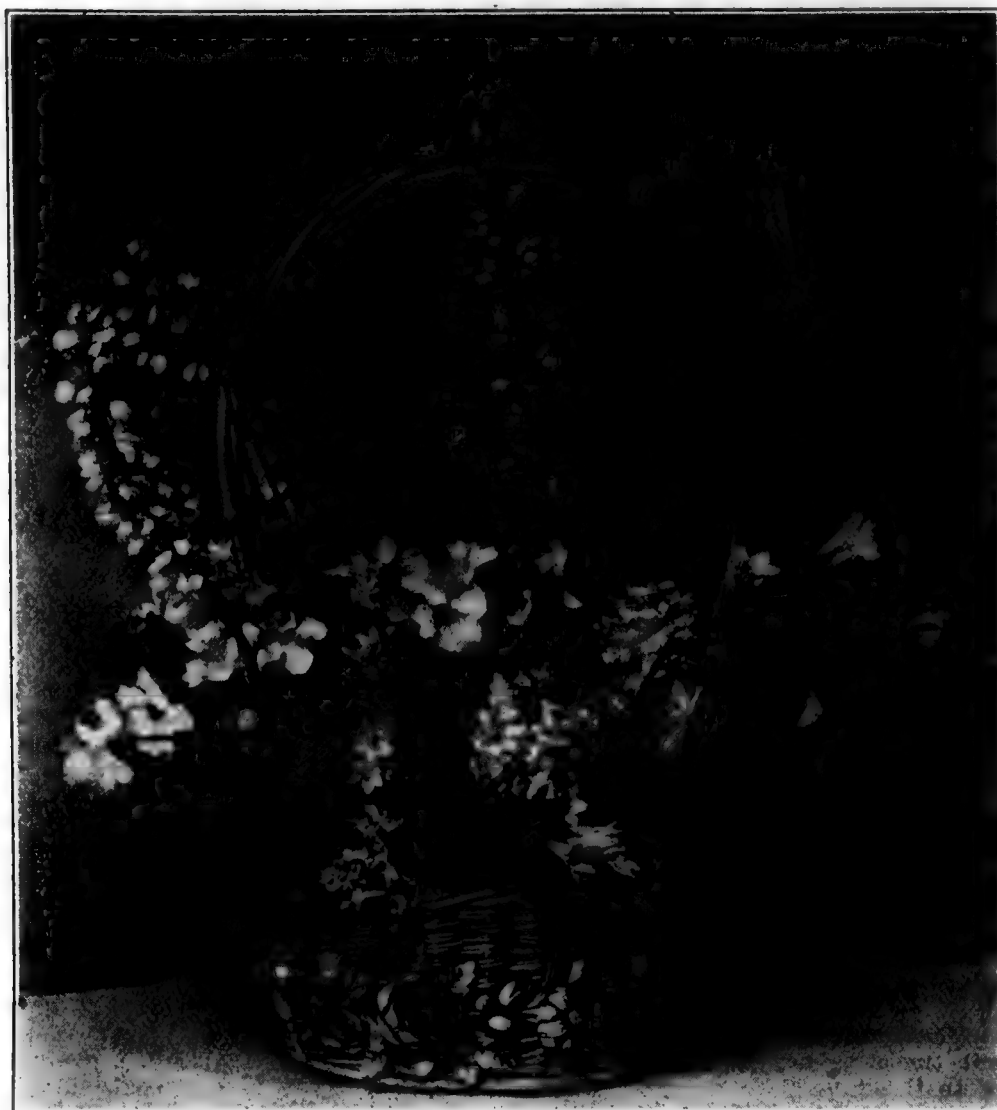

Strengthen Wheels.

To avoid breaking the faulty wheels, he had either to carry a small load or he had to strengthen those wheels, so that they would hold a large load. The first choice, he wisely decided, was foolhardy, because small loads would necessitate many trips and a consequent extravagance in time. The second alternative, requiring some effort on his part, he concluded, would gain the most good in the long run.

The wheels of the floricultural wagon are the public and, logically, the public must be reinforced, strengthened, educated to the point of bearing the entire output of all the growers in this country—as much as can be at present produced. Then the trade will meet the problem of “filling the wagon,” a task with a consolation. This can be done, and our Henry Penns, George Stumpps, Max Schlings and local coöperative advertising campaigns are already started on the work of making the advertising wheels of the trade strong and durable. And there are many florists in the trade today who are absolutely confident that they will do a big business this Easter, because they have invested wisely in advertising.

Hydrangeas Are More Plentiful and Popular for Easter.

Prepare Attractive Baskets of Spring Flowers for Easter Trade.

An interesting sidelight occurs frequently to the thinking florist: There is not a great possibility of teaching the public anything until the florists themselves know the subject of the lesson. In this sense, there is a form of advertising that works within the trade, an individual campaign that has as its objective the showing of fellow tradesmen how to accomplish things. A fine example of this full-hearted advertising is that of G. E. M. Stumpp, of New York.

Peter Pearson, of Chicago, described our situation pointedly recently when a half-hundred Chicago growers met to sanction the application of one per cent of their gross sales to a fund for coöperative advertising. He said, “It is high time for us growers to begin working from the neck up, as well as from the neck down.” His point was that it is foolhardy to work ceaselessly producing stock, when there is no adequate demand and means of disposal as a reward.

Getting the business is always the task of the retailer. Of course, in the first place, it is essential that he have his store filled with stock that has an attraction—those things in plants and flowers that will be wanted on the particular occasion. If he is a wise florist, he has kept records of what was most in demand on other flower days. He has made notations in his memorandum book and at Easter he will have just about what is wanted for the trade. This decided, he goes about figuring out ways to attract more and new customers. He has generally two roads to travel—printers' ink or attractive window displays, or both. If he is using both, he is so much the more assured of ready sales when the big occasion arrives. It is to be remembered that a window display does not consist in merely putting plants and flowers helter-skelter into the window. Those flowers and plants are put into the window to speak persuasively to passers-by, and improper arrangement will make the choir of silent voices a conflicting and abhorrent shriek of jarring notes. The colors must not conflict, or the audience will not be able to understand the message. For instance, pink roses and red carnations are a bad combination. Nothing is worse than a jumbled mass of potted plants and cut flowers. The effect of the window is a question of profits or loss of profits and a matter well worth considering. Adherence to the plain laws of common sense and harmony will avoid many mistakes.

After a demand has been created and the public is crossing the threshold of the shop, the florist has still to face difficulties. Everyone who has been in the business any length of time knows that the excessive rush will take place on the days just preceding Easter. He is aware that it will be necessary for him to arrange in such a way that buyers will be taken care of expeditiously. The trouble with the most voracious appetite is the hurry-scurry haste and waste caused by new employees, taken on the occasion, forgetting to count the packages wrapped, not wrapping them properly, trampling plants, paper, flowers and what-not under foot, forgetting to obtain the proper addresses of those who desire packages delivered, etc., etc. All these mistakes combine to take away dollars that might well be saved by a use of foresight and proper precautions.

The Spirit of the Day.

When the orders have been taken to be delivered, they must be delivered promptly, because those who order for Easter depend on prompt delivery, and if the florist cares to maintain his customers and reputation, it would be well for him to develop a system whereby the stock will be delivered without the work's getting cramped as a result. A proper division of routes, correct arrangement of the shipping room and a clerk on hand who knows how to “chalk out” the deliveries will greatly facilitate the work and insure service.

The spirit of Easter bears a striking homology to the spirit of the florists' business of today. For a number of years the trade has been coöperating, or a portion of the trade has been working to get the rest of the trade to coöperate, to resurrect the business in flowers. And the huge stone of disinterest and of inactivity that has covered the opening for substantial profits is being gradually rolled away by the diligent efforts of organizations and individuals. Such efforts have given all a chance, bringing to the front the remote florist and putting him on a competing basis with others. It is a question of all working for the one and one working for all. It is a combined effort to a comprehensive success, and the success of this Easter and others to come will be dependent on the coöperative spirit. The day is past when the florist could sit back cozily and just sell flowers; today he must get out and get the buyers.

DATE OF EASTER.

It will be 1924 when Easter again falls as late as it does this year. For five years Easter will be no earlier than April 1 nor later than April 20. Next year April Fool's day and Easter will be simultaneous. The dates for the next five years are:

1923	April
1924	April 20
1925	April 12
1926	April 4
1927	April 17

Huntington, W. Va.—April 8, H. H. Coffman, of McClure-Coffman, expects to open a new establishment under the name of the Arcade Floral Co., the location being in the Arcade building.

Rochester, Minn.—Emil Rieple, of the Rochester Greenhouse Co., has purchased the Quality Flower Shop, in the Kahler hotel building. He intends to continue the operation of the two stores separately.

READY FOR THE HOLIDAY

AMONG THIS EASTER'S PLANTS.

Sufficient, with Some Lacking.

To the overwhelming majority of florists Easter is the great holiday of the year. To plant growers the day means more than any other two holidays combined. While the cut flower men usually have an excellent business, it becomes more and more a plant holiday yearly and the end is not yet. Purchasers perceive that plant purchases please more and last longer than cut flowers, although there will always be a demand for both.

It will be a late Easter and the average grower would much prefer to have the date a fortnight earlier. Sometime, maybe, there will be a fixed date for Easter and the first Sunday in April would probably suit most florists. This would give a longer breathing and growing spell between Easter and Memorial day.

While probabilities would seem to favor a balmy Easter, it would be unwise to bank too much on this. We have an erratic climate and the unexpected often happens; many of us have sad memories of past Easter snow storms, and even as late as mid-April we are liable to get cold and disagreeable weather. That means we must be prepared for such eventualities.

Something Unusual.

Each year we are asked what there is new among pot plants. Not much this Easter, but there are a few things a little out of the common which will be mentioned in these notes. It is always well to have something a little out of the ordinary, as an increasing number of purchasers want novelties. Some of them are not adapted to long shipments, but are splendid for local trade. How many beautiful subjects have been thrown down because "they will not ship"! Plants and cut flowers receive rough treatment at the hands of wholesalers and commission salesmen, and if a plant will not stand a hard shaking at the hands of the average retailer, it is at once placed in the down-and-out class. Too often are cut flowers treated like cordwood, and plants to be popular must stand much banging about.

Lilies Good and Bad.

The leading plant, as usual, will be the lily. There are conflicting reports as to the condition of the plants. I have seen some nice, healthy plants, but many thousands, on the other hand, are so dwarf as to be almost unsalable, and disease has been unusually rife. Premature digging and the desire to get the bulbs in the hands of growers here and in Europe at as early a date as possible is, no doubt, the main cause of so much disease, but, of course, an oversupply of water in the early stages of growth will greatly aggravate it. Some shade and frequent spraying has helped to lengthen the stems on dwarf lilies of the giganteum type. One successful grower says he hoses his plants several times a day and applies little water to the pots, finding that he has healthier stock with this treatment.

Formosums seem to be unusually good this season, with little disease, and spikes carry a surprising number of buds. Giganteums, on the other hand, are a distinct disappointment with not a few skillful growers. I have been privileged to grow some bulbs produced in Florida, and quite fine they have been. There is no sign of disease and comparatively tiny bulbs have carried three to four flowers each and attain about twice the height of giganteums, with flowers of equal size. There would seem to be a future for bulb growers in the warmer states who can furnish dormant lily bulbs to the growers. The plan of growing from seeds and digging up plants in the field while in bud, and potting them is one which will not appeal to many growers.

Late lilies should be given all possible heat and be sprayed frequently, being removed to cooler quarters as soon as the first flowers open. Plants with several flowers open should be held in a cool cellar, or in a shed where the temperature is low. Keep the pollen masses picked off daily and be sure the plants do not suffer from lack of water, although a drying out will not harm them so seriously as many other plants.

There are some Lilium candidum in fine condition this season. Some nice 7-inch pots carrying an average of four spikes each are ideal for chancel decoration. For this purpose the Madonna lily is far superior to the larger Easter-flowering lilies and its fragrant flowers are far more immaculate. Keep your candidums fairly cool all the time; they will not stand hard forcing.

Roses Triumphant.

Roses will this year be more abundant and in finer condition than ever before. The rambler and baby rambler classes are most in evidence. Harking back twenty-five years, we find that Crimson Rambler was the sensation among pot roses, it being at that time comparatively new. What a tremendous advance there has been in roses in that period! There are comparatively few Crimson Ramblers today. The new Paul's Scarlet Climber will be much in evidence this year and is the best of its color. Hiawatha remains good as a single scarlet. Probably far more Tausendschoen will be sold than any other variety. This fine rose, in both the climbing and dwarf forms, remains as popular as ever; the white sports are also fine. Tausendschoen is an early bloomer and for this reason is favored, as well as for its lovely pink flowers and shiny foliage. Then there is Dorothy Perkins, pink and white, a later bloomer than Tausendschoen and more susceptible to mildew if exposed to drafts; Excelsa, Wedding Bells, Lady Gay, Roserie and other ramblers. Among the polyanthas, Orleans, Clothilde Soupert, Mme. Cecile Brunner, Baby White, Baby Tausendschoen and others are available.

The old Magna Charta still retains its lead among hybrid perpetuals. It is certainly a great bloomer and easy doer. Smaller lots of that immaculate white, Frau Karl Druschki, are seen and also some Mrs. John Laing. Then there are American Beauties and not a few hybrid teas in variety, such as the old Killarney and the newer Columbia, and among reds there is no finer pot plant than Richmond. A few of the apricot, buff, orange and yellow hybrid teas are seen and these charming colors will always attract buyers.

French Hydrangeas.

What a glorious variety of colorings in the French hydrangeas we now have! Since azaleas, thanks to the F. H. B. and quarantine 37, are now scarce, it seems fortunate that we have this beautiful and early-blooming plant to take their places. Trophee has attracted much notice this season. It is the deepest pink yet sent out, appearing almost scarlet when placed alongside of some of the older pinks. Chautard is a splendid clear pink and General de Vibraye is a beautiful rosy pink. Then we have Radiant, Lilie Mouillere, Baby Bimbenet, Mme. A. Nonin and other splendid sorts, giving us pure white, delicate pink, clear pink, deep rose, light blue and dark blue colors, and how freely these hydrangeas flower! Even the smallest shoot will throw a truss of flowers. Give them an abundance of water, and remember that they do not stand as strong sunshine as the old otaksa without burning.

Pelargoniums.

The advent of that popular pelargonium, Easter Greeting, gave florists a good plant for the Easter trade, one which can be had in fine shape by the middle of April. Then, Swabian Maid, Lucy Becker, Wurtembergia and other bloomers give us a varied range of colors, all useful for Easter. These plants must not be forced. They should have cool treatment at all times. Personally, I still prefer the later-blooming varieties of these show pelargoniums, which in America are at their best in May and June, but commercially they are not so valuable as the earlier-blooming Easter Greeting type. On private estates, however, the older type remains far the most popular.

Bulbous Plants.

Bulbous material will be hard to hold back in many sections for the coming Easter and a good deal of the stock offered will, undoubtedly, be leggy as a consequence of trying to retard them.

There will be few of the single early tulips, but Murillo will be much in evidence. Grown cold, it will give flowers of a lovely pink color. Darwins are rapidly displacing early tulips as Easter plants; they grow better, are more stately and have far better lasting qualities. A good many will be offered this season. Narcissi will not be abundant; some Victoria, Glory of Leiden and double Von Sion are about all I have seen. Hyacinths hold up well in popularity and a good many old-time favorites, like L'Innocence, Queen of the Blues, King of the Blues, Gertrude, Grand Maître and City of Haarlem are noted. Some are in pans containing several bulbs, while many are grown singly in 5-inch and 6-inch pots.

Hard-Wooded Subjects.

Hard-wooded plants are going to be less numerous than when we had an earlier Easter. There will still be some nice Erica melanthera and arborea, as well as smaller plants of the long-tubed varieties.

Bougainvilleas are not usually classed as hard-wooded, but may fairly come in this category and some nice plants of Sanderiana are seen.

Genistas are, as usual, fairly abundant. While pretty, they are not so satisfactory to handle as many other plants, as the flowers drop in a few days in either store or home.

There are finer acacias than there were a year ago, with that easily grown variety, armata, or paradoxa, in the lead. A few Boronia elatior and megastigma complete the offerings in this line of plants. Some of these plants are only handled by one or two specialists. They are not cheap subjects and will never be so, and for that reason they appeal to certain buyers.

Cinerarias and Calceolarias.

Late cinerarias make useful Easter plants and a good many are seen this year. The dwarf stellata and cactus strains are particularly good. Calceolarias of the large-flowered herbaceous type are already in good condition. Like cinerarias, they should have cool treatment, and the direct sun must not strike them. While rather brittle plants, they carry large, gaudy, varicolored and curious flowers, which appeal to many, and I predict a good sale for them this year.

Then, the greenhouse annuals are of easy culture, provided they are given cool conditions and aphid is kept in subjection. In the home, no matter how clean they may be when sold, they soon become alive with aphid. Do not handle plants of either cinerarias or calceolarias unless you are sure they are free of aphid. Nothing disgusts a purchaser more than to find swarms of green aphid on plants within forty-eight hours after she has received them.

Some Everyday Plants.

Among everyday plants which always meet with a good sale at Easter are heliotropes in standard and dwarf forms, especially the former. Zonal geraniums, nicely flowered pink and scarlet varieties, will sell in moderate quantities, not, of course, as they will near Memorial day.

Spiræas, or astilbes, cannot be imported now and are far less in evidence at Easter than formerly. Queen Alexandra, Peach Blossom, Gladstone and the newer hybrids are specially fine, and home-grown clumps are giving good satisfaction. You can scarcely overwater spiræas, but go lightly on tobacco smoke, as they scorch easily.

The Lily Is the Plant of Easter.

Rose Plants Are in Constantly Greater Vogue, Especially When Attractively Adorned.

A nice Easter plant is the schizanthus, sometimes known as the "poor man's orchid." Here is something light and airy, a plant doing well in the house, and the cut sprays last remarkably well in water.

Yellow marguerites do not make good pot plants, but the white varieties make perfect ones and can be easily timed for either a late or early Easter. Marguerites are thirsty subjects, need much feeding and make the finest and most satisfactory of Easter plants.

Still Some Azaleas.

Azaleas of the indica type are occasionally seen. They will not become extinct, like the dodo, but are likely to remain high in price for years. A. Kaempferi makes a fine Easter plant. It can be flowered as early as the middle of February; in fact, I have had nice plants in flower in January. The Kurume azaleas will in the not distant future be popular with growers, as they seed and germinate freely and also propagate quite readily from cuttings. At one time the beautiful Pink Pearl rhododendron and its companion, White Pearl, were abundant and could be sold at a reasonable price. Some are still offered, but prices show a tremendous advance over pre-war days.

Flowering Shrubs.

There will be, as usual, some lilacs, magnolias, prunus, laburnums, deutzias and other flowering shrubs. These will require but little forcing this season, and the cooler they are grown the more satisfactory service will they give.

For critical customers, some healthy and well budded gardenias will come in. These plants do well in the average warm American home.

Pots of lilies of the valley, well flowered and carrying dark green foliage, should sell on sight.

It is too late for primulas, and cyclamens, unless grown cold, will be on the wane. Outside of Cattleya Mossiae, few orchids are available, but we can well dispense with them.

Although novelties are neither numerous nor startling, we shall have, nevertheless, the usual fine assortment of Easter-flowering plants, and nothing but atrocious climatic conditions will prevent Easter, 1922, from being a record-breaker.

BUSINESS LOOKING UP.

To florists estimating the probable purchases of the public at Easter time, the evidences of better business conditions set forth in Dun's review of trade last week will have interest. It stated:

"Despite various uncertainties and impediments, the first quarter of the year has been productive of definite revival of business and a further strengthening of confidence. Much of the gain has come so slowly as to be barely perceptible, but recent weeks have brought more positive improvement in certain quarters, and continued irregular progress is foreshadowed. Some basic industries in which activities have long been repressed are emerging from their condition of lethargy, notably iron and steel and construction lines, and the recovery in manufacturing would be more decisive if strikes in the textile field and elsewhere were absent. Notwithstanding existing labor troubles, however, unemployment of workers is gradually diminishing, with a consequent lessening of the restrictions on public buying power, and indications of a broadening retail movement are multiplying.

"While seasonal influences account for much of the present enlargement of merchandise distribution, signs are not lacking that consumers are more disposed to purchase goods at the lower prices prevailing, and the depleted state of many dealers' stocks is reflected in the more frequent placing of replenishment orders in primary channels. The disinclination of most interests freely to anticipate future requirements demonstrates that conservatism is still general, but demands to cover current needs are becoming more diversified and the number of moderate-sized commitments is increasing. Added evidence of the expansion of business operations appears in returns of bank clearings and in other statistical barometers, although the situation remains conspicuously uneven, and unsatisfactory phases have by no means been eliminated."

HANDLING HOLIDAY BUSINESS.

Retailer Needs System.

When I entered the florists' trade, fifteen years ago, a holiday rush was a catch-as-can affair, with everybody for himself and no one responsible for anything, and if you did not have to work from fifty to sixty hours before a Christmas or Easter, business was poor. Today it is different, because the florist, whether large or small in a business way, has found that he must have some system to his business, the same as a merchant in any other line.

My retail experience has been with firms who cater to big volume, the A. W. Smith Co. and Penn the Florist. My suggestions are what I learned from them, with a few of my own.

First I will take up the handling of plants, which at Easter, with its lilies, is always a worry. First, every plant should be marked plainly with the selling price before being placed on the floor for sale. Next, when a plant is sold, even early in the week, try to have it delivered that day, for your customer might as well have the pleasure of having that plant in the home those few extra days as have it knocking around the store, taking up valuable space that you need. There are few persons who will not let you deliver a plant at once if proper explanation is given. If customers insist on future delivery, have numbered checks ready, so that a plant can be checked the minute it is sold. Pin the stub to the sales slip and be sure the day of delivery is written plainly on the check. Have space set aside for your sold plants, each day's deliveries separate, so that when your packers are filling orders they will have to handle only one day's deliveries.

Packing Plants.

Again, when packing plants, do not let your man select an order and go to the table and hunt the plant, for each time he does this, likely as not, the whole table of plants will have to be moved before he finds the plant wanted. Let him take a plant and find the order with the numbered stub corresponding to the check on plant, thus saving time and wear and tear on your plants. There should be a man in charge of the plant packing, with as many helpers as your business demands, and they should do nothing else as long as there are plants to be packed either for today's or tomorrow's delivery.

Your extra help should not be allowed to wait on trade unless thoroughly experienced, as many a good sale has been lost by new hands. Divide your extras up among your old help, say two or three to each one. Let the regular employees take the order and then turn the customer over to one of the extras to take the name and address, to provide the card; in fact, to attend to all details, thus allowing your salesman to wait on another person.

As soon as the cashier has rung up the sale, the order should be turned over to the employee who is writing shipping tags and cards. This is one of the most important things on the list, as I venture to say there have been more mistakes made by poor writing and wrong addresses copied from orders than everything else put together. From there the orders should go to the man in charge of the packing and stock, to be filled or filed away for the proper day.

Cut Flower Orders.

Next we come to cut flower orders and made-up work, such as corsages, fancy baskets, etc. There should be enough help set aside for this to be able to handle it at all times and keep up with the orders. They should not be taken away from this work under any circumstances. Your boxes should be made up ahead of time, your packing tables prepared, and everything in readiness before the big rush begins. The largest volume of cut flowers is handled on Saturday and Saturday night; so I will take Saturday night as an example, as that is when all the Sunday orders are filled:

Get every experienced man on the job in the packing room not later than 6:30. Get those who are to work on corsages and divide the orders up among them—sweet peas to one, violets to another, roses to another, and so on. Let the sweet pea man work on one color at a time and not change after each order, as too much time is lost in doing so. We will say, let him make all the orders calling for pink peas first, then lavender, and so on. Then finish up with the ones that are not specific as to color. Let your rose man do the same thing, and you will be surprised how much time you will save.

The man filling the cut flower orders should proceed the same way, working on one item at a time. He should fill his rose orders first, working each variety separately and finishing up with the assorted rose orders. Then he should take the carnations in the same way, and so on down the line, last of all filling the assorted box orders. Working this way, one man can keep two packers and two wrappers busy, for a packer should not have to stop to wrap the boxes, but should pass them along to others to be wrapped.

Delivery Most Important.

The next step is the delivery. This is most important and should be in

MILLER'S EASTER WINDOW.

Should a man with a world-wide reputation as a salesman walk into your store and offer his services for practically no compensation, you would, no doubt, blink your eyes and pinch your arm to see if you were actually conscious or only dreaming. As a matter of pure fact, right now in the front part of your store there is one of the world's best waiting to offer selling services. Are you aware of this business-getter? It is your display window.

The Miller Floral Co., of Salt Lake City, Utah, long since discovered the silent salesman. Last year the firm's Easter display window honored the acquaintance by getting a considerable amount of business for the company. An illustration of the display used at that time is shown on this page. Here we see lilies, roses and other stock prominent at Easter time grouped about a novel "inn," in the shape of a half-shell. Tiny chicks stand in the doorway of the inn. And a prominent sign calls attention to the appropriateness of flowers at Easter. The Miller Floral Co. considered this one of the best advertisements and business-getters it ever had.

FADE-OUT OF FLOWER SHOW

CLOSING DAYS AT INDIANAPOLIS.

Rain Doesn't Dampen Enthusiasm.

Rain, rain, rain! It rained the entire week. Not just a shower, but a heavy downpour. The latter part of the week was cold and raw. But in spite of the inclement weather, a constant stream of people poured into the Manufacturers' building at Indianapolis to see the national flower show.

Checking of the attendance statistics Saturday night, April 1, revealed that more than 104,000 persons thronged the aisles of the Manufacturers' building to view the exhibition. George Asmus, chairman of the national flower show committee, announced that up to Friday night 61,000 persons had bought tickets for the show. In addition to these paid admissions, he said that more than 10,000 passes were in use, each of which was presented on an average of at least three times. Bright, sunny weather Friday attracted a crowd, estimated by door men at 25,000 persons, that shot the total figures over the 100,000 mark.

Carnation Exhibits.

Special displays of carnations were the feature Thursday, March 30. For the display of carnation blooms covering eighty square feet of space, the award was won by Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis. A lovely urn of Laddie as a central group was surrounded by Red Rosalia, Ruth Baur and Edna.

A large and unusual flower is the Merveille Française carnation, which was sent from the M. B. Marinelli Floral Co., of New York. The blooms were set up in glass tubes to show them off to an advantage. These are so double that some of them resemble peonies. There were white, pink, lavender, blue and variegated varieties.

The private gardens of Joseph E. Weidener, of Elkins Park, Pa., exhibited a lovely group of carnations in the class of 200 blooms or more, which received the blue ribbon. These were wonderfully well grown and included the following varieties: White Wonder, Ward, Crystal White, Ethel Fisher and Laddie. This exhibit also received the Hitchings silver cup.

The superiority of Laddie was evident in the basket display. The three first prizes were baskets of Laddie tastefully arranged. Also in the competitive class for twelve carnation blooms Laddie proved that it was in a class by itself.

The novel arrangement of carnations other than a basket had but two entries. The Pahud Floral Co. had a striking piece featuring governor's day, with the picture of the governor inserted. This received the blue ribbon and was later presented to Governor McCray. The Pahud Floral Co. also won the blue ribbon with its table decorations. The table was lovely, with a vase of Laddie in the center and small corsages at each plate featuring other flowers.

Judges of the carnation displays were John H. Dunlop, of Toronto; W. D. Howard, of Milford, Mass., and Carl Hagenburger, of Mentor, O.

The awards Thursday were as follows: Display of carnations covering eighty square feet—Baur & Steinkamp, first, winning prize of $300 and gold medal. Basket containing from 100 to 200 carnations

—W. A. Rowe, Kirkwood, Mo., first; E. E. Temperley, second; Pahud Floral Co., third.

Novel arrangement of carnations—Pahud Floral Co., first; Baur & Steinkamp, second.

Special Classes.

As a supplement to the regular list of premiums, six special classes were arranged by the chairman of the special premiums committee. The following florists subscribed to the premium list: W. C. Hamant, E. A. Nelson, H. W. Riemann's Sons, Smith & Young Co., John Heidenreich, Pahud Floral Co., Roepke Floral Co., Bertermann Bros. Co., C. R. Greene, Temperley's, Hartje & Elder, D. Bash, Joseph Mock, J. A. Grande, B. C. Hitz, August Riemann, all of Indianapolis; Edwin Morner, Shelbyville, Ind.; L. A. Coles, Kokomo, Ind.; L. E. Hitz, Madison, Ind., and Harry White, North Manchester, Ind.

The awards in these classes were as follows:

Cyclamen, twelve plants—C. A. Schwomeyer, first.

Cineraria stellata, twelve plants—A. Wiegand's Sons Co., first; Bertermann Bros. Co., second.

Cineraria hybrids, twelve plants—E. H. Riemann, first; Temperley's, second.

Display of fifty square feet of miscellaneous bulbous plants—A. Wiegand's Sons Co., first; Bertermann Bros. Co., second.

Display of flowering begonia plants, covering fifty square feet—C. A. Schwomeyer, first; Temperley's, second.

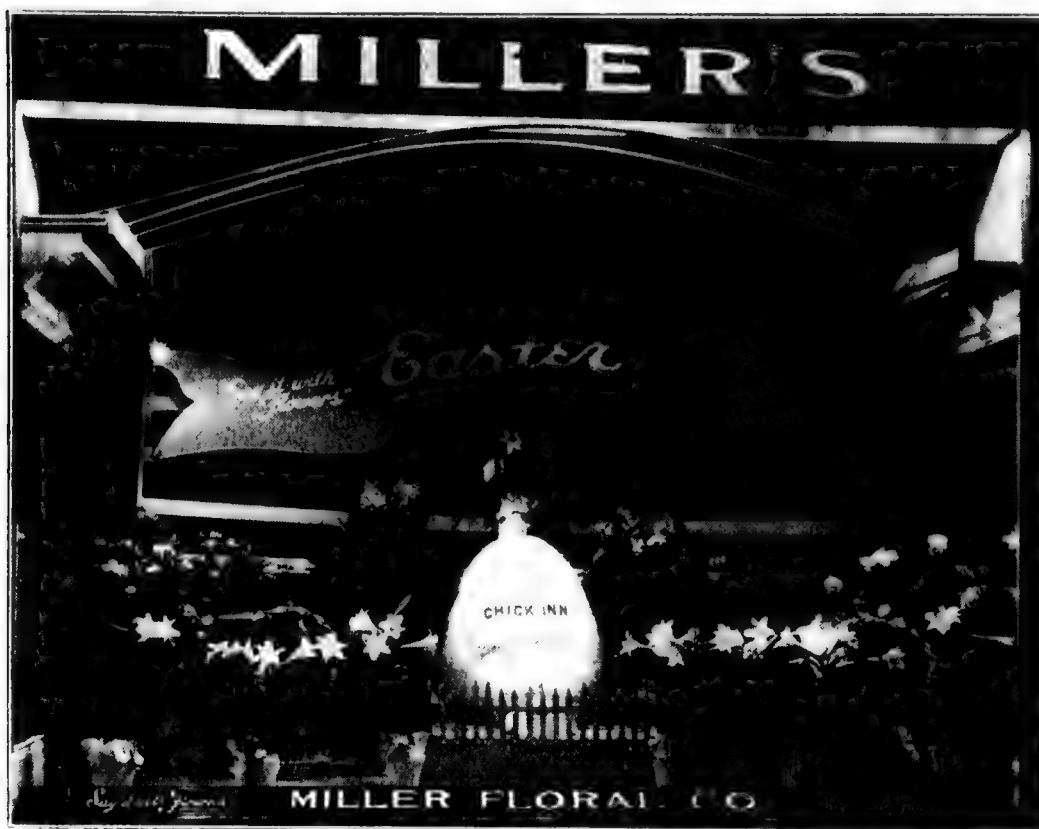

Display of Easter lily plants, covering sixty square feet—Roepke Floral Co., first.

Noteworthy Displays.

The displays of cut roses covering 300 square feet of space and containing not less than 500 or more than 1,000 blooms were certainly feasts for the eyes. They included roses with stems measuring nearly seven feet and in shades ranging from pure white through the creams and pinks to deep reds. A. N. Pierson, Inc., received the blue ribbon. In this display were Butterfly, Ophelia, Crusader, Columbia, Premier, Mrs. Warren G. Harding, Francis Scott Key and others.

A sweet pea display of great merit by a private gardener was shown by Mrs. F. E. Lewis, of Ridgefield, Conn. The blooms were perfect and on long, heavy stems. Twenty-two varieties were shown.

That lovely new sweet pea of Burpee's, named Mrs. George W. Kerr, was awarded a gold medal. This is a lovely butterfly type of a pleasing shade of salmon, suffused with orange.

A. L. Miller, of Jamaica, N. Y., presented his exhibit of elegant potted plants and shrubs to the park board of the city of Indianapolis. The local florists greatly appreciate such a gift to their city and thank Mr. Miller.

Wright's Flower Shop, Los Angeles, Cal., had an exhibit of the new adiantum, Wrightii, which is an attractive fern. It has large fronds and good keeping qualities. A silver medal was awarded this.

A. Wiegand's Sons Co. staged an unusual table for Baur & Steinkamp. This was for the class of an unusual carnation display. A coal scuttle of carnations appeared as if it had been carelessly dumped upon a table, scattering its contents. The suggestion that even the most common thing can be made attractive by flowers was obvious.

As a special feature on Friday a design for "Fathers' day" was made. This being Men's Club day, the design was especially appropriate. A floral pipe, the bowl of which contained cigars, cigarettes and tobacco, formed the design.

Lectures.

Thursday afternoon, March 30, a free lecture was given for the public at Caleb Mills hall. Prof. Arno H. Nehrling, of Cornell University, gave a most interesting talk, on "Continuous Bloom in the Garden." This was illustrated by colored slides. Professor Victor Ries, of Purdue, gave an instructive and interesting talk, on "Gardens and Landscaping," which was also illustrated by colored slides. Harry Dietz, assistant state entomologist, told of the common pests of the garden and how to control them. The lectures were all well illustrated and were not only instructive and educational, but highly entertaining.

CLOSING REMARKS.

"In this flower show, intended for Cleveland," said Irwin Bertermann, vice-chairman of the national flower show committee and chairman of the local committee, "it has been a pleasure for me to be connected with the work, and the source of that pleasure is the spirit shown by Indiana and Indianapolis citizens. We asked for support for the show, and we got it, from Governor McCray down. We had occasion to ask for nothing but what our request was granted. That spirit means a lot for this city. The exhibitors have all taken to Indianapolis. They admire it because it has helped put across the biggest and best show of the national society. The public has supported us with a big attendance."

Claude S. Wallin, secretary of the executive committee, declared, "I consider the show a wonderful success. The exhibits have been a rare treat and from the attendance it seems the people of Indiana have appreciated the opportunity of seeing such a large collection of flowers and plants. In my experience in expositions I have never seen a more appreciative or enthusiastic interest shown than in this flower show. All of the committeemen have done efficient work, and local florists have made the show possible by their faithful efforts."

"The remarkable thing about the present show," said George Asmus, "is that, whereas in the past it has taken two years to organize and promote a national flower show, the present exhibition was staged within a period of seven weeks. While the weather has been bad, attendance has been proportionately three times as large as that of the show in Philadelphia."

"The attendance has been beyond our expectations and we are all delighted with the reception received from the Indianapolis public," said Joseph H. Hill, member of the national flower show committee.

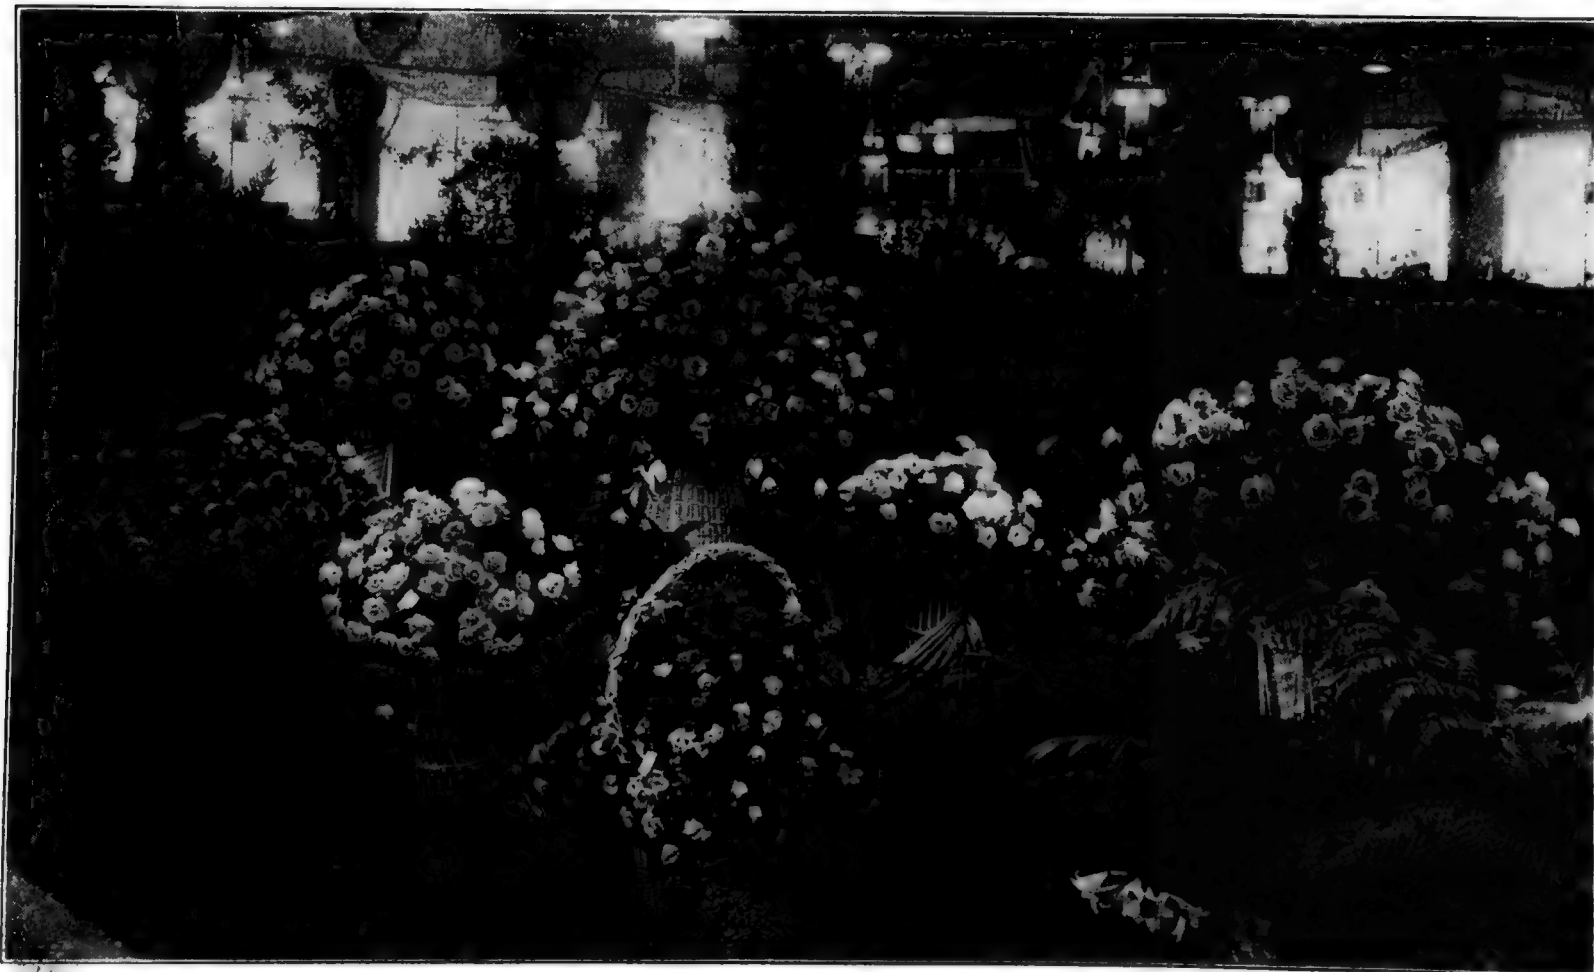

"The show surpasses our expectations in every respect," said Arthur Herrington, who laid out the show. "It has certainly been one of the most popular and attractive shows in the country. If there is a more adaptable exhibition hall in the country I haven't seen it. The light and the division of space is ideal. It is undoubtedly the best national flower show ever held."

Clarence R. Greene, chairman of the special features committee, said, "I am enthusiastic over the success of the show and I want to thank members of my committee for the support I received. The Indianapolis people have been loyal and the papers, especially the Star, have been liberal with their space."

flower show, when 25,000 came. On this day Gov. Warren T. McCray and his official family were special guests. An impressive program was arranged. At 7:45 the governor and his staff, attended by his military escort, arrived at the show. Presentation was made by C. R. Greene. After a short talk, the governor was presented with a large floral piece featuring the latter's picture, which was made by the Pahud Floral Co. Motion pictures were taken of the ceremony and of the short reception which was held when the officers of the S. A. F. and of the Indiana State Florists' Association were introduced.

Following the reception, a banquet was served in the Travertine room of the Lincoln hotel. The setting was most striking. The room itself is beautiful and, having just been completed, is the latest in decorations. With such a background, the beautifully decorated tables completed a most attractive picture. L. E. Hitz, president of the Indiana State Florists' Association, acted as toastmaster. The governor was first called upon. He welcomed the visitors to the city and state. "The Hoosier loves the flowers and the beauty of nature," he said. "We realize what a desolate and forbidding world this would be without flowers. We are glad to welcome to this city men and women who are engaged in this vocation, which contributes so much to the human progress.

"What we lack in population, I believe you will agree, has been made up in enthusiasm. If another show city ever falls down we invite you to return to Indianapolis. We realize what a lasting benefit the show is to the people of Indiana in beautifying their homes and making them better citizens."

Lesson in Coöperation.

"This show is a lesson in coöperation," was the text of George Asmus' talk. "We have received hearty coöperation from the business men, from the Chamber of Commerce, from the florists and from the newspapers of Indianapolis. During the last flower show, held in Philadelphia in 1917, six newspapers there gave the show 550,000 lines of print. Here two newspapers, and at the outside three, had by last Tuesday night given the show more than 600,000 lines.

"This show represents the last word of 1,000 years of activity by florists all through the world and is staged in the best possible way," said Mr. Asmus. He also praised the Cleveland florists for their wonderful preparations for the show and their unselfishness in turning these plans over to others. He also exonerated Cleveland's mayor from the blame. "He could not do otherwise," Mr. Asmus remarked.

In a short response made by Irwin Bertermann, tribute was paid to the work done by the Indiana florists, Governor McCray, the Chamber of Commerce and the Indianapolis newspapers towards making the show a success.

Pennock Is Proud.

S. S. Pennock spoke in glowing terms of Indianapolis. "Who wouldn't be proud of the welcome we have received from Indiana and Indianapolis? We have felt more than the traditional Hoosier hospitality. We have felt at home ever since we arrived here, six weeks ago.

"No flower show ever had the backing of the press that the Indianapolis papers have given this show," he declared. "Indianapolis has made good. This is the best show the Society of American Florists has ever staged, and the attendance is the biggest."

Herman P. Knoble spoke for the Cleveland florists. "You lucky bunch of Hoosiers, the most fortunate thing in the world has befallen you people!" He urged that the Hoosiers take a lesson from the exhibition and have an annual show.

J. J. Hess made a short talk congratulating the Hoosier florists and assuring those present that the show had been a financial success. The show went over the top Wednesday noon. At that time more than 50,000 had passed through the gates.

In the absence of E. G. Hill, Joseph Hill made a short address for his father. E. E. T.

PICK-UPS AT THE SHOW.

Several Philadelphia florists standing before the splendid cut flower display of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association regarded its size as indicative of the rank attained by this wholesale house under the guidance of their former fellow citizen, Paul Klingsporn. "See what a Philadelphian does in Chi-nearly seven feet and in shades ranging from pure white through the creams and pinks to deep reds. A. N. Pierson, Inc., received the blue ribbon. In this display were Butterfly, Ophelia, Crusader, Columbia, Premier, Mrs. Warren G. Harding, Francis Scott Key and others.

A sweet pea display of great merit by a private gardener was shown by Mrs. F. E. Lewis, of Ridgefield, Conn. The blooms were perfect and on long, heavy stems. Twenty-two varieties were shown.

That lovely new sweet pea of Burpee's, named Mrs. George W. Kerr, was awarded a gold medal. This is a lovely butterfly type of a pleasing shade of salmon, suffused with orange.

A. L. Miller, of Jamaica, N. Y., presented his exhibit of elegant potted plants and shrubs to the park board of the city of Indianapolis. The local florists greatly appreciate such a gift to their city and thank Mr. Miller.

Wright's Flower Shop, Los Angeles, Cal., had an exhibit of the new adiantum, Wrightii, which is an attractive fern. It has large fronds and good keeping qualities. A silver medal was awarded this.

A. Wiegand's Sons Co. staged an unusual table for Baur & Steinkamp. This was for the class of an unusual carnation display. A coal scuttle of carnations appeared as if it had been carelessly dumped upon a table, scattering its contents. The suggestion that even the most common thing can be made attractive by flowers was obvious.

As a special feature on Friday a design for "Fathers' day" was made. This being Men's Club day, the design was especially appropriate. A floral pipe, the bowl of which contained cigars, cigarettes and tobacco, formed the design.

Lectures.

Thursday afternoon, March 30, a free lecture was given for the public at Caleb Mills hall. Prof. Arno H. Nehrling, of Cornell University, gave a most interesting talk, on "Continuous Bloom in the Garden." This was illustrated by colored slides. Professor Victor Ries, of Purdue, gave an instructive and interesting talk, on "Gardens and Landscaping," which was also illustrated by colored slides. Harry Dietz, assistant state entomologist, told of the common pests of the garden and how to control them. The lectures were all well illustrated and were not only instructive and educational, but highly entertaining.

CLOSING REMARKS.

"In this flower show, intended for Cleveland," said Irwin Bertermann, vice-chairman of the national flower show committee and chairman of the local committee, "it has been a pleasure for me to be connected with the work, and the source of that pleasure is the spirit shown by Indiana and Indianapolis citizens. We asked for support for the show, and we got it, from Governor McCray down. We had occasion to ask for nothing but what our request was granted. That spirit means a lot for this city. The exhibitors have all taken to Indianapolis. They admire it because it has helped put across the biggest and best show of the national society. The public has supported us with a big attendance."

Claude S. Wallin, secretary of the executive committee, declared, "I consider the show a wonderful success. The exhibits have been a rare treat and from the attendance it seems the people of Indiana have appreciated the opportunity of seeing such a large collection of flowers and plants. In my experience in expositions I have never seen a more appreciative or enthusiastic interest shown than in this flower show. All of the committeemen have done efficient work, and local florists have made the show possible by their faithful efforts."

"The remarkable thing about the present show," said George Asmus, "is that, whereas in the past it has taken two years to organize and promote a national flower show, the present exhibition was staged within a period of seven weeks. While the weather has been bad, attendance has been proportionately three times as large as that of the show in Philadelphia."

"The attendance has been beyond our expectations and we are all delighted with the reception received from the Indianapolis public," said Joseph H. Hill, member of the national flower show committee.

"The show surpasses our expectations in every respect," said Arthur Herrington, who laid out the show. "It has certainly been one of the most popular and attractive shows in the country. If there is a more adaptable exhibition hall in the country I haven't seen it. The light and the division of space is ideal. It is undoubtedly the best national flower show ever held."

BANQUET AT INDIANAPOLIS.

Celebrated Governor's Day.

Thursday, Indiana day, was the day of largest attendance at the national flower show, when 25,000 came. On this day Gov. Warren T. McCray and his official family were special guests. An impressive program was arranged. At 7:45 the governor and his staff, attended by his military escort, arrived at the show. Presentation was made by C. R. Greene. Motion pictures were taken of the ceremony and of the short reception which was held when the officers of the S. A. F. and of the Indiana State Florists' Association were introduced.

PICK-UPS AT THE SHOW.

Several Philadelphia florists standing before the splendid cut flower display of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association regarded its size as indicative of the rank attained by this wholesale house under the guidance of their former fellow citizen, Paul Klingsporn. "See what a Philadelphian does in Chicago!" said one of them. "See what Chicago does for a Philadelphian!" retorted a Windy City florist. But the ensuing argument ended in "No decision."

Some excellent sweet peas were brought from Glen Ellyn, Ill., by George J. Ball for sweet pea day, March 29. The advantage of having a shorter distance to travel than most of the peas seen was in their favor.

A slip of the memory caused reference, in last week's report, to the new rose of the Stuppy Floral Co. as a sport of Columbia instead of Ophelia, as it is. It was not labeled and few knew its ancestry, though many praised the flower. Its parent is worth mentioning because, first, this variety is likely to be heard more of, and second, the parent is so notable a forebear, having as children Columbia, Mme. Butterfly and Hill's America.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"Phew!" ejaculated Robert Greenlaw, of the S. S. Pennock Co., in the trade display building at the Indianapolis show, "if we are compelled to inhale the carbon monoxide issuing from these salamanders, we poor exhibitors will soon be in extremis and as the employers' liability act possibly fails to cover this risk, our families will be left alone. True, by the constant connection between buyer and seller through the medium of The Review, business would suffer only temporarily by our demise. The suggestion to install a Kroeschell boiler as the heating system is a good one."

"The early bird gets the worm," observed I. Rosnosky, of the A. B. C. force, Chicago, while describing the Thoro-Mix soil shredder, "and the grower who owns one will be that bird."

Walter Stroh, of L. C. Stroh & Sons, Batavia, N. Y., was the recipient of mixed congratulations when it became known that a little fairy had arrived at his home and several sales of the soil mixer were reported from the office.

"Bah! Who said the public taste is turning to the artificial?" remarked S. S. Skidelsky, New York, referring to the glorious floral displays in general and the big crowd surging around the table decoration of Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy, which was perfect in simplicity of arrangement.

F. E. Selkregg and wife, of North East, Pa., were among the visitors noticed from the smaller towns. "Are we glad we came? We enjoyed every minute spent in the Hoosier capital."

Robert Pyle, president of the American Rose Society, was overheard to remark that he did not feel the least bit disappointed when compelled to cancel his famous rose lecture, owing to the tremendous counter attraction of the real thing.

E. J. Fancourt, of the S. S. Pennock Co., commented upon the profitable trip made in company with some leading

The orchestra was untiring and plenty of chairs at vantage points in the hall gave visitors places to rest and get their 50 cents' worth, in music as well as flowers.

The Nature Study Club of Indiana coöperated with the American Rose Society in establishing a booth where the public could learn of amateur floricultural activities and organizations.

Several celebrities, from the wife of an ex-premier of England to a movie star, were expected to appear at the show. They served to gain much newspaper publicity, but did not attend as scheduled.

Indianapolis retains on its street lamps the watchword of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World from the time of that organization's convention there in 1920. "Truth" still shines on citizens and visitors.

eastern and Canadian rosarians, incidentally mentioning the scarlet sport of Rosalia carnation at the establishment of Baur & Steinkamp as being a "comer."

Shepherd Norris, of the Friedley Co., Cleveland, observed that while the florists of the Fifth City surely would have put up a big show, he questioned whether they would have been so successful as the Indianapolis florists under existing conditions.

"Are we satisfied?" queried Homer Wiegand, of A. Wiegand's Sons Co., when approached as to the general opinion of the local trade touching the flower show. "We are fully convinced it is the greatest moment in the history of American horticulture."

Victor Groshens, of Roslyn, Pa., possibly the most successful grower of the rose, Mrs. Charles Russell, in the east, saw what was described as "eye-openers." Our old-time friend was accompanied by his son, a worker at the E. G. Hill Co. range, who is well pleased with the environment there.

"The possibilities of our profession can be imagined," observed Walter E. Cook, of Walter E. Cook, Inc., Cleveland, "when one realizes that, had this exhibition been held in Cleveland, we fondly hoped that possibly it would be double that at Indianapolis in size; in quality, no, for 'tis a magnificent display."

J. A. Peterson and family were among the late arrivals, motoring over from Cincinnati. "'Tis the best show yet, well worth the hurried trip from Florida to see," commented the cyclamen specialist, incidentally mentioning that their annual sojourn at the new Lakeland orange farm will not interfere with the cyclamen harvest at Westwood, in April.

"How can we expect it?" asked I. M. Bayersdorfer, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, referring to the seeming indifference of the trade visitors, and the disappointment expressed at visible and immediate returns by several trade exhibitors. "With the big attraction in the building adjoining and the fact that the country is continually combed by the traveling salesman and covered so completely by the trade press, which one can liken to an aeroplane, we should feel content to charge the expense to live publicity and share in the universal harvest."

"The combination worked well," observed C. G. Anderson, manager of the plant department of the J. W. Davis Co., Terre Haute, Ind., referring to the good business transacted at the flower show at Indianapolis. "First, we told through The Review what we have for sale; then we exhibited samples to correspond, arranged so that every plant showed to advantage."

Keep an eye on the new Bougainvillea Crimson Lake, exhibited by Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia. It will be a great acquisition to the list of holiday plants, being, apparently, as free as B. Sanderiana, which it resembles, minus color. This is a strong recommendation.

Medina, the new rose exhibited by White Bros., Medina, N. Y., at the stand of the American Bulb Co., stood the gas test well, and was favorably commented upon. It is claimed to be a sport from Sunburst, with the suspicion of a trace of Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, which should be in its favor. It is a pure white.

Earl Poehlmann, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, remarked that many lines of Easter plants were sold up rather earlier than usual, and he ventured to predict a banner spring business.

"The paper with the largest circulation brought in the largest number of individual orders. The total received through the medium of the trade press equaled what came through the jobbers," commented Manager Smith, of the Joy Floral Co., of Nashville, Tenn., referring to the orders received for their new carnations, adding that the volume had exceeded best expectations.

Carnationists are much impressed with the new variegated Rosalia originating with Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind., and now past the experimental stage. It promises to secure a leading place, owing chiefly to its distinctiveness. A fine lot of seedlings, together with some from the English raiser, Carl Engelmann, all vigorous, were noted.

"Expressiveness," observed George Wiegand, of the A. Wiegand's Sons Co., describing the return of Aunt Chloe, with her alligator family, from their temporary home at the flower show. "As she descended from the miniature Noah's ark, Uncle Rastus welcomed her with a look full of expression, a great essential in our business."

The Colonial Flower Shop, Muncie, Ind., reproduced on a small scale much of the artistic effects seen at the flower show.

"One would naturally suppose that dry weather would create the greatest interest in irrigation," observed Manager P. H. Bridges, of the Skinner Irrigation Co., Troy, O., "but, judging from prospects received at the Indianapolis show, it would seem the rainy weather was suggestive."

* * * *

Manager Aaron Shive, of the Flick Floral Co., Fort Wayne, Ind., on his return from the flower show, led his fellow members, aided by the description and illustrations in The Review, mentally over the whole ground. "Believe me," said he, "the next show will see all there who possibly can go. This, of course, means Kansas City in August." W. M.

TO DONORS OF SOUVENIRS.

Owing to the confusion in the handling of the various lines of stock, in plants, cut flowers and seeds, presented to visitors of the national flower show as souvenirs, the proper recognition cannot be given to each of the donors of these gifts, which were such an appreciated feature to the show patrons.

I therefore desire to use this method of thanking those who so generously responded to our call. There is no doubt that these very materially helped the attendance and gave valued publicity to the show.

FERTILIZER FROM LEAVES.

Well acquainted with the fertilizing properties of leaves through his experience as a grower, Louis D. Poock began experiments some time ago in an effort to get the food elements in concentrated form from the leaves. He found that the use of chemicals was damaging to the natural fertilizing properties of leaf-mold and sought for a method which would produce a liquid concentration without injurious ingredients. He has now produced what he calls Liquid-Leaf-Mold.

Mr. Poock says that different kinds of forest leaves contain the necessary fertilizing elements in different forms and to different degrees. It is, therefore, necessary to mix the various kinds of leaves in accordance with a formula to obtain the proper results.

At the Indianapolis flower show, Mr. Poock, now the president of the Liquid-Leaf Fertilizer Co., showed the liquid, which is sold to florists and gardeners, a watery fluid of dark brown color. The leaves from which the liquid has been extracted are also sold, for use as humus.

Experiments have been made for Mr. Poock on roses, carnations and other plants. One gallon of his product is diluted with thirty gallons of water for a rich feeding, and with fifty gallons of water for a mild feeding. As experiments continue to show the value of his product, Mr. Poock intends to go into the manufacture of it more extensively.

GREEN APHIS ON SWEET PEAS.

Our sweet pea vines are curled up and when a bud is formed it dries up. What is the cause of this trouble?

W. G.—Ia.

Foliage curling up would seem to indicate the presence of green aphid. If this is the case, fumigate or spray with a nicotine solution. Add a little soap to make the spray more adhesive. Keep a night temperature of 50 to 52 degrees and avoid wide temperature fluctuations. Careful ventilation and watering are vital necessities if you want good sweet peas, and cold drafts will bring mildew.

C. W.

FERTILIZERS FOR GERANIUMS.

It is impossible for me to procure cow manure for geraniums. Will you please tell me what I can use in place of it?

P. R. I.—La.

Cow manure is not necessary for geraniums. A little sheep manure and fine bone added to the soil answers just as well, and a light top-dressing of bone applied to plants when well rooted tones them up nicely.

C. W.

CURING GERANIUM LEAF-SPOT.

Will you kindly examine the geranium leaves which I have mailed you, and determine, if possible, what disease it is that they have? The leaves become heavily spotted, dry up and then fall off. What can I do to remedy this condition?

C. L. M.

Judging from the specimen leaves received, the plants are affected with leaf-spot, which may be caused by any one of the following conditions: Rich soil, too much heat and moisture, as well as poor ventilation. Geraniums are comparatively easy to handle, but when abused, suffer quickly. In the future when potting your geraniums, use a soil that is not so rich. After the first watering, water only as the plants need it, and ventilate freely when the weather will permit. The temperature best suited to geraniums is 50 to 52 degrees at night, 54 to 56 degrees on dull, cloudy days, with a rise of 4 to 6 degrees on bright days, ventilating and using little if any steam.

VALLEY PIPS NOT FLOWERING.

Last fall I dug a large bunch of blooming lilies of the valley, which were growing close to the house, and planted them in pots. These I left outdoors until December, when they were taken into the cellar and later into a room heated to 65 degrees. They made good leaves, but not a single bloom appeared. Is it because they were dug from a location too close to the wall of the house and, consequently, did not get enough nourishment?

R. E. H.—Minn.

In all probability the pips were too small and too crowded together to produce flowers. The nearer the house they were growing the more likely it is that they would have been flowerless. If, instead of digging whole clumps, strong individual pips or shoots had been selected and a number of these placed in 5-inch or 6-inch pots, kept cool until early in February, and then placed in the heat, they should have flowered satisfactorily, but would be unlikely to have carried as fine stalks as imported pips, which are grown singly in nursery rows, in fields, in beds and especially for forcing purposes. Another season allow your pots to have several freezings, then store in a cold cellar or pit and do not place in the heat before February 1. The plants will then have had a good rest and should start well.

THIRTEEN THOUSAND DOES IT.

It has been the purpose of The Review to steadily increase the service given the trade. To do this, the first requisite has been to print a paper the trade would buy to read. With a steadily increasing number of interested readers, results to advertisers were sure to improve continuously as circulation increased. This season has brought the new mark of 13,000 subscribers, and increased value to advertisers. It works like this:

The Review has been all anyone could wish as an advertising medium. My gladiolus bulbs are all sold and gone, except what we will plant.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

COLLEGE SECTION

COLLEGE FLORISTS MEET.

Consider Relation to Floriculture.

The college florists' section of the S. A. F. met during the national flower show, at Indianapolis. Wednesday, March 29, representatives from Illinois, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Maryland met with S. S. Pennock, president of the S. A. F., for the consideration of reports and other business pertaining to college work in floriculture.

In the morning session, committee reports on floricultural teaching and on research in floriculture were heard. Much discussion as to the most satisfactory methods for the practical training of students under the system of floricultural teaching developed. A survey was given of the present work being done in experimental floriculture and the possibilities for new work in this line, as soon as funds are available.

In the afternoon session the committees on college floriculture and its relationship to the trade, floriculture in relation to agriculture, and future policies in floriculture reported. It was noted that the trade was interesting itself more and more in the college development of floriculture and that students with college training were finding places for themselves in the trade. It was shown that, although floriculture was still a pioneer course in most of our colleges, in its development in the last few years it compared favorably with the other agricultural courses, such as fruit growing, vegetable gardening and dairying, considering that, as yet, it did not have the general support which these others had. It developed that some of the future policies should include a balance between theory and practice in our teaching work; that we should develop training in business methods at the same time we educate students as growers. The possibilities for the establishment of field workers to aid the florists, and the great opportunity for increasing the interest of the public generally in flowers and the planting of flower gardens by amateurs were brought out.

Favor Quarantine.

The college section was in favor of plant quarantine, but agreed unanimously that it must be well regulated and that changes in the present quarantine were necessary to make it desirable.

Professor H. B. Dorner, of the University of Illinois, was appointed vice-chairman of the college section to serve during the European absence of Prof. A. H. Nehrling, of Cornell.

Due to the distance of Kansas City from most of the colleges doing floricultural work, and in view of the fact that only one or two members contemplated attending the S. A. F. convention in August, it was decided not to plan on a meeting at that time. The desirability of the section's meeting sometime during the coming year at one of the agricultural colleges was favorably looked upon. The section was unanimously of the opinion that there was an immediate need for more experimental work to be done in floriculture and for field extension workers to visit the growers and help them with their troubles and that, as soon as the florists felt the need of this aid and helped to secure the funds necessary for these purposes, it would be possible to develop work which would be of direct benefit to florists.

MAKING MORE FLOWER BUYERS

SENTIMENT SELLS FLOWERS.

Fox's Analysis.

Sometime in January, my good friends, Mark Mills and Bill Harris, happened in while we were getting ready for the Cornell University show. They looked over the things we were preparing for the talk and demonstrations and ended by saying: "Why under the sun don't you tell the boys at the Florists' Club about these things? They would be just as much interested as the students at Cornell."

I said: "Do you think they would?" Somehow whenever I think of the Florists' Club, it reminds me of that old basement under Horticultural hall. During a chrysanthemum show, while I was nosing about the exhibits of fruits, celery and cabbage, two men were standing in front of Michell's booth talking it over. As I passed one nudged the other and asked: "Who is that fellow?" "Why, you know who that is, don't you? That's Charlie Fox. 'Acme Tea Store Charlie' we used to call him. He sold more bargain plants at his old store than any fellow in town. By golly, I remember the time when his front pavement was so full of rubber plants that it looked like a forest. Now, since he's moved downtown and got so dam' artistic, it's Charles Henry Fox, 'At the Sign of the Rose,' if you please, and he'd have any guy arrested that dared drop a rubber plant on his front pavement." He heard a laugh near by and looked up, not realizing that the eavesdropper was enjoying the conversation more than he was, for Mrs. Fox was an interested listener and enjoyed it all immensely—every knock is a boost.

So here I am, kit and tools, with only one idea in the world and that is to share with you some of the things that have made the traveling public say that we do things just a "little different."

My subject tonight will be, "Analyzing the Flower Business." We have analyzed the flower business and find it is composed of three things, impression, sentiment and sympathy.

First Impressions.

First of all, we are firm believers in "first impressions." Take yourself, for instance; just recall the instances when your first impressions of people and things have been lasting, and you'll find that ninety-nine times out of 100 you cling to your first impressions.

Since this is true, just see how important it is that we as florists spend time and thought on the presentation of our article, that the first impression may be 100 per cent to the good, then pray that it may be lasting as an afterthought.

With this thought in mind, we pay especial attention to our boxes, both as to size and quality. We see to it that a half-dozen roses are not swamped in a box calculated to hold two dozen, nor do we in our haste put long-stemmed flowers in a short box, allowing the stems to break through a hole at one end and thus advertise our carelessness.

That cardinal thought of first impressions follows us as we pull off the outside petals of the rose that are scratched, withered and dried in handling, or see to it that a yellow leaf or crooked stem is clipped before boxing.

The customers do not understand as much about the reasons for these things as we do, and dry petals, even though they be few, or yellow leaves, even though they are a result of overfeeding, mean nothing to the customers but a faded condition, and they condemn them accordingly. You only need one faded rose in a dozen to condemn all the rest; so it pays to be especially careful in their selection.

Finishing Touches.

We take great care in the packing. We see that a definite color scheme is carried out and try always to place in every order some little touch in the way of an extra flower or bunch, daintily arranged.

We have some exceedingly attractive materials that we use as a last touch in sending off a box, which I am unable to show you now. We are having them made in Europe and by fall we shall have them on the market. It is surprising what intense interest is excited by this dainty little addition to the box. Customers talk more about it than the flowers themselves. This is just the point I want to emphasize when I speak of impressions.

Blue Bird Box.

And so we journey on to the "blue bird box," designed with the idea of being unusual as well as beautiful, a box covered with lace. You may think this lace is simply ornamental, but it answers other purposes. We cover it with a shower of seasonable flowers, which are woven into the lace, say, with violets.

The box is received and the "ohs" and "ahs" are many. "Too pretty to open," you hear them say, but curiosity gets the better of us all and the lid is slowly lifted; then the impression is complete. The four sides of the box open as the lid is raised and a perfect centerpiece is revealed. The center is a beautiful corsage, while the side arrangements blend harmoniously to make a perfect whole.

What finer way to send a Christmas or a birthday gift than to nest it under the center arrangement of this blue bird box? We have received countless Charles Henry Fox.

Address by Charles Henry Fox, on "An Analysis of the Flower Business," delivered at the meeting of the Philadelphia Florists' Club, April 4.

letters from distinguished people all over the United States, congratulating us on the originality and wonderful impression created by the blue bird boxes. We are going to give them to the trade next fall. They are now being manufactured in Germany, and we shall be able to produce them at a price within the reach of all florists—so reasonable that you can afford to use them with corsages that cost, say, from $7.50 up.

Continuing on the subject of impressions: A young man working his way through college came to me some time ago to place an order. He had been buying at the store for some time, but never anything extravagant. This particular day he seemed a bit uneasy and finally confided to me that he couldn't spend much money, but there was another fellow who was sending his girl American Beauty roses and he felt that it sort of made him look cheap. "Now," said he, "my father isn't paying for these flowers, like the other fellow's, so when he gets to pulling American Beauties, I'm out of the running. If I could only get something different, something very unusual, I would be willing to pay $15 or $20 for it, just to knock his eye out for once."

"Leave it to me, young man," said I, "and we'll give his American Beauties a run for their money." Orchids were cheap at that time. So I made up a fine corsage, daintily fussed up with ribbon, placing on the sides of the blue bird box a cluster of Sweetheart roses, smothered the box with violets, tied a bird's nest on the corner of the box, and sent it off. This was February 14. We had the wedding in June, and it was a big one at that.

Necklace Box.

I have another box which we use in combination with other gifts, with more substantial gifts.

I recollect another instance. A prominent club man came into the store with a rather nonchalant air and confided to me that he was attending a birthday dinner that evening. He said: "I have a gift here, a mighty good-looking necklace, I think, and I want you to tie it up with a bunch of roses or some flowers, in such a way that it will make them all sit up and take notice. I paid $500 for that necklace, and I want it fixed up in fine shape."

"Well, if you paid $500 for it, it's up to me to make it look worth double that. I'll make a bargain with you. Leave it to me and if that gift doesn't look worth a thousand by the time she gets it, don't pay me anything, but if it fills the bill I'll take ten per cent of the cost."

"I'll go you," said he, and, leaving the box of jewels, went on his way. The next morning he was the first customer in the store and, handing my clerk a $50 bill, said: "Tell Fox it was a knock-out, and I'm sorry he doesn't take tips."

Now, the second factor in our business is sentiment. Everybody has a certain degree of sentiment—and what better medium of expression can one have than the sentiment expressed by flowers? Surely, it is true that flowers whisper "what words never can." Your first thought and mine when we hear of a friend's illness is to send some flowers to cheer him up a bit and carry the message that we are thinking of him, looking forward to his recovery. Let this thought be carried out by every individual who has a friend who is ill, and in a short time that end of our business would be greatly increased.

They already have the thought. It is only up to us so judiciously and continually to suggest the doing of this thing that the thought becomes an action and the sending a reality.

Flowers in Hospitals.

Whenever I go into a hospital and see the beautiful roses and other delicate flowers set in the hallway, or out on the fire escape to keep them cool, I wonder why hospitals haven't long ago made provision for keeping the flowers which are taken out of the rooms of the patients over night. This is one reason, and many times a most unjust reason, that the florist receives a complaint about the flowers he sent not keeping in the hospital. This is just one of the jobs for our publicity committee and our Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association to take up, with the proper advertising and propaganda on this subject. There is no reason why the hospitals of the future should not have on every floor a room, not necessarily refrigerated, but a room in a part of the building that is coolest. This room should have shelves around it and also a stock of practical vases for the use of patients' flowers.

Luncheon Flowers.

Sentiment can be expressed so many ways with flowers. I now have in mind social affairs. In this particular case it was a musical luncheon given in honor of a famous opera singer. The luncheon table was set for twelve. It was in the spring of the year, in March. So as a special table decoration we fixed up this box with corsages of violets for the twelve ladies and arranged the center appropriately. We called it "The Song of the Violet." It fitted the occasion admirably and proved a great success. Just another way to express sentiment in flowers.

Sympathy.

Sentiment and sympathy are closely allied, and when I see a line in the obituary column which reads, "Please omit flowers," my memory takes me back to the fact that the first insertion of that order was made by a crazy undertaker, who, not having the facilities for handling flowers and not wanting to be bothered, suggested to the family that they insert this line. Why not back-pedal on this suggestion by proper advertising and propaganda? Make friends with the undertakers, talk to them on this subject, get them on our side, send them a few ferns for their offices, help them out as much as you can in having flowers on time for funerals and arrange the flowers for them. Try your best to make it easy for the undertaker at all times and in a short time you will have him with you strong—and he will suggest flowers instead of "omit flowers."

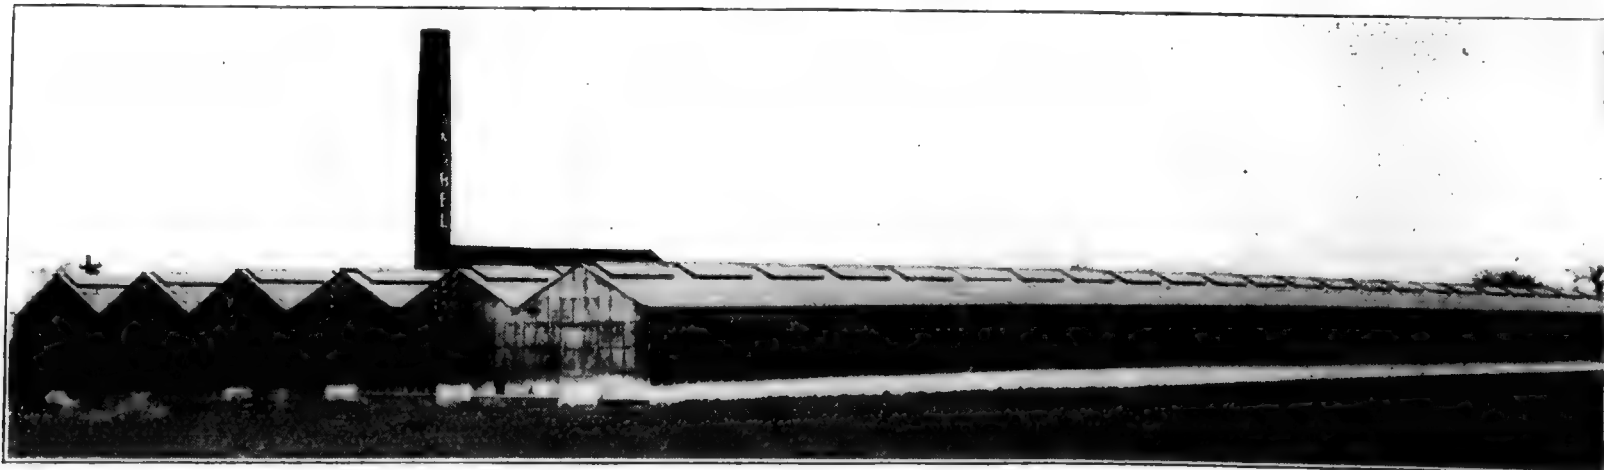

You can not tell me that any family objects to a friend's sending a floral tribute. What more cheerless thing in the world than a funeral without flowers? There should be flowers at every funeral, and the insertion in the paper should read, "Flowers gladly received." Flowers at a funeral are not only a beautiful tribute to the one who has passed on, but a wonderful consolation to the members of the family as well.

From the days of the Greek, when he honored his dead by strewing their graves with laurel wreaths and acacia, until the present, flowers have been the greatest comfort in time of sorrow.

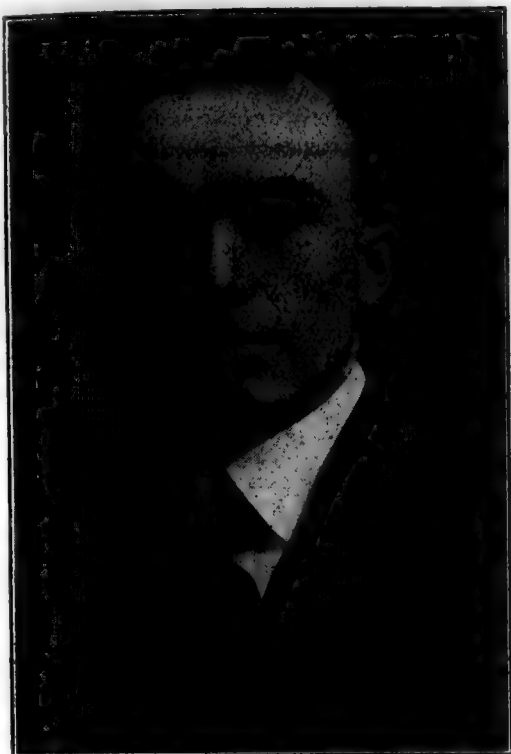

Time meant less to the ancient Greek in making up wreaths and casket covers than it means to us. Time is our greatest factor, and while we have none the less love and sympathy, we have less time, and so we must devise ways and means to get through with our work quickly.

With this in mind I conceived the "pillow basket," so constructed that it can be arranged in fifteen minutes by any florist and be a real work of art when finished.

Just think of it—no flowers to stem, no frame to moss, no wiring to do, every flower on its own stem and every stem in water! This not only means a great saving of time, but a saving of worry, for a delivery made on Saturday would be in fine condition several days later!

So the Sunday funeral bugbear is eliminated. Surely a great help toward Sunday closing, in which I am a firm believer!

I made a pillow basket in nine and one-half minutes in Toronto and eight minutes at Cornell.

Condolence.

We have tried out another idea which has proved to be practical, an idea which comes under the heading of sympathy. For the last two years we have been suggesting flowers for condolence. They are sent by friends to the members of the family of the deceased immediately upon hearing of their loss. Many people have spoken to us of this innovation, telling us how much they appreciated the thought that the flowers carried with them. Just another opening for increasing the sale of flowers!

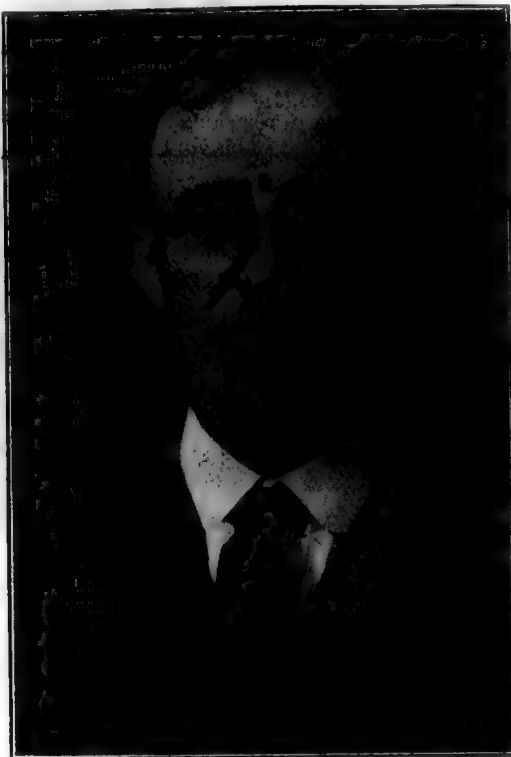

Here's another new idea, "the little nifty basket." This is an evolution of the pillow basket, conformed to an entirely different use and mission. It makes a charming little gift for the new arrival. On one side a little, old-fashioned bouquet is arranged. On the other side is the mother's favorite flower, while the center we fill with seasonable little flowers.

It is charming for the sick room, especially fine because all the flowers are in water and will keep. It is also delightful as a birthday basket, to be sent to a young lady, and the beauty of it is that it doesn't take much to fill it, while it makes a big showing for the money.

The idea of continually suggesting to the public new uses for flowers, and continually hammering on the subject, is not new, but it is vitally necessary for the upbuilding of the flower business.

School Some Day.

Now, these are all just one man's ideas. Just imagine what it would mean to have the ideas of 500 florists. Suppose our wonderful organization, the F. T. D., would establish a school or college and would enlist the services of the best minds of the country in our profession to contribute a certain amount of thought, experience and practice to such a school.

This has been the dream of the men behind that live organization ever since its conception, that some day in the near future a school or college for florists would be established, where the flower business could be properly studied and experimented with from every angle, where one could enter and learn every detail as it should be learned under the most expert instructors. If it is necessary to have schools and colleges for the proper building up of other arts, why should the finest art of the Creator, that of the growing and arrangement of flowers, be left to develop as best it can? An industry that has made the rapid strides this industry has in the last ten years is worth the best you can give it. And I certainly share the dream of these men that the day is not far distant when we can 'phone to Detroit, or some other central headquarters, and ask to be sent a man for use in our business who is skillfully trained in the various departments, who can sell as well as make up and who can suggest without being prompted. The need is great and I'm quite sure you will agree with me that the flower business will receive a tremendous impetus when this change takes place.

SPANABEL'S ROAD TO SUCCESS.

March of Progress Steady.

Singleness of purpose in the march of progress would have been characterized by Lord Bacon as narrow-minded egotism, but today such a criticism would meet much disfavor, indeed, and as a proof of this assertion we need only glance at the achievements of Hugo Stinnes, the great German manufacturer and the chief dominator of German politics today, whose creative impulse has been felt throughout the German nation. It is not necessary for us, however, to go across the water for examples of what consistent effort can do in the way of adding to the material wealth of a community and a nation. We need only glance at the success made by one in our own trade; namely, J. N. Spanabel, president of the J. N. Spanabel & Sons Co., Columbiana, O., to realize that sincerity of purpose is well rewarded.

J. N. Spanabel was born in 1864 on a small farm near Parkersburg, W. Va. When he was but a year old, his parents moved to Jackson, O., where he resided until 1883. After the death of his parents he went to Calla, O., where he found employment among the farmers and finally put in seven years at the Cherry Valley Rolling Mills, at Leetonia, Ohio.

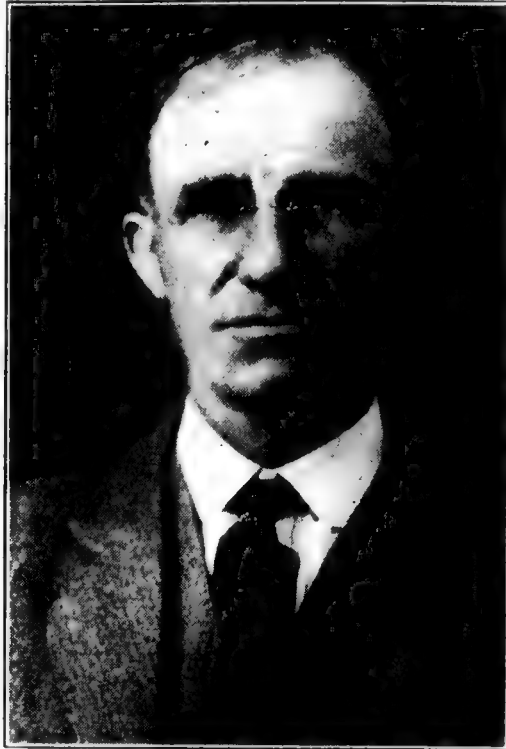

Sees Opportunity Ahead.

In 1894 he was employed by L. Tempelin & Sons, a widely known firm of florists, at Calla, O., and it was during his employment here that Mr. Spanabel conceived the idea of building up something for himself. Being aware of the fact that even to begin a realization of his dream it was necessary to have some capital, he continued to work at the rate of $1 per day and at the end of four years of saving and planning he had accumulated enough to buy one acre of ground, upon which he built a small residence and one greenhouse, 16x90 feet. Hither he moved with his wife and family of four small boys to embark upon that plan which was to lead him to the prosperity which he now enjoys, growing cut flowers and pot plants at first and adding a greenhouse now and then as he was able. Spurred on by that most remarkable trait of human nature, faith, and a sincerity of purpose, he went into the wholesale business, being at one time one of the largest growers of Pelargonium Easter Greeting and its sports.

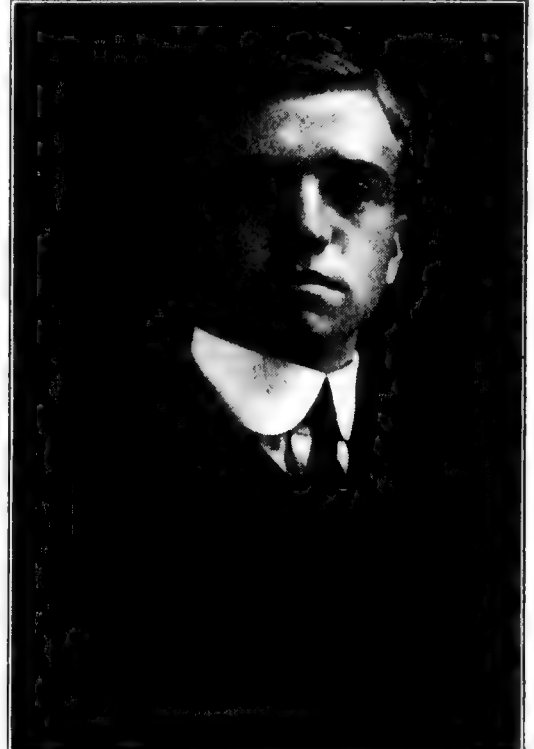

The range had grown, in 1919, from one house, 16x90 feet, to a range of 15,000 square feet of glass, doing a wholesale and retail business. One son, R. R. Spanabel, had been associated with his father for several years until January 1, 1920, when these two, with the oldest son, formed the firm of J. N. Spanabel & Sons, at Columbiana, O., where they now have seventeen acres of ground and 25,000 square feet of glass, devoted to Asparagus plumosus nanus the following statement: "It will be noted that there are a number of changes in the verbiage in the provisions dealing with these commodities, as compared with the provisions of the tariff bill as it passed the House of Representatives. Some of the rates have been increased. This is true of alfalfa seeds, which are dutiable at 2 cents per pound, and alsike and red clover, which are dutiable at 3 cents per pound, under the House bill. The ad valorem rates have been increased considerably over the rates that were provided by the House, but this only in figures, as the House ad valorem rates are based on the so-called American valuation plan, while the Senate rates are based on the foreign valuation plan now in operation, which is much lower in actual money to be paid to the government on imports. It is expected that the bill will be completed by the committee and presented to the Senate the latter part of this week or the first part of the coming week. I do not believe it will be a law, however, before the middle of August."

IN CONGRESS

SENATE'S APPROPRIATIONS.

Changes in Agricultural Bill.

Making a number of corrections in the measure as passed by the House of Representatives March 13, the Senate committee on appropriations April 3 reported the agricultural appropriation bill for 1923 to the Senate. Probably the most important change, from the viewpoint of the trade, was the deletion of the fund of $360,000 provided by the House for the annual distribution of free seeds. It is not likely, however, that this item is out permanently, since for the last few years the Senate has taken similar action only to have the appropriation restored at the insistence of the lower body.

Most of the changes made by the Senate committee were in the nature of increases, and the bill as reported to the Senate, despite the elimination of the free seed fund, carries $116,300 more than the measure passed by the House. Briefly, the most important changes in those sections of interest to the trade are as follows:

The fund for the use of the bureau of plant industry for the investigation, testing and improvement of plants yielding drugs, spices, poisons, oils and related products and by-products is increased from $39,820 to $45,820.

The appropriation for the investigation and improvement of cereals, including barberry eradication, and for the investigation of the cultivation and breeding of flax for seed purposes, is increased from $379,705 to $432,505, and of this the amount to be set aside for the location and destruction of barberry bushes is increased from $147,200 to $200,000.

Much for Study.

An increase of $5,000 is made to the $20,000 fund provided by the House for the investigation, improvement, encouragement and determination of the adaptability to different soils and climatic conditions of nuts, and the appropriation of $114,200 for the investigation and improvement of fruits and methods of fruit-growing is increased to $121,700, and this appropriation is further amended so as to provide for studies of the physiological and related changes of vegetables as well as of fruits.

As a result of these changes and of the elimination of the free seed item, the appropriations for the bureau of plant industry are reduced from $3,287,610 to $2,998,910.

An increase of $10,000, bringing the total to $178,500, is made in the appropriation under which the bureau of entomology is to investigate insects affecting deciduous fruits, orchards, vineyards and nuts. The appropriation for investigations of insects affecting citrus and other tropical and subtropical plants, and for investigations and control of the Mediterranean and other fruit flies, in cooperation with the federal horticultural board, is increased from $64,000 to $71,500, of which $10,000 is to be immediately available for investigations of the camphor scale.

The committee made a decrease of $75,000 in the fund provided to enable the Secretary of Agriculture to meet the emergency caused by the spread of the European corn borer, and only $200,000 is carried for that purpose in the bill now before the Senate.

Total appropriations for the Agricultural department, under the Senate changes in the bill, are $35,808,533.

CHANGES IN FORDNEY BILL.

Material changes have been made by the Senate finance committee in the provisions of the Fordney tariff bill, as applying to commodities dealt in by florists, according to a statement issued to the trade by William F. Gude, capital representative of the S. A. F. The committee is now sitting in executive session, but Mr. Gude, who has been keeping in touch with the legislation, reports that the following was adopted April 4:

Paragraph 752—Tariff on seedlings and cuttings of Manetti, multiflora, brier, rugosa and other rose stocks more than 3 years old, $2 per thousand; rose plants budded, grafted or grown on their own roots, 4 cents each; cuttings, seedlings and grafted or budded plants of other deciduous or evergreen ornamental trees, shrubs or vines and greenhouse stock not especially provided for, thirty per cent ad valorem.

Paragraph 753—Seedlings, layers and cuttings of apple, cherry, pear, plum, quince and other fruit stocks, $2 per thousand; grafted or budded fruit trees, cuttings and seedlings of grapes, gooseberries or other fruit vines, plants or bushes, thirty per cent ad valorem.

Paragraph 761—Grass seeds: Alfalfa, 4 cents per pound; alsike clover, 4 cents per pound; crimson clover, 1 cent per pound; red clover, 4 cents per pound; white clover, 3 cents per pound; clover not especially provided for, 2 cents per pound; millet, 1 cent per pound; timothy, 2 cents per pound; hairy vetch, 1 cent per pound, and all other grass seeds not especially provided for, 2 cents per pound.

HANDLING HOLIDAY BUSINESS.

charge of a man who knows his business thoroughly, for no matter how careful you have been with everything else, if the delivery falls down, the rest means nothing, and you will receive a black eye that will take a long time to cure. There should be enough boys and automobiles provided to handle deliveries in quick order, and your corsages should all be delivered Sunday morning before the church bells begin to ring. My advice is to start with the corsages first and follow with the plants and cut flowers.

Now, some of you may say that it can't be done, but it can. If you try hard enough, you can find plant men at some of the greenhouses, whose rush is over before yours begins, who will be glad to earn a little extra money by coming in and packing your plants. So with the other help—you can always find someone.

Another important thing, that I almost forgot, is keeping a check on what is sold. The man in charge of the order department should have a list of what cut flowers are ordered and check them as they are sold, so that you do not oversell on any item and have to substitute, for if there is anything that hurts the business, in my estimation, it is substitution.

Wenham, Mass.—B. Hammond Tracy, the Cedar Acres gladiolus man, is in Indiana on a business trip.

Louisiana, Mo.—Lloyd M. Seibert has bought the business and greenhouses for a long time conducted by Mrs. M. S. Foreman.

London, Ont.—J. Gammage & Sons, Ltd., has opened a branch store at Windsor, Ont., which is just across the river from Detroit.

Okolona, Miss.—Mrs. S. C. Jones is entering the trade and will make a specialty of chrysanthemums. Mrs. Jones will build one greenhouse at the outset.

Atlanta, Ga.—A store will be opened in approximately two weeks, in the Arcade building, by the Joy Floral Co. This firm also has a store at 548 Peach-tree street.

PERENNIALS IN SOUTH

GROWING PERENNIALS IN DIXIE.

Many Would and Could.

For the last ten years or more there has been an ever-growing interest in perennials, and this interest has not been confined alone to the north and east. In fact, there is no question asked more often by amateurs than, "What perennials will do well in the south?" Professionals, as well, often ask the same question. It seems that there must be not only a widespread interest in this subject, but a real dearth of knowledge as well.

About twelve years ago we began growing perennials rather extensively for trial purposes at Madison, Tenn. This does not mean that we grew them extensively from the standpoint of the professional nurseryman, but we had a pretty complete collection and grew them by the hundreds. Further than that, two or three friends were persuaded to plant perennials for cut flowers in commercial quantities. A few of these were planted in the vicinity of Nashville, Tenn.; others near Chattanooga, Tenn., and still others in the vicinity of Asheville, N. C. This gave opportunity to study the behavior of perennials under conditions that are pretty general in the south.

In this article I mean to give what I believe to be the best method of growing these valuable plants and to mention the varieties that have proved a success in the south. Unless they have been tried out and found to be conspicuously unsuited to this climate, I do not mean to mention those that proved of no particular value.

How to Get a Start.

Most perennials are most profitably grown from seed. This does not mean that they cannot be grown from cuttings or from root divisions, but that for the ordinary man who wishes to embark in the business of growing perennials, it is usually better to start with seed. There are exceptions to this rule and they will be given in the proper place.

Fresh seeds are essential and it is highly important that they be obtained only from reliable sources. I find that it is not always easy to get good perennial seeds. Either they are saved indiscriminately from indifferent parents, or they are old seeds that do not germinate, or something else is the matter with them. In fact, some perennial seeds lose their germinating power quickly and for this reason it is usually best to buy seeds in August or September and to specify especially that they be fresh, new-crop seed.

South of the Mason and Dixon line most perennial seeds are best planted in August, although, of course, this is not imperative.

The Seed Bed.

I much prefer to plant perennial seeds in coldframes. These need not be expensively made, but it is essential to remove the soil to the depth of a foot and to fill in with a special compost. In my estimation, the best compost for such purposes is made of a mixture of one part well rotted cow manure, one part well rotted sods, one part good garden loam, and one part sand, well mixed. Unless this soil is in strictly first-class condition, it should be put through a screen, such as is used to screen sand for cement work. That means it should be put through a screen with $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch or $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch mesh. It really is only necessary to screen the upper inch of soil.

By FLOYD BRALLIAR.

Fill the coldframe with this soil, mixing in a little air-slaked lime, a quart to enough soil for a coldframe 6x30 feet, and five or six pounds of fine bone meal in the upper inch of soil. I prefer usually to soak the coldframe thoroughly before putting on this upper inch of soil. This settles and firms the soil, so that it will hold moisture and give it off readily to the young growing seedlings. Then put on the upper inch of soil and you are ready to sow the seeds.

Most seeds are drilled in rows four inches apart, and are covered according to size. Such seeds as poppy are covered no more than one-sixteenth or one-quarter of an inch, while seeds like delphinium or sweet william will stand planting three-quarters of an inch or more deep. In general, perennial seeds bear deeper planting than greenhouse plant seeds. The seeds should not be drilled too thickly in the row, for some kinds are expected to remain where they are, at least until the following spring and, in the case of perennial poppies, longer than this.

Before sowing, I always plan to have this top inch of soil thoroughly moist, but not wet enough to be sticky. As soon as the sowing is completed, sprinkle lightly, using a sprinkling can or a hose with the nozzle screwed down to give a fine spray, and shade until the seeds germinate. Probably there is nothing better for this, and certainly there is nothing cheaper, than tobacco cloth, light cotton goods, scarcely thicker than cheesecloth. This is placed over the frame in the same way in which it would be used by tobacco growers in covering a seed plot; that is, by stretching it over the frame of the bed two or three inches above the surface of the soil.

Methods.

Most varieties of perennials, if fresh seed is used, will germinate within a week or ten days and may be allowed to grow under the cloth, if desired, until any slower-germinating varieties have come up. The chief advantages of this cloth are to prevent too rapid evaporation of moisture from the soil and to protect from insects. Care should be used to keep the soil always moist, but never too wet. It is usually best to spray the seed bed every afternoon about 3 or 4 o'clock, regulating the amount of water used according to the condition of the bed. As soon as the young seedlings are well on the way, the cloth protection is either raised high enough to give perfect ventilation or removed entirely. Future treatment of these seedlings will depend much on the variety.

Pansies may either be sold in October to those who desire to carry them over the winter or transplanted into other coldframes, where the individual plants are given more room and allowed to stand over winter for spring sales. No winter protection other than this cloth covering is needed, unless it be a few handfuls of good chaff or some similar material scattered between the plants. It is often profitable to carry pansy plants over for spring sales. Of course, it is not necessary to transplant all the plants. Only those that are too thick are transplanted, leaving enough in the seed bed to make a good, uniform stand. They not only grow as well as the transplanted plants, but one has saved a great deal of work.

If hollyhocks are wanted for seed, or if for any reason it is desirable to keep them on the place, these seedlings can be transplanted early in October to their permanent quarters in the field, although this transplanting should be delayed a month if the weather is dry and there is no means of overhead irrigation. If the plants are intended for spring sales, they should be treated the same as pansies, those that are too thick being transplanted to other quarters. Delphiniums, foxgloves, Canterbury bells, gypsophila and, in fact, most of the other perennials are best either left in the seed bed or treated the same as hollyhocks. I find it best not to set these plants in the field until March.

Practically all perennials handled in this way and given an abundance of moisture and a dose of manure water once or twice will make good, salable-sized plants ready for spring sales and will all bloom the following year. If set in the field and cultivated one summer, they will make as large growth as can be obtained in two full years in the north, and there is no reason why they should not be sold as heavy, 2-year-old plants.

Carrying Over.

It is always advisable to carry a few plants from every batch of seedlings on through the summer. There are several reasons for this. First, every grower ought to know what the plants he sells will do for his customers; second, these plants will give him a chance to select his own seed for future planting, and fresh home-grown seed is always much better than the seed that is bought from someone else and shipped in; third, this gives opportunity to select improved seed plants and will secure plants acclimated to the locality. All of these features are important.

This makes it necessary to see something about the culture of perennials outside of the seed bed. We have a long, hot summer in most states of the south; more than that, in many parts we are almost sure to have a drought. Many people have failed with perennials because they made no provision for these conditions and did not plant varieties that were acclimated. Soil for perennials should be well limed. Next a sufficient amount of manure, straw, litter, leaves, green cover crop or something of the sort must be worked into the soil to provide an abundance of humus. Practically all of our perennials grow in leaf-mold in their native haunts, and they must have humus in abundance in order to thrive in our fields. This matter cannot be overemphasized, because success or failure depends more on it than on anything else. The soil should be loose, rich and full of humus to at least the depth of one foot. Humus holds moisture better than any other element in the soil; 100 pounds of humus will hold 200 pounds of moisture, while 100 pounds of sand will scarcely hold fifty pounds of moisture. Our perennials mostly come from the moist woods and must have moisture at their roots during the hot, dry season. If irrigation is possible, it should be used, overhead irrigation being more desirable than surface irrigation. Perennials may be transplanted to the field either in the fall or in early spring, but if transplanting is done in the fall, it must be early enough for the roots to take hold of the soil before it gets cold enough to freeze the top of the soil and heave the plants out.

Some Varieties.

Although not usually thought of when we speak of perennial plants, Hyacinthus candicans, tigridia and similar summer-flowering bulbs may be grown from seed if treated like ordinary perennials, the only difference being that the more tender ones may require protection in a coldframe, when the tops have died down late in the fall.

Many of the seedlings from seed sown in August will bloom late the next summer and practically all of them will make blooming-size bulbs.

In many parts of the south, especially in the districts south of the Tennessee line, perennial seed may be sown late in September without any protection of any sort, though the seed bed should be prepared as specified above. Even seeds sown in the open in January and February are almost sure all to grow and, if properly cared for, will bloom the first year.

Such plants as double pyrethrum, perennial phlox, good oriental poppies, delphiniums, etc., are best increased either by divisions or cuttings. Those that are increased by divisions are best divided when they are dormant, in late summer or early fall, before the fall growth starts.

The plant is dug and the soil pretty well shaken from it. It will be seen that there are a number of individual buds or branches growing out from a common crown. The crown is split up, so as to allow at least one of these buds and a piece of root to each division. This work should be done in the shade, so that the roots will not be injured by drying out. The divisions are best planted in the nursery row at once, or else packed in moss or some similar substance for fall sales.

Old plants of phlox are removed to a hotbed or greenhouse early in the spring, and as soon as growth starts and the young shoots are three or four inches high they are removed as cuttings. These roots should be taken with a short knife, the cutting being made just below the surface of the soil. They are rooted in sand, the same as any other cuttings, and are as easy to root as chrysanthemums or geraniums. As soon as they are well rooted, they should be set in the open field and will make strong field-grown plants by fall. Most of these rooted cuttings, especially those from the first batch, will produce a good head of bloom the first year. It does not generally pay to grow perennial phlox from seed, although this is the only method of securing new varieties and often proves profitable.

The demand for perennials is great and seems to be increasing steadily. If one produces strictly first-class stock, there seems to be little doubt of his being able to dispose of it profitably for some time to come. Floyd Bralliar.

YES, BUSINESS IS GOOD.

If one needs evidence that the florists' business is good, it is to be had in the letters which come in such numbers to the advertising department of The Review. Like this:

We are completely sold out.—The Hillview Greenhouse Co., La Crosse, Wis., April 1, 1922. Please stop our ad, as we are sold out; had twice as many orders as we could fill.—Dowell Floral Co., Fort Wayne, April 3, 1922.

Please cut out our ad, as we are swamped. Talk about beating a path to your door—The Review has it outclassed. Haven't time to half thank you for the results, but rest assured you will hear from us again when we have a surplus.—T. W. Reed, Bell Floral Co., Temple, Tex., April 1, 1922.

OUTLOOK FOR CUT ROSES.

Maintaining Interest.

The questions are always interesting: Is the rose meeting its obligations as a cut flower subject? Is it increasing in popular demand or is the demand falling off?

These questions can easily be answered by anyone making a tour of our cut flower markets in any of the large cities. The rose is really the fundamental basis on which the bulk of the cut flower business is conducted. This applies both in the volume and in the value of the flowers sold every day. While it is true that the rose never loses its hold on the public mind, at the present time the rose is more popular than ever. This situation has been brought about, of course, by the fact that the new introductions coming in every year maintain interest.

For next year we are all awaiting the new introduction, Hill's America. Everyone who sees this variety growing is highly enthused over it. This seems to be the "perfect rose" in every sense of the word.

There is no doubt that the popularity enjoyed by the carnation several years ago was caused by the advertising and publicity afforded it by Thomas W. Lawson. That period, however, has passed. Now the rose cut flower men are alive and active and, to my mind, represent the progressive end of the florists' business. They are the men who talk "cost of production," "returns per square foot," and other terms, well known to the efficiency experts, but not so often understood by the florists.

What Last Christmas Taught.

Christmas, 1921, was marked by a large supply of long-stemmed flowers in the market, which did not, however, bring nearly the prices of recent years. The "pinching" business—that is to say, the blooming of the plants that had been "stopped" to produce quantities of flowers for Christmas—had been slightly overdone. The growers of our acquaintance who had large crops for Thanksgiving, getting then comparatively poor prices for their flowers, did not come in strongly for Christmas, but came in with a wonderful crop again the last two weeks in January, when the market was bare of good roses on account of the Christmas pinching, and then secured good results.

The lesson of last Christmas is, that the long-stemmed, expensive rose supply can easily be overdone. While the demand at such seasons is for medium-length stem, or what is known in the parlance of the trade as "No. 1" and "extras"—a demand that is practically unlimited—there is only a limited call for the extra long-stemmed roses. The wise grower observes the signs of the times and governs himself accordingly.

A variety such as Columbia, for instance, gives stems amply long enough for all average purposes without any pinching whatever, and this should be borne in mind by all growers.

Another outstanding fact is, as we predicted two years ago, that Mme. Butterfly has taken the place of Ophelia in all of the large markets. It is a much kinder, stronger grower and several shades better in color. Every day one notices, in going around the market, that until Mme. Butterfly is sold, there is little call for Ophelia. Yet I do not want to decry the wonderful influence that Ophelia has had on the cut flower industry, for I must note that

Mme. Butterfly, Columbia and the wonderful new Hill's America are all children of Ophelia.

Leaders.

What is coming? Next year it will be Hill's America. When we say this variety is going to supplant Columbia in the markets of the country, it sounds like a tall story, now that every grower knows how to grow and cut Columbia. Not so long ago, when Mr. Hill distributed Columbia and we, in our humble New Jersey way, collaborated, the complaints were long and loud regarding it. It would not produce perfect buds; it was this and it was that, and the retailers predicted it would never make a cut flower success. That, however, is now ancient history, for Columbia rapidly climbed to the top.

The fault is entirely overcome in the case of Hill's America. Not a single flower have we seen malformed or flat or disfigured in any way, in our test of this variety. This alone stamps it as an advance over Columbia. The bud is long and pointed, a feature that always gave Killarney most of its charm as a beautiful rose. It is for these reasons that I predict that Hill's America is going to chase Columbia out of the market.

White Roses Losing Demand.

So much for pink roses! We have other candidates on the horizon, but none, so far as I know, to touch Hill's America.

How is Angelus progressing in the market? Here we have a curious condition. For years the only white rose that could be successfully handled was White Killarney, which for a while was quite productive. This eventually produced Double White Killarney, which is a wonderful variety where it can be grown without mildew, although it is not free-flowering. Therefore, the growers have been looking for a white rose that would be free and clean-growing. Then the "flu" epidemic came in the fall of 1918, and what up to then had been the almost invariable custom of sending only white flowers to funerals was changed. Any flower, regardless of color, was gratefully accepted on account of the scarcity. This fashion of using different-colored flowers for funerals has continued up to this time, wherefore the florist is no longer obligated to grow white roses. Consequently, the strong demand for a good white rose is no longer with us.

Red roses are still in an unsatisfactory condition. Crusader enjoys a measure of popularity in some markets, and Hadley also, but the latter produces so few flowers that it is hardly worth growing. We hear stories of wonderful red seedlings from the north and west, and there is no question that one or two good red roses could be well taken care of. Just at present one must be satisfied with either Crusader or Hadley, until something better presents itself. Milady is also well received by some growers.

Some of us believe that rose growers can look to the future with more equanimity than can any other branch of the profession. Their product, when well grown, always has the pull on the market, and I believe this condition will continue.

HAS KEY COME BACK?

To the query of the editor of the American Rose Annual, "Why has Francis Scott Key come back?" answer is given by Wallace R. Pierson in the 1922 Annual thus: "Francis Scott Key has not 'come back.' The fact is, it has never been away! A big rose, such as this, is not the real rose of commerce that Columbia, Premier, Mme. Butterfly and Pilgrim can be—it doesn't bloom freely enough. It grows very slowly in winter and can never be anything but a 'premium' rose. By that I mean a rose that must sell at a great advance in price over the other varieties mentioned. American Beauty has been dropping from the market, and Francis Scott Key has advanced in proportion to the drop in American Beauty.

"There has been one other element which enters into its popularity, and that is the publicity given this rose at the big New York flower shows—and to F. R. Pierson belongs the credit of bringing this rose into prominence. Those who have seen the wonderful flowers of Francis Scott Key at these shows have recognized real merit, and, while it may never be widely grown and never be the flower of the masses, it ranks at the top of the 'premium' roses, and the specialty growers who grow it will find it profitable."

Those who saw the vase of this variety staged by F. R. Pierson at Indianapolis will echo the second paragraph of the Cromwell rosarian's remarks.

ROSES SPOTTED BLACK.

Please examine the rose leaves and foliage which I have mailed you. They were taken from new Columbia and Russell plants. These plants are covered with black spots. I should like to learn the cause of these spots and how to prevent them from appearing. These spots did not appear until about five days after we had given the two houses a good mulching of cow manure. We have ten other houses which were handled in identically the same way, but the manure was taken from different cow stables. T. G. Co.—Ill.

There were no black spots on the leaves on arrival. This condition of the plants was probably due to a fungus, caused by the application of manure. This sometimes happens when the manure is fresh, but, as a rule, disappears in a few days and usually does no harm to the plants. There was considerable red spider on the leaves. A good, heavy syringing will wash them off and will, no doubt, clean off the black spots at the same time. W. J. K.

CURING ROSE DISEASES.

I am sending you a few specimens of my roses. The plants were potted for a few weeks and then bedded during December. Some of them are good, but about twenty-five out of 400 are like the ones sent you. Will you kindly examine these and tell us what disease it is they have, how to cure it and its cause? J. W. L.—Neb.

I have mailed you a box of Russell rose leaves. Will you kindly examine these leaves and advise us how the plants from which they were taken can be cured? The plants were benched last August and September from small, grafted stock. The leaves curl and the plants do not look healthy. They have had but little feeding, but were placed in new soil with some manure. W. R.—Ill.

From the appearance of the leaves, there seems to be some alkali either in the soil or in the water, and if the soil is allowed to become dry or the plants are underfed, they will take the alkali up through the roots, causing the edges of the leaves to turn brown and giving the plants a stunted appearance at this time of the year. A good feeding of cow manure, thoroughly watered into the soil, will overcome this trouble. W. J. K.

HELP FROM READERS

CURING GERANIUM POISONING.

I have read the article on geranium poisoning in The Review for March 23 and wish to make a few comments that may be of value to brother florists. This article throws light on a matter which has been worrying me for years. Every spring I had suffered untold agonies from an infection on the face and hands. It seemed to be under the skin. No one knows what it is until meeting with the same experience, and I can sympathize with anyone afflicted with it. Now the cause of it seems clear in my mind. In the spring, when the heat becomes stronger, this disease would always appear, apparently under the skin, and I could not prevent myself from rubbing it, which caused redness and swelling. Our doctor said it was "the nerves" and not a local infection. Naturally, I believed him.

Now, I sell the greater part of our flowers and plants from a truck, in the surrounding towns. One day I was in a town where there dwelt a physician with whom I was well acquainted. I went to his office and told him my difficulty and said that I did not want him to "monkey" unless he could cure me. He said that he could not cure me, but that he could advise the use of a remedy that would give me relief, at least, until I could see a skin specialist. He advised me to get a bottle of Dr. Belding's skin remedy. I protested against local application, as I had been convinced by the other doctor that the cause of my discomfort was "nerves."

However, I purchased a bottle of the remedy before leaving town, applying it to my face upon returning home. The relief was instantaneous, but every few days or so the trouble would return. This was a puzzling circumstance, and I thought that the effects of the remedy had worn off, but it is all clear to me now. After Memorial day we are always sold out of blooming geraniums and it is necessary to wait for a few days until a number of geraniums have bloomed again before I start for town with a load. However, as soon as I handle the plants I receive a new "dose" of the poisoning.

The article you printed put me on my guard. As the time is now about ripe for the disease to appear again, I will commence to bathe my face before handling the geraniums, and thus avoid the disease.

Poisoning by geraniums was unknown to me before I read about it in The Review, and the article was certainly worth a great deal to me. I think if F. Holland will get a bottle of the remedy mentioned above and use it as per directions, he will be pleased with the results. In the event that he does use it, and does or does not secure relief, I hope he will be kind enough to give The Review the details connected with his case.

We discontinued handling primroses years ago, because Mrs. Bushyager was severely poisoned by them.

SOAP CURE FOR POISONING.

After reading the article on poisoning by geraniums in The Review for March 23, and learning of the predicament in which F. Holland finds himself, I will relate an experience of my own with poisoning. I have never heard of geranium poisoning, but I have had one florist who was poisoned with Primula obconica, and I cannot touch a plant myself without being badly poisoned. Last week both of my hands and arms were badly infected with the disease by merely lifting and wrapping one plant. I suffered a great deal, indeed, for about twelve hours, but sought relief by using common laundry or Ivory soap, which I rubbed on until a lather formed. This lather I permitted to dry on my hands and arms and repeated the application often; the oftener repeated the quicker the cure. Some time ago I wrote about this same remedy, suggesting that it be pasted in a conspicuous place—for instance, on the potting shed door—but the suggestion was, doubtless, unheeded, although it was published in The Review.

WHEN YOU WANT TO KNOW.

If there's anything you want to know about trade matters and don't, there is one inexhaustible mine for reference at your disposal. Review readers are always willing to help their fellows. It seems there is always someone who knows whatever a reader asks. More than that, whoever knows, freely tells.

For instance: An editorial paragraph in The Review of March 16 stated a subscriber's query as to the name and address of the manufacturer of "Gnarr's Insecticide." Within a week The Review had received replies from four different readers, who stated that the subscriber evidently meant the firm of J. Schnarr & Co., Orlando, Fla. This firm manufactures a spray formula which is largely used for the control of white fly on citrus trees in Florida. The firm manufactures a number of sprays and sprayers and has factories and warehouses in several cities of the state. This information was given briefly by three readers. The fourth wrote at greater length as follows:

"The insecticide inquired about is one of the most common of the insecticides used in Florida in the control of white fly on citrus trees. Of course, it is only effective in the larvæ stage, but with systematic use it should be possible to eliminate white fly in greenhouses.

"We use a lime-sulphur spray material here for combating red spider, and I have often wondered why it has not been brought into use in greenhouses, as my experience in its use, both on Asparagus plumosus and citrus trees, has proved it more effective than any methods I have seen tried in greenhouses. It can be diluted to such an extent that it will not injure tender foliage. It is quite inexpensive. We pay 40 cents a gallon for it in small quantities and one gallon will suffice for two complete sprayings of one acre of ground and clean out a heavy infestation of spider. The basis of the effectiveness of lime-sulphur solution is not as a direct poison, but the solution, in drying, leaves a residue that readily oxidizes and produces sulphurous acid fumes that destroy the spider even when secluded in protected places."

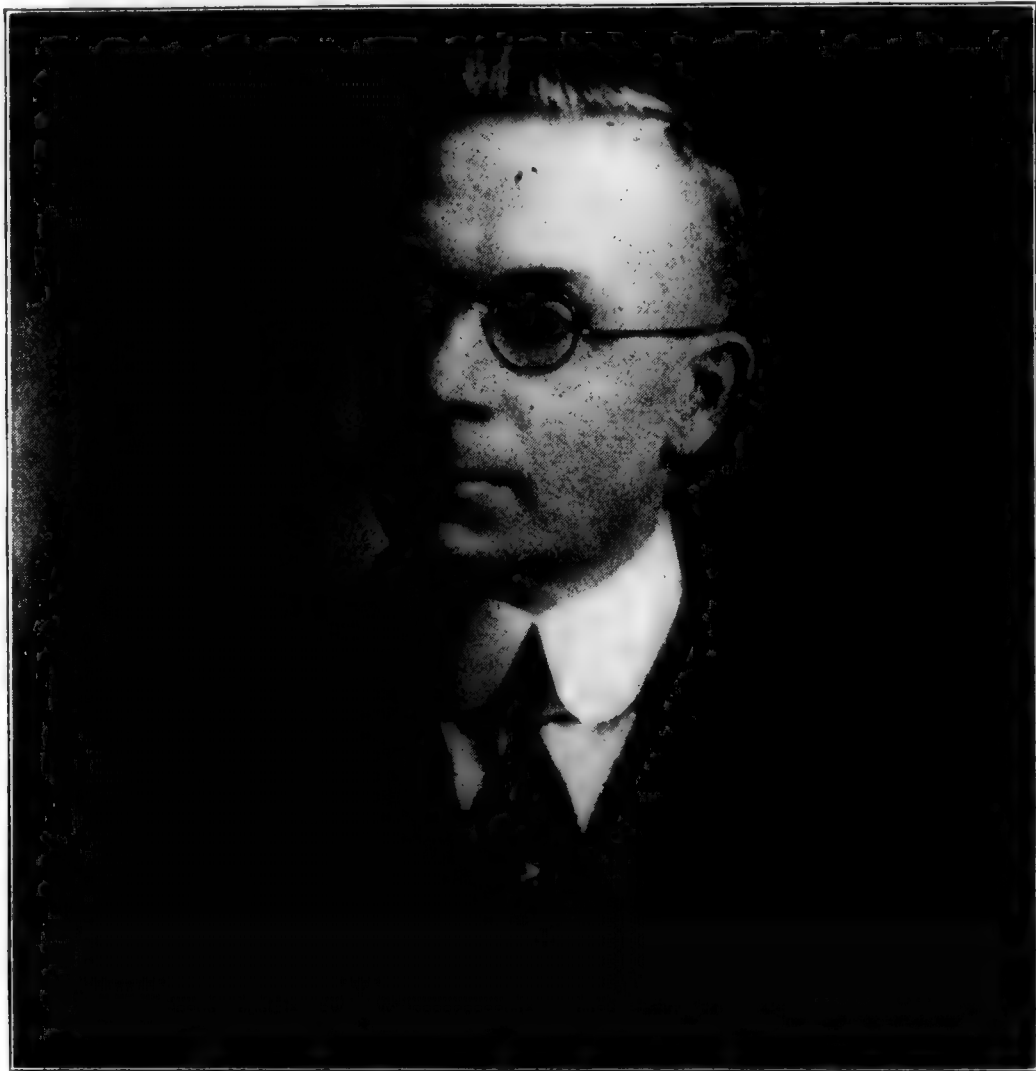

BORDEAUX MIXTURE.

Bordeaux mixture is a bluish-green compound that settles out when freshly slaked lime and a solution of copper sulphate are mixed. Many formulas have been recommended and used. The 5-5-50 formula may be regarded as standard. In such a formula the first figure refers to the number of pounds of copper sulphate, the second to the pounds of the stone or hydrated lime, and the third to the number of gallons of water. Bordeaux must often be used as weak as 2-2-50, on account of injury to some plants.

To make fifty gallons of Bordeaux mixture, proceed as follows:

Pulverize five pounds of copper sulphate (blue vitriol), place in a glass, wooden or brass vessel, and add two or three gallons of hot water. In another vessel slake five pounds of quick-

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE AND WHY

J. C. WALLEY.

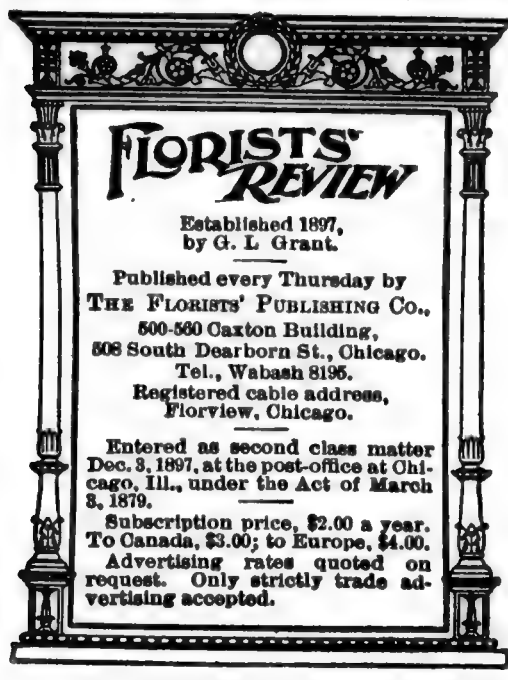

FROM flour to flowers has been the occupational evolution of J. C. Walley, newly elected president of the Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Association. Working with his father, Mr. Walley grew up in the flour business at Butler, Pa., his birthplace. Then, when the introduction of the roller process of grinding flour began to make times hard for the old school of flour men, the young Mr. Walley fared forth into the retail hardware business, which he left in 1913 to enter the flower business. He entered in the company of H. L. Blind and C. E. Glenn, of Evans City, Pa., and Smith Bros., of the Overbrook Nursery, Pittsburgh. By these men five greenhouses were erected, Mr. Walley acting as secretary of the company they organized. In 1915 this firm consolidated with the McCallum Co., of Pittsburgh, of which Mr. Walley is now a director. Since the consolidation a number of houses have been built and planted with roses under Mr. Walley's management.

lime in a small amount of water. When the copper sulphate is all dissolved, pour into a barrel and add water to make forty or forty-five gallons. Now strain the lime into this, using a sieve fifty meshes to the inch or a piece of cheesecloth supported by ordinary screening. Stir thoroughly, and add water to the 50-gallon mark. The flocculent substance which settles is the effective fungicide. Always stir vigorously before filling the sprayer. Never add the strong lime to strong vitriol. Always add a large amount of water to one or the other first. If used alone, blue vitriol would not only wash off quickly in a rain, but would cause a severe burning of foliage. Lime is added to neutralize this burning effect of the copper. If the lime were absolutely pure, only slightly more than one pound would be required to neutralize this burning effect. For many purposes an excess of lime is not objectionable and may be desirable. On ornamentals an excess of lime augments spotting. In such cases the least amount of lime possible should be used. Determine this by applying the cyanide test, as follows:

Secure from the druggist 10 cents' worth of potassium ferrocyanide (yellow prussiate of potash) and dissolve it in water in an 8-ounce bottle. Cut a V-shaped slit in one side of the cork, so that a few drops of the liquid can be obtained. When you add the lime to the mixture, with constant stirring, test with an occasional drop of the ferrocyanide. Enough lime has been added when the ferrocyanide fails to give a reddish-brown color.

WESTWARD the course of floriculture takes its way. The national flower show was at Indianapolis and the S. A. F. convention next August will be at Kansas City. Following Horace Greeley's advice?

THE Indianapolis show was the first national flower show held west of Philadelphia for a decade and a half. Its success converted any who still thought that floricultural interest flourished only on the Atlantic seaboard.

It is reported that the associations of Dutch bulb growers and plantmen are raising a fund of $50,000 to promote the sale of their products in this country. That is, if the coming conference at Washington does not make such action useless.

CONSTITUENTS are receiving packets of seed from their congressmen now, just as the Senate and the House are preparing for their annual wrangle. Some day the Senate may win, but the predilection for "pork" seems too strong for it to happen in the present Congress.

CARNATION cuttings are becoming well sold up. Anyone with a surplus can convert it into cash if the stock is good and the prices right. Of course the greatest demand is for the newer varieties, but there are buyers who want Enchantment and won't take anything else.

THE business tide is turning. In a recent circular of a manufacturer of arsenate of lead we find this sentence: "If you desire to cancel any unfilled orders now on file we will be glad to accept such cancellation if advised immediately." If insecticide people can talk that way, there may be hope for the fertilizer business—and the seedsman can cheer up.

WHETHER the miners' strike is as complete a walk-out as the union leaders say, or will prove as short-lived as the operators predict, the days since the suspension of work have been too few to indicate. Reserves of fuel are large and the weather is opening, so that alarm over the situation is not great. Most florists have enough coal on hand to carry them till summer, when they hope resumption of work on a lower wage scale will enable them to buy fuel cheaper.

WHILE no large ranges are contemplated, many florists have placed orders for small additions of glass. With this type of job all the construction companies are busy.

DELPHINIUMS may be forced without difficulty and are highly attractive in basket work. D. Belladonna is light blue and D. Bellamosa is dark blue. Their habits and culture are the same.

AN editorial in the Pittsburgh Gazette praises the displays in the park conservatories in that city, but deplores the fact that the plants are not labeled so that the public may become familiar with plant names. Those who saw how such labels were studied by the public at the Indianapolis show will agree with the newspaper.

SOMETHING TO SHOOT AT.

Large as was last week's Review, this week's issue is larger, constituting a record in size, 224 pages and cover.

The weight of the paper used to print it is seven and one-half tons. If the 13,000 copies were laid one on top of another, the pile would equal in height the new Wrigley building tower in Chicago.

Eighteen presses are required to print this week's edition of The Review, six starting Tuesday night and twelve Wednesday night. If only one press did the work, ten and one-half days would be required for the job. As it is, every copy is mailed by quitting time Thursday.

OUR FIFTH SHOW.

Despite diverse handicaps, the fifth national flower show ended at Indianapolis April 1 as a thorough success. Everyone who attended felt amply repaid for so doing. Praise of the Indiana florists for their energy, of the national flower show committee for its perseverance, of the Cleveland leaders for their gameness, of the members of the trade in many parts of the country for their loyal support—such praise was heard on every hand. All of it is deserved, well deserved.

Emphasis should be placed on the loyal support of the trade. The value of the national flower show is that, though the public's attendance is largely local, the trade looks on it as "our" show. It is not one city's show, a state show or a sectional show; it is a national show, to which the florists of the entire country contribute and in which all of them are interested. While it is valuable as an advertisement of our products to the public—a most forceful advertisement—it is even more valuable as a bond that ties the trade in greater unity. The success of the Indianapolis exhibition leads many to look forward to "our next show." Let the sixth come soon.

GOING US ONE BETTER.

The florists blazed the way in nationally advertising a trade slogan. They aroused the jewelers to action. The latter coined "Gifts That Last" to rival "Say It with Flowers." Now they seem to be going us one better in putting their slogan and their wares before the public.

In the Saturday Evening Post of April 1 appears a full-page advertisement of the jewelers, with its topic, "Correctness at Easter-tide." It costs $5,000 a shot, but it looks like $5,000 well shot, since two and a quarter million people bought copies of that Post and probably a few million more read them.

We don't believe anyone will buy a clock or a ring instead of an Easter lily next week, but persons who read the query, "Whose Birthday This Month?" are likely to buy "Gifts That Last" if we don't insist strongly enough that they "Say It with Flowers."

GET BUSY EARLY.

The trade will have to get busy early, it appears, if it is to refute the charges of profiteering at Mothers' day and counteract the propaganda against flowers spread by those who make such charges. The following dispatch appeared in the Kansas City Star March 28:

HIT AT FLOWER PROFITEERS.

Nebraska Organization Would Omit Carnations Mothers' Day.

Omaha, March 28.—Mrs. Max A. Hostetler, of Shelton, Neb., president of the Nebraska auxiliary of the International Association for Mothers' day, issued a statement yesterday in which she said the association asks that no flowers be worn on Mothers' day, the second Sunday in May, on account of profiteering and "false propaganda that 'any flower will do'" for the occasion.

"We are doing this," she said, "because of the vast number of complaints coming from persons who wished to wear carnations last year, but who were unable to pay the price."

While no person or organization has sufficient authority or influence to dictate to the public how Mothers' day shall be observed and while statements of this kind are not, experience has shown, so damaging as they sound, we should do what we can to prevent them or to counteract them. This is a job for the florists in whose community such propaganda appears. Send the editor of your local paper a statement of the facts and a bunch of flowers. That will do the work.

A COUPLE OF POST CARDS.

Nothing is so good as an example. The Review has repeated, time and again, that florists who sell plants at wholesale should systematically acknowledge orders and advise customers in case shipment is to be delayed. Two post cards, as has before been said, would do the work. Here are two now used by a Kentucky firm of wholesale plant growers. The first reads:

Dear Customer:

We are shipping your plants today and hope they reach you promptly. We have tried to send you good plants that will "Put Profit in Your Pocket" so that you will remember us again when in need of plants. Thanking you.

The other card, one which every shipper of plants should have for his own use, reads as follows:

Dear Customer:

Your letter just received and we thank you very much. The order will have our prompt and careful attention.

We will ship the plants (approximate date) and notify you day of shipment.

These two cards, if used by every florist who undertakes to do business with fellow florists by mail, would remove a great deal of troublesome annoyance. If you haven't something of the kind, use these forms, or part of them if you wish, and have your local printer run off a few hundred of each.

OBITUARY

W. L. Morris.

His many friends throughout the United States will regret to learn of the death of William L. Morris, who had been engaged in the flower business in Los Angeles for many years. Mr. Morris died at his home, 1279 West Adams street, in that city, March 26, and the funeral was held March 28. Mr. Morris had not been well for several years, but only a few days before his death he was around as usual. He was formerly in business at Des Moines, Ia., leaving there to go to New Orleans, from which city he moved to Los Angeles about sixteen years ago. He was formerly connected with the H. N. Gage Co. and more recently with S. Murata & Co. and the L. A. Floral Co., with which he was at the time of his death. He was also in business for himself on Broadway for some time. Mr. Morris was 66 years of age, and his wife and daughter survive him.

H. R. R.

Robert A. Black.

Robert Alexander Black, for twenty-two years superintendent of the Juniper Hill cemetery, Bristol, R. I., and a landscape gardener and forester for many years in Scotland, before he came to America, died at his home on Federal street, Warren, R. I., Sunday, March 26, at the age of 72 years.

Mr. Black took a deep interest in everything pertaining to floriculture and was apprenticed to learn the gardeners' trade when still in his teens. After completing his apprenticeship, he was associated with several large horticultural enterprises in his native land, and became a recognized authority and expert gardener, forester and floriculturist. In April, 1898, he came to Bristol, R. I., to assume charge, as superintendent of the Juniper Hill cemetery, where he had since remained.

He is survived by his wife, Margaret M. Black, and one sister. W. H. M.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Last week was a rather hard one in the New York cut flower markets. Arrivals were heavy and they did not meet with a demand sufficiently responsive to make clearances easy, and concessions were common. The oversupply was largely in the bulbous flower section, warm days having brought in an immense quantity of tulips, narcissi and the like. A lot of stock intended for Easter matured in spite of all precautions, and added to the legitimate supply. Both markets were dumping grounds for a lot of potted stock, which was moved at low values, but, even so, insured money back to the growers. With such a wealth of this material, staples, of course, suffered, in that minimum values only were maintained, in spite of shortenings in cuts, which, ordinarily, would mean advanced prices.

Arrivals of roses are less than they have been for two or three weeks, growers evidently looking to an Easter crop. American Beauty is in supply rather greater than the demand, and prices of specials have dropped to a range of $25 to $60 per hundred, with shorter stock not so much affected. Last week's quotations still apply to the hybrid teas, although prices are firmer, and, when quality is an object, some advances are noted.

Carnations are plentiful, but seem to hold their own, the best of them selling within a range of $4 to $6 per hundred. The quality is generally good, with a good choice as to variety.

The orchid supply is plentiful, with a demand only moderate, so that prices are somewhat normal, within a range of $25 to $75 per hundred for ordinaries and specials bringing as much as $100 per hundred. There seem to be few signs of holding flowers for the Easter market.

Lilies are plentiful, with sales within a price range of $15 to $20 per hundred. Much stock arriving is short in stem, although no fault can be found with the flowers. Some of the wholesalers are posting announcements of the booking of Easter orders at $25 per hundred. A few rubrums are coming in, but sales drag at $8 to $15 per hundred. Lily of the valley continues in oversupply, and sales of freshly arrived stock command only a range of $1 to $5 per hundred sprays, the top price rather difficult of accomplishment. Gardenias are in better supply, but stock moves slowly at $2 to $4 per dozen.

The list of miscellaneous flowers is large. Darwin tulips of good quality bring from 60 cents to $1 per bunch. Ordinary tulips bring from 30 cents to $1 per bunch. Daffodils range from 30 cents to 60 cents per bunch, meeting the competition of quantities of southern-grown outdoor stock. Mignonette brings 35 cents to 75 cents per bunch, and snapdragons 25 cents to $2. Callas are plentiful at $1.50 to $3 per dozen. Violets are irregular, the quotations being about 25 cents to 50 cents per hundred, with the quality at minimum. Other items available are myosotis, pansies, bouvardia, stocks, wallflowers, gladioli, freesias, daisies, calendulas, buddleia, acacias, hyacinths, irises, lilacs and primroses. Sweet peas are in immense supply, and it is hard to get $2 per hundred for flowers of exhibition quality.

Various Notes.

Frank H. Traendly, of Traendly & Schenck, arrived home from Indianapolis, where he attended the national flower show, Thursday, March 30, and was able to give first personal impressions of the show. He says it was a fine show, and the S. A. F. is to be congratulated on having staged it under the conditions with which it was confronted. He speaks highly of the noble support given the show by the Indianapolis trade; in fact, the trade within a wide radius of the city. C. H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., was around the markets Monday, April 3, and he confirms Mr. Traendly's impressions. Roman J. Irwin has also returned from the Indianapolis show.

A meeting has been called of the Allied Florists' Trade Association, for Friday, April 21, at 3 p. m., in the Engineering Societies' building, for all growers, retailers, seedsmen, supply men and greenhouse builders. This is to be a mass meeting, at which publicity is to be discussed and a program of publicity will be outlined. J. H. P.

Max Schling will begin his school for florists June 27. This year, however, it will last but five days instead of ten, since the period last year seemed too long for many to remain away from their businesses. From the number of inquiries already received, the list of those in attendance is expected to be a large one.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Last week was a dispiriting one in the Chicago market. There were seven consecutive days during which we had scarcely a glimpse of the sun. The bad weather followed one of the most active days the market had seen this season, and it seemed as though the stock then purchased by the retailers hung on their hands as long as the clouds hung in the sky. Of course, production was light under such dismal weather conditions, but, the demand being still lighter, prices lost most of the good gains of the preceding fortnight. April 1 the sun came out, the snow melted, all the world was cheerful and the market had a big day, but it was nature's All Fools' day joke on the trade, as rain fell nearly all day Sunday and the retailers were left with Saturday's purchases on hand Monday to start the new week—which is a situation similar to getting off on the wrong foot.

Business was so dull and dispiriting last week that wholesalers and retailers alike sought to forget it for a day or two by a trip to Indianapolis to see the national flower show. Enthusiastic reports by those who returned early encouraged others to go, and by the end of the week pretty nearly everybody had given the display the once over. The general report was, "If you didn't go you missed the best show I've ever seen."

Wholesalers who went to the show devoted a good share of their attention to canvassing the Easter prospect, seeking the well known retailers to get their orders for Easter or at least to get their ideas as to the probable demand. Taking the buyers as a class, the sellers found there is general prediction that there will be a large demand, perhaps the largest ever, but they were not quite ready to record their confidence in the tangible form of orders, not even for lilies. It is the almost universal belief that the public will buy extensively of the moderately priced articles, but that the sale for high-priced stock will be limited in most localities. Inquiry indicates that there will be few lilies, especially in pots. One would think the condition would lead to the desire to place orders without delay, but it does not. Retailers recognize that the advance order price of 25 cents for good lilies is fully justified under the circumstances, but only a small number of buyers have ordered. Wholesalers believe there will be a last-minute rush which will send lily prices up. Local retailers are hunting pot plants, but find few. Most of the lilies are in benches, which means irregular blooming. Some growers already were cutting heavily last week, when there was almost no demand. Warm, bright weather now may give the growers a problem.

Roses will be the chief item of Easter supply. Carnations will be less abundant than in other years. Bulbous stock, too, will be in smaller supply, due to the lateness of Easter. Violets will be about gone. On the other hand, snapdragon is late this year and will be in smaller supply than for some earlier Easters. Sweet peas should be abundant, if the weather is bright. There are a few Spanish-American irises in the market. They sell at three to four times the price of pre-quarantine days.

The market was heavily supplied with stock April 3. There was a large volume of business moving, but not enough to lift prices out of the slump they suffered during the bad weather of last week. The general verdict was that business was all right, but that prices at present are too low to be profitable. The continued dark, wet weather has begun to affect the quality of stock. Roses are off color and carnations are soft. Sweet peas are dropping their buds quite badly. Everybody is hoping that the rain will stop by and by and that the weather, when it clears, will be cool up to Easter.

Gladioli in some quantity are arriving from the south. They do not stand the journey especially well, apparently not being cut soon enough for best shipping, and therefore the prices received are low. Indoor gladioli from local growers will not be ready until near the end of April.

has been put in to connect the store and workroom. Peter Duris says business is growing steadily and the additional facilities will be most welcome.

Frank Oechslin is building a new range of houses at his place in Harlem and it is reported he has changed his mind about selling out and retiring. Instead, it is said, he will remove the Quincy street greenhouses to the Harlem place, sell off the lots for building purposes and enlarge his plant-growing operations at the location where the land is not so valuable.

The funeral of W. T. Fenton, a venerable, widely known and highly respected banker, created a large demand for choice flowers April 3. There were hundreds of fine pieces at the service.

Capable retail assistants again are in demand. Nearly all the busy stores would like to get some good help for the next seven or eight weeks.

Ernest Oechslin, at River Forest, reported as early as April 4 that he was booked up on his Easter plants.

ferns in storage are not exaggerated and that any dealer could sell out in a week if he chose. Only by cutting down shipments can the supply be strung out until new stock is ready.

A. J. Stahelin and family were here last week on their way home to Redford, Mich., which now is practically a part of Detroit. They have spent two months at Los Angeles. Mr. Stahelin bought a car on his arrival at the coast and they covered the southern half of California pretty thoroughly. He says he feels no urge to join the rapidly growing colony of eastern florists on the coast.

J. S. Wilson, of Des Moines, spent April 1 in this market on his way home from Indianapolis.

L. R. Bohannon spent several days most pleasantly, renewing acquaintance here on his way home from the Indianapolis show. Mr. Bohannon made a fine success of retailing in Chicago, and likes to come back, but he is well pleased with the wholesale business and with Kansas City as his home.

We have had with us for several days G. L. Roberts, manager of the Elitch Gardens Co., Denver, the greenhouse superintendent of that concern, J. Edward Johnson, superintendent of the Pikes Peak Floral Co., at Colorado Springs, and Emil Glauber, a former Denver florist, who has not lost his interest in the trade. They report business excellent in Colorado and the mountain country and, on the way to and from Indianapolis, inspected greenhouse establishments in several cities with an eye to future building. They liked the W. A. Rowe place at Kirkwood especially well.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

You may recall that conditions were favorable for the week ending March 25; that the market closed in better shape than at any time during the month. Well, this condition changed Monday, March 27. The market opened with a large supply of stock and with few orders. The supply was heavy Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, with little demand. Dark weather reduced this supply on the last two days to an extent that enabled the demand to keep pace with it, but the accumulation of the previous days was hard to sell at any price. Some of it was sold at reduced figures; some of it was jobbed to the street men. The market was badly demoralized.

Taking the broad facts, it is interesting to note that the break in the market was caused by the warm, springlike weather rushing into bloom a vast quantity of stock; that, as soon as the weather changed, the market improved; that good flowers sold best, provided the price was not too high; that the varieties of flowers most neglected were the varieties that will be much sought at Easter — orchids, valley, Sweetheart roses and snapdragon.

No change is made in most of the prices given on the list, because these are the prices that rule in this market. But with great quantities of perishable flowers, many of them soft when received, and no business, prices are misleading. For example, 100 good daffodils will cost $3 or $4, according to quality and market conditions at the time of sale, but 1,000 daffodils that were Pennock Returns.

Samuel S. Pennock, president of the S. A. F., was seen at his commission house, in Philadelphia, Monday, April 3. Mr. Pennock returned Saturday afternoon from the national flower show, at Indianapolis, and, although evidently much pressed by the accumulation of business that required his personal attention, he courteously made time to talk of the big event that has just ended so successfully in the Hoosier capital.

"It was rainy during the show. Some days it rained all day. I was in Indianapolis from the day before the show opened until last Friday, and I think it rained on every one of those eight days. It seemed as though the rain chose the psychological moment when it would do most harm in keeping people away from the show. For instance, it rained at 2 o'clock and cleared at 3; it rained at 7 o'clock and stopped at 8. Last Friday it rained all day. The rain must have had a great effect on the attendance. We know that many people from the country districts could not come because the roads were so bad. Despite all this, the attendance averaged 10,000 to 12,000 a day, and I think there will be a good balance on the right side of the ledger.

"An idea of the size of the show may be gathered from the fact that the governor of Indiana spent two hours there one afternoon without any of the committee finding him in the crowd.

"The general effect of the show was the finest I have ever seen. The hall was fully twice as large as our hall in Philadelphia where the last national flower show was held. You got the whole effect at once, immediately upon entering. It was a great advantage to be able to unload even the largest exhibits from the motor trucks just where they were to be arranged. The motors with exhibits for the center of the hall went down an inclined plane at the rear, while those intended for the sides of the hall were on a level.

"Everybody worked awfully hard and they all deserve a lot of credit for the way that things were done. The westerners supported their show in good shape and I think that the exhibits were well distributed and thoroughly representative of all sections of the country. I was particularly pleased at the support given the show by the rose growers of Philadelphia, who made a fine display. The west put up splendid roses, but the only variety in which they outclassed us was Milady. Some of the exhibitors did not clearly distinguish between exhibition and commercial stock. There was one rose competition in particular, where I was called in after the judges had made up their

"I think that too many small exhibitors hesitate to enter. A man told me that he had six cibotiums that were as fine as anything in the show and he wished he had brought them. Now, those six cibotiums would have been a most welcome addition, and I have no doubt that there were many more such exhibits that we might have had.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club was held at the Adelphia Tuesday evening, April 4.

There were many ladies in the large gathering to hear Charles Henry Fox give an analysis of the flower business. He divided his subject into three parts: Impression, sentiment and sympathy. He gave beautiful illustrations, making the pillow basket and other masterpieces. Mark P. Mills enlivened the proceeding by singing "The Old Gray Mare."

There were exhibits of choice Easter plants by Godfrey Aschmann, Emil H. Geschick, William K. Harris and Macaw Bros. The M. Rice Co. made its debut as exhibitors with handsome home-made baskets arranged by Charles E. Shackerman.

A Labor Saver.

Visitors to the business show in the commercial museum were given an opportunity to witness the Pitney-Bowes postal meter machine in operation. This machine seals, stamps and cancels 200 envelopes a minute. From the business show in the commercial museum the machine was taken to the office of the Henry F. Michell Co., where it is now in operation. When seen there last week the meter, which was set for 10,000 stamps, had registered over 4,000.

The postoffice requirement is that the date shall be stamped one hour in advance of delivery there. The machine not only saves time and work to the Henry F. Michell Co., but also to the postal authorities as well. This is believed to be the first postal meter machine to be put into operation by a seed house in this country.

Philadelphia at Indianapolis.

It is a pleasure to be able to say that Philadelphia helped to make the great show at Indianapolis last week. The fact that it was the first national flower show since the war, under the leadership of a Philadelphia executive, made co-operation imperative. The distance and perishable nature of the stock were obstacles to be overcome. That they were successfully overcome adds to the credit of the achievement.

HELP WANTED

We have openings for several greenhouse men who are looking for a connection that means a bright future for the right man; our proposition is one that appeals to every greenhouse man and is backed by a house that has years of good reputation behind it; our products are manufactured on the basis of high quality; we have friends and customers from San Francisco to New York and from Minneapolis to New Orleans; we are looking for men only of the highest caliber, men who are willing to work and who are ambitious enough to want something more than just a job; our line requires traveling, as our salesmen call on practically every greenhouse in the United States and we have openings for 1922 in very fine territories; write fully, giving references in your first letter, as no applicant will be considered without the very higher references.

Address No. 563, care Florists' Review, 508 S. Dearborn St., Chicago.

HELP WANTED

FOR SALE

A well established nursery doing a landscape business; two-thirds of business done in city of 100,000 and good trade in surrounding towns; have $7,000.00 in orders; if interested, will give particulars; this proposition will bear closest inspection as it is a rare opportunity to get a good business at a reasonable price; selling on account of age.

Address No. 227, care Florists' Review, 508 S. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

FOR SALE

A place in one of the finest suburbs of Chicago that can safely be called one of the best establishments in the country doing a retail and wholesale florists' business, is to be sold. A sound, successful business that has thrived for forty years, serving a high-class retail trade and doing wholesale business with Chicago's leading florists.

Everything is new and in the best of condition, the entire place having been rebuilt recently and new equipment installed. There are eight new and modern Moninger iron-truss greenhouses covering 30,000 square feet, equipped with a new heating plant and devoted to a general line of pot plants. The spacious store is equipped along modern lines with new fixtures and is connected to the greenhouses by a large, well arranged service building. At the rear of the range is a fine 10-room residence and a heated garage big enough for six cars. There are three motor trucks and all other necessary equipment. In addition there are thirteen 50-foot city lots next to the store and greenhouses.

It is situated on a busy thoroughfare that divides two large suburbs of Chicago that are populated with the flower-buying class of people. It is not far from several very large cemeteries, there are railroads, Chicago elevated railroads and trolley lines and many other things that make for an ideal location. The amount of business that can be done is limited only by production, for there is a ready market for all that could be produced in a place two or three times larger.

Offering for sale a florists' business of as high standing as this one is not a common occurrence, and it presents a rare opportunity to a person who has enough capital and knows the florists' business. This is a big proposition and will require a large amount of cash. Replies are wanted only from persons who command a good amount of capital, and such persons will be supplied with full particulars on request.

SPRING SALES.

To move the accumulation of bulbous flowers which ordinarily gluts the market at this time, the florists of Toronto are instituting special Saturday sales at reduced prices. One of these offered daffodils at from 60 cents to $1 per dozen and tulips at from 75 cents to $1 per dozen. The flowers were guaranteed to be of the best quality and, to assure the public of this fact, the names of the twenty florists joining in the sale were printed at the bottom of the quarter-page advertisement which announced the sale in the daily papers. Since the list includes the oldest and best florists in Toronto, it should indeed be a guarantee. The names of the florists who participated in the sale are: Mrs. D. S. Barber, Cooper, H. G. Dilleuth, Dunlop's, Ltd., R. T. Dean, A. J. Frost, S. A. Frost, George Hatcher, W. J. Hoath, J. J. Higgins, Ltd., T. H. P. Hammett, Charles Lewis, R. Mearns, J. A. Neale, People's Florist, Rosedale Florist, F. Saunders, H. Waters, P. Waters and George W. Warren.

Sioux City, Ia.—Rocklin & Lehman have purchased the entire greenhouses and land formerly occupied by the Glassacres Garden Co. at North Riverside. The property consists of more than 50,000 square feet of glass and about three acres of land alongside the greenhouses. They also have purchased the store of the Art Floral Co., at 512 Fifth street, maintaining their present place on Fourth street as their main store. They are now planning to build 35,000 square feet of additional glass.

3 GREEN HOUSES FULL OF EASTER LILIES

All other Flowers in Season

WRIGHT'S FLOWER SHOP

224 West 4th St., Los Angeles

Telegraph Delivery Department

The florists whose cards appear on the pages carrying this head, are prepared to fill orders from other florists for local delivery on the usual basis.

WE increased the list of our customers again last year. Therefore we have a better business. We expect to fill more orders and we expect to place more orders.

WE HAVE FOR EASTER

In baskets, jardinières, boxes, decorated pots—

Hydrangeas, Lilies, Heathers, Boronias, Acacias, Azaleas, Genistas and all other varieties of Seasonable Plants.

In Cut Flowers we will have all varieties.

This year prices will be normal and conditions favorable. Price list will be sent by mail.

ADVICE:

On account of the late season we do not encourage the sale of bulb stock for this locality, except Darwin Tulips.

We do not advise the sale of violets; they are not satisfactory for a late Easter.

Remember stock will be plentiful and encourage sales. FOR FLOWER LOVERS THERE SHOULD BE NO MAXIMUM AND NO MINIMUM.

Every F. T. D. order goes through my hands and to be able to give good value and the proper care, I would advise placing all smaller orders for cut flowers or plants open subject to my selection.

With very best wishes for a Happy Easter,

MAX SCHLING, Inc., 785 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK, N. Y.

Easter Greetings

From LOS ANGELES and SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

THE undermentioned principal retailers in Los Angeles and other towns in Southern California take the present opportunity of thanking their brother florists for their continued and rapidly increasing patronage in telegraph business. They appreciate it highly and are always willing and anxious to co-operate in anything for the general good. They also wish, one and all, to thank those who have so carefully attended to their own orders sent to practically every city in the United States, Canada and many foreign points.

For Easter this year there will be abundant stock of every description—
Prices will be reasonable.

Among the choice offerings will be a full supply of Easter Lilies, Roses, Valley, Bulbous Flowers in great variety and every description of stock for Plant and Cut Flower baskets.

Orders sent to any of the florists whose names appear here will be given prompt and careful attention no matter how large or how small the amount.

LOUISIANA QUARANTINE FACTS.

Supplied by Inspector.

In the issue of March 23 The Review printed excerpts from a newspaper story regarding the quarantine recently imposed by the state of Louisiana in an effort to protect nurserymen from losses by pests known to be imported from other localities. Realizing the exaggerations and inaccuracies that frequently occur in newspaper stories on trade matters, The Review undertook to get the facts accurately. Edward Foster, nursery inspector of the department of agriculture of Louisiana, gives this information:

"There are about ninety nurserymen and florists in New Orleans, the greater number of whom do no shipping business and cater only to the local trade. About two years ago the presence of the so-called 'camphor scale' was noted in one section of the city. The natural habitat of this scale, so far as we know, is Japan. How this scale was introduced is not known definitely and a search through the literature fails to show that any life history work has been done. From the character of the damage to the camphor shade trees, it was felt that measures should be taken to prevent its spread to other territories.

"The infested section was immediately quarantined and such quarantine was enlarged so as to include New Orleans and the adjacent parish of Jefferson. No plants were allowed to be shipped, unless inspected and afterwards fumigated with hydrocyanic acid gas, and since then this practice has been continued. All plants, whether outdoor or bench-grown, shipped out of New Orleans are inspected and treated by an officer of the department and are certificated to this effect, the only exception being made in the case of certain vegetables and dry bulbs. One extremely satisfactory result of this campaign has been to emphasize the great utility of hydrocyanic acid gas in the control of noxious insects, more espe-

"It has been through the activity of the campaign that attention has been drawn to New Orleans and, through erroneous reports, a rather unsavory reputation has been given this section as being 'bug ridden,' which I can state emphatically is not warranted when the true facts are taken into consideration.

"The quarantines noted in the article in question were only temporary in character and were immediately withdrawn, when a willingness was shown to get into line with the work. With the attitude of California, Florida and Mississippi I am not concerned. Each state has the right to enact laws for the protection of its citizens, even if such laws be founded on misconceptions, rather than fact. The last-named state is now receiving shipments.

Would Upbuild Trade.

"Through its geographical position and its large import trade, New Orleans has been held to be unusually situated for the introduction of insect pests of all kinds, while its subtropical climate would favor their propagation. Yet, during the many years I have studied insect life here, I can point to no direct primary introduction through the port of any foreign insect pest which became established, with the single exception of the so-called Argentine ant, against which a strenuous fight is being made throughout the entire south. The introduction of this pest harks back almost to the period when 'the memory of man wotteth not to the contrary thereof'; at least, it may be placed at a time when the economic entomologist was either unborn or only in his swaddling clothes. With this exception, such pests as may be with us can possibly be traced to landward shipments, and in some instances to sections where the 'holier than thou' attitude has become rather oppressive. It is with this point in view that inward shipments in the future will be given the same rigid inspection as is being given to outgoing plants. Owing to the lack of funds in the past, this phase of protective work has been impossible and the department has had to rely largely on the vigilance of the inspection service of the states where such inward shipments have had their origin. Shipments have arrived here of late that have borne no such inspection certificates, thus apparently showing on the part of shippers a disregard for the laws of their own states. This has entailed the return of such shipments.

"The attitude of the department is toward the upbuilding of the nursery industry in this state, an industry that has been increasing markedly of late years. That there are unusual opportunities here for the enterprising nurseryman is shown by this increase, and any methods by which the game can be pushed along are commendable, especially if such methods be toward preventing the efforts of the more enterprising grower from being stultified by the laissez-faire attitude of the non-progressive."

CORN BORERS FLY OVER LAKE?

An investigation into how the much-dreaded insect, the European corn borer, makes its way to Canada, where it is quite prevalent, to the southern shore of Lake Erie is to be begun shortly by the United States Department of Agriculture with the establishment of a small investigational force of entomologists at Sandusky, Ohio. The spread of the corn borer is so uniform over a narrow strip extending practically the whole length of the lake that the department believes moths of the insect fly across. The object of the investigation is to find out if this is a fact.

If the lighthouse service grants the necessary permission, observers of the department will be placed at certain lighthouses along the American shore of the lake. It is believed that if moths fly from Canada to the United States they are likely to be attracted to the big lights at night. Just how much influence these exert on the moths remains to be seen.

It has already been demonstrated that moths, under certain conditions, can resume flight after falling upon the water. It has been suggested that the islands at the western end of Lake Erie offer resting places for moths in their journey to the American shore, and the investigators will watch to see if this is true.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

There was plenty of everything in the wholesale cut flower market last week. A week without sunshine, plenty of rain and one day of snow did not seem to disturb the receipts. This condition of weather kept back bulbous stock, which will help the plantmen for Easter.

Prices are holding up well, and during this Lenten season have not dropped as much as they have in previous years. Sweet peas have been popular this season and have received the largest call among the smaller flowers. The supply has been large and the demand has cleaned them up well each day. Car-

Supposing It Was You?

Way down in a rustling little Texas town lives Clem Smith, Editor of a rather remarkable paper that circulates all over these United States.

Still he never writes a word, never touches a sheet of paper, never sets a word of type.

He can't.

He has no arms or hands.

But he has a head, and how he does use it!

For concentrated distilled sunshine he hasn't an equal.

It just makes you happy to look into his eyes.

Thinking of his happy look, we named one of our particularly choice gift ferns The Happy Hap, and for exactly the same reason.

It makes folks happy to look at it.

And happier yet to receive it.

nations are coming in finely and the quality is of the best. These are not cleaning up each day, but the price is holding up on prime shipping stock.

Roses are plentiful and stock of good quality cleans up well at market quotations. Among the roses are Premier, Russell, Butterfly and Ophelia. White Killarney, Columbia and Milady are next choice.

Bulbous stock has been plentiful, especially tulips, jonquils, freesias and Dutch hyacinths. The supply of Easter lilies, callas and valley is equal to any demand.

In the miscellaneous class are snapdragons, violets, calendulas, pansies, daisies and mignonette. All have a good average call daily.

The demand in greens has been equal plied by addressing him at 1316 Pine street.

The west end floral establishments of F. H. Weber, Julius Schaeffer, Fred C. Weber and Joseph Witek showed attractively displayed blooming stock. All are enthusiastic over the prospects for Easter.

A considerable number who consign their stock to the St. Louis market won prizes at the national flower show. Among them are the W. A. Rowe Co., A. Jablonsky, John Steidle, J. H. Blixen, Philip J. Goebel, Jr., O. C. May and the J. F. Ammann Co.

The Bourdet Floral Co., Albert Senger, C. E. De Wever and Joseph Mathias, who furnish the local retailers with blooming plants, say that their Easter stock will be large.

The bowlers had a great time March 29, their twenty-eighth week of bowling. April 19 will end the bowling season. The Sweet Peas now have the commanding lead, followed by the Violets, Orchids, Roses, Carnations and Daisies. March 29 the Violets surprised the Sweet Peas by taking all three games, while the Orchids won two from the Roses and the Daisies won two from the Carnations. The six leading average men are: E. Niebling, 177; Oscar Ruff, 168; J. J. Beneke, 163; Fred Alves, 162; A. Hoffmann, Jr., 162, and F. Plotz, 161. J. J. B.

The Market.

Market conditions remain about the same as they were last week—a good supply and a good demand. There seems to be an abundant supply of cut bulbous stock, because of the warm weather of the last week, which has caused the flowers to develop earlier than usual. If this weather continues, stock will be scarce for Easter. Snapdragons are plentiful and good. There is a fair supply of carnations and a good supply of roses and cattleyas. Good single violets are scarce. Easter lilies are in fair supply.

Potted plants, such as hyacinths, tulips, cinerarias, French hydrangeas and daffodils, are plentiful and the demand is good.

For Easter there will be a good supply of potted plants of all varieties, except potted Easter lilies. Most of the ranges have few pot lilies and most of these are short. There will be an abundant supply of French hydrangeas and rambler roses, both pink and red. It looks as though there will be more cinerarias than there will be demand for. All growers seem in doubt in regard to bulbous stock. It is the opinion of the majority of them that it will be difficult to hold this stock back until April 16.

Various Notes.

At the request of the national flower show committee, each local F. T. D. member delivered Saturday, March 25, a floral token to the mayor of our city bearing the name of Mayor Shank, of Indianapolis, notifying Mayor Broening of the opening of the national flower show. Every local member complied with the wishes of the committee and, as one of the local papers expressed it, "Mayor Broening was literally swamped with flowers." Our mayor has always been a great believer in our slogan and is known to most florists as "Say It with Flowers" Broening.

Do not forget the big club night, April 10, J. Horace McFarland night. Every member of the trade should be present, with his family. It will be an enjoyable and profitable evening. In connection with this, do not forget the dinner to be held in Mr. McFarland's honor at the Hotel Rennert. Tickets are $2.50; come and enjoy a good dinner.

luminated at night by eight 200-candle-power electric lights. During the last fair, in 1921, 280,000 people passed through the floral building during the five nights and days of the exhibition. Nearly all of the space has already been taken by members of the association for the coming fair, in the fall of 1922. During the summer months a private office building for the members of the association will be added to this structure. Harry W. Orr is president of the Reading Fair Co. and J. C. The Market.

Sweet peas and carnations dragged the early part of the week. Roses sold faster than they could be cut. The calls for stock increased as the week wore on and there were not enough roses to meet the demand. Carnations were substituted in some cases. The market closed April 1, clean of everything. It was not such a busy week in the retail stores. A pending city election and the approach of Easter held buying to funeral and hospital work. The last week was the lightest in the month. Record business is anticipated for Easter. Stock will not be overplentiful, judging from the constant calls that keep growers cutting all they can. Lilies are in the best of condition and will be in good supply. Those who have seen lilies outside of Kansas City say that the growers here have the best stock by all odds. Easter coming so late means that the bulbous stock will be rather scarce. There will be some held back by growers who specialize in holiday stock.

Various Notes.

The Alpha Floral Co. is building two new houses, each 37x150 feet, at the Overland Park range. This will make six houses. Mr. Elberfeld hopes in time to have enough glass to grow all of his own stock.

C. E. Thomas has given up the Rosery. With his family he has moved to his new home, south of the city.

Ed. A. Humfeld is cutting delphiniums, cornflowers and larkspurs. It is early for all of these. Mr. Humfeld's sweet peas and snapdragons have been the envy of all who have seen them this season.

The April meeting of the Florists' Club has been postponed from April 13 until after Easter. The regular meeting night comes at such a busy time that not many could attend.

Miss J. E. Murray, P. A. Manson, Hugo R. Neff and James Hayes, of Topeka, Kan., drove to Pleasant Hill, Mo., Friday, March 31, to visit the Pinehurst greenhouses.

W. J. Barnes, W. L. Rock, Samuel Murray, Glenn K. Parker, W. H. Culp and C. P. Mueller, Wichita, Kan., and J. C. Steinhauser, Pittsburg, Kan., have returned from Indianapolis, Ind. All were enthusiastic over the national flower show. L. R. Bohannon, who was a member of the party, remained over in Chicago a few days. The Kansas

He called on the trade and visited several of the greenhouses. On his return home he came by way of St. Louis and visited several of the florists and greenhouses there.

R. L. Isherwood, Chillicothe, Mo., and J. C. Steinhauser, Pittsburg, Kan., were recent visitors. J. E. K.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

Business continued practically unchanged last week, with the exception of Friday and Saturday, March 31 and April 1, when stock cleaned up nicely. Some stock went at bargain prices, however. Carnations are scarce on this market, while roses seem to be in greater supply.

Bulbous stock is still a strong factor, tulips, daffodils and narcissi being those greatest in demand. The market usually is cleaned up on carnations early in the morning and those who come in late are unfortunate. Sweet peas are plentiful and are not bringing the prices they should, but they are moving nicely. Violets are not of superior quality. There is little call for them at present. The bad weather last week put a damper on business, as it rained here steadily all week with the exception of the last day. Some fine plumosus is now arriving, but is moving slowly.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Vineca, of the Crowl Fern Co., Millington, Mass., were visitors the latter part of last week.

The monthly meeting of the Florists' Club was held Monday, April 3, with

The Market.

Business the last day or two of week before last was rather slow, but Monday, March 27, found plenty of orders to take care of the stock, and, as shipping orders are heavy, the grower finds that he has nothing to throw away and, by the way, the supply of stock is large at this time.

Big funeral orders have helped the retailers and, although some claim that things are slow, for the most part sales are satisfactory.

Prices made further declines, the first of last week on carnations, roses, daffodils and tulips. Rose prices range from $6 to $20 per hundred, with carnations $3 to $6; Laddie, $10 per hundred; daffodils, $6 to $8 per hundred; sweet peas, $1 and $2 per hundred; tulips, $6 to $10 per hundred; calla lilies, $1.50 to $2 per dozen, and Easter lilies, $3 per dozen.

An abundance and big variety of pot plants is now offered, and the variety will continue to increase as Easter approaches. Rambler and baby roses, lilies, hydrangeas, spiræas and pelargoniums are now offered in large numbers at reasonable prices. Bulbous stock is still plentiful, with a good demand at all times.

Easter Prospects.

It is the consensus among the growers and retailers that Utah will have a big Easter. There are fewer pessimists than last year by far. The supply of lilies, without doubt, will be inadequate, but an excellent supply of other plants and plenty of cut flowers will take care of all the business available.

A Visit to Farmington.

There are excellent rambler roses at the greenhouses of the Miller Floral Co. this year. The plants, of which this concern is growing more than usual, have been grown cool, and consequently the plants are larger, carry more buds, and are of better quality than any the firm has ever offered before. Tausend-schoen and Ruby Queen are principally grown, with a few American Beauty and Dorothy Perkins scattered here and there.

But these roses are only a small part of the Easter plants at the Miller range. In the plant department are 5,000 lilies, 2,500 pelargoniums, a big supply of hydrangeas, spiræas, hyacinths, daffodils and tulips, not to mention thousands of geraniums, Boston ferns, Asparagus Sprengeri and other miscellaneous plants.

The carnations are in excellent condition. Laddie, of which there are several thousand plants, is a picture of health.

In the rose range, as one comes to the variety Frank Dunlop, he must stop and admire. This variety will replace Shawyer entirely next season at this range.

Various Notes.

Robert W. Simmonds, formerly of the Woodlawn Flower Shop, at Seattle, Wash., who joined the force of the Huddart Floral Co. some months ago, states that he is well pleased with Salt Lake City. Mr. Simmonds is an artist of no mean ability, and has arranged some fine window displays since coming. Mr. Simmond's hobby is his camera, and we are told confidentially that he carries it back and forth to work every day, spending most of his leisure time during Flower Display.

The florists of the city were no back numbers at the spring fashion show indulged in by the retail board of the Chamber of Commerce, opening Tuesday evening, March 28. The decorations for the department store windows were made up chiefly of potted plants, cut flowers and palms and these made a fitting background for the gala exhibits of spring styles.

One of the prominent department stores had a unique display of table linens actually spread upon a dining
cut flowers accompanied by silver, china and cut glass.

Another dinner table noted in particular was a style sponsored by the famous maitre d'hôtel, Oscar, of the Hotel Waldorf. This table was arranged with a centerpiece, a large bowl with a standing vase filled with salmon-colored orchids, sweet peas and single jonquils, arranged by A. Doebl, of the North Bridgeport Florist. This combination was stunning and was commented on by the many hundreds who visited the display. Mr. Doebeli furnished all of the flowers used in this store for the show.

Various Notes.

The business men of the city have been meeting at the Hotel Stratfield every Monday for the purpose of arranging plans for booming Bridgeport, and they are making great strides toward a bigger, better and busier industrial city.
Florists are hoping for the success of this venture, because it means bigger business for them.

Carl Reck, of the firm of John Reck & Son, made a pall of Ophelia roses and pink sweet peas, measuring 5x9 feet, for the funeral of Mrs. Dwight Wheeler.
Other pieces made by this same firm were sprays of orchids and lily of the valley.

There is a splendid showing of the Easter pot plants at the Park Gardens and all hands are busy filling funeral orders.

Gus. Herthal has been busy with funeral orders and had numerous large decorations to furnish; one of these was for the Shrine Frolic, held at the Park theater, April 3 and 4. The decorations for this occasion were elaborate. Palms, southern smilax, roses, carnations and pot plants were used profusely. Gus.
Herthal, Jr., took a prominent part in the frolic, as he is an actor of some note.

James Horan & Son furnished some of the decorations for the syring style show.

Victor Carwardine, of Stratford avenue, was a recent visitor at Cromwell, Conn., and the establishment of A. N.
Pierson, Inc. Mr. Carwardine's store is an attractive spot, situated just across the bridge on Stratford avenue, and his windows are viewed by many thousands of people, who pass daily to and from East Bridgeport.

The Market.

Bulbous flowers seem to be flooding the market at the present time. The warm weather has brought on a large supply of the stock which was intended for Easter, but which could not be kept for that holiday, thereby causing an overabundance in this market. Lilies, both calla and Easter, are arriving in larger quantities and are moving out daily at fairly good prices. The supply of lilies for Easter seems to look promising. There are not so many sweet peas in the market at the present time, but the cut of these flowers will increase. Violets are not so plentiful and it is doubtful if their supply will be increased at this time. The usual varieties of roses are on the market, the demand being mostly for Premier and Columbia. American Beauties have been rather limited, but the supply seems to equal the demand. The business of the wholesale houses is increasing in the supply departments and the cut flowers seem to move daily, regardless of the large supply of bulbous stock. Reports from the florists show that business has decreased. Carnations are still scarce in this market, especially the pinks. The supply of carnations will be limited for Easter, although the rose cut will be as good as in former years, if not better.

Various Notes.

DENVER, COLO.

The Market.

The week ending April 1 saw a change for the better in the market. Business is holding up well, with no apparent relaxation just before the holiday, while the necessary stock is much easier to procure. Growing weather has at last arrived and roses are arriving in both better quantity and quality. Carnations are more plentiful, although they are hardly in sufficient quantities for the demand. Arrivals now are of the finest quality. Early planted sweet peas are decreasing in quantity, but plenty of fine ones are yet to be had.

The general outlook for Easter is good, although lilies have not come up to the standard this season. Many growers have had losses and the lilies that are available are short-stemmed. The impression is, however, that there will be plenty of these for Easter. Hydrangeas are also in good supply. Baby ramblers are scarce, with the demand heaviest for the crimson varieties. In bulbous stock, tulips, except for those cut, are fairly scarce, owing to the fact that many in the trade have discontinued growing them. Hyacinths are fine and fairly plentiful. The Easter demand for this stock will be heavy.

Various Notes.

George L. Roberts, of the Elitch Gardens Co., Harry Harlow and Emil Glauber, accompanied by Ed. Johnson, of the Pikes Peak Floral Co., visited the national flower show last week.

Ernest Coole is erecting two steel-frame Agmco houses, 39x150 feet, for R. T. Davis, Jr., in Wheat Ridge.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

The Market.

Business last week was exceptionally good. Prices realized were not as high as we should like to see them, but the quantity of the stock on the market moved in good shape. Sweet peas were coming in quite heavily, and the general run of quality was extra fine.
There were a great variety of colors in the market, and the blue and lavender shades seemed to be the favorite. The supply of roses was about equal to the demand. Prices ranged all the way from $6 to $20 per hundred. Carnations were selling from $4 to $6 per hundred.
Calla lilies sold well, the best grade bringing about $2.50 per dozen. The supply of bulbous stock was not so heavily, but it moved a little better and at better prices. The supply of violets was rather limited, and the warm weather is beginning to affect the quality. There is a good lot of pansies, snapdragon and calendulas coming in now.

Various Notes.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. is beginning to cut some gladioli. This firm, likewise, sent five entries of carnations to the national flower show at Indianapolis, and secured four prizes, which was a good showing, considering the number of competitive classes.

SYRINGING AIDS GROWTH.

Will frequent syringing of hard-wooded plants, such as lemon, verbena and fuchsia, aid in making them break into new growth? R. W. B.—Pa.

Frequent light sprayings will assist these plants in breaking into new growth. Give them a warm, moist house and be careful not to keep them overmoist at the roots, or you may lose them altogether. A little pruning back will be helpful also. I presume that you have been resting the plants during the winter. C. W.

A HYDRANGEA NAMED.

I have sent under separate cover some cuttings of begonias, both of which have pink flowers. We have had this variety a number of years. Isn't it of any commercial value? Will you give cultural directions and mention the correct names?

A hydrangea is also enclosed. What is its correct name? Is it of value now?
F. E.—O.

The begonias came frozen solid and the leaves were black. It was not possible to name such specimens. The leaves had gone from the small hydrangea, but it seems to be H. otaksa, excellent for greenhouse culture and especially in demand for Memorial day.

The Market.

Commencing March 29, prices started on a toboggan movement, reaching the lowest Lenten figures of the year. They have not yet started on the upward climb, which, however, cannot be long delayed, now that Easter is so near. The decline was hastened by one or two cold, stormy days, which cut down buying, and March 31 and April 1 we had a succession of snow and sleet storms, the second heaviest of the winter, with low temperatures. The weather April 1 forcibly reminded one of April 3, 1915, when a blinding snow storm paralyzed Easter trade, and remarks were heard that it was a blessing that this was not another Easter storm. The snow crippled retail buying and the market stalls carried large quantities of unsold flowers—the first real glut of the year.

Prices are difficult to quote, but everything has suffered a decline. Roses dropped to $2 for short-stemmed Killarney and Ophelia, the demand being feeble for all grades. Carnations slumped badly and splendid flowers sold April 1 and 3 at $4 per hundred, with many as low as $2 to $3 per hundred. Sweet peas were a positive glut and bulbous material was in heavy oversupply for the first time this season.

Violets are small and nearing the end; so are pansies. Plenty of yellow and white marguerites, bachelor's buttons, wallflowers, forget-me-nots and other miscellaneous stock are coming in. Callas and lilies have been decidedly druggy, especially the former. Small lots of Spanish iris, delphiniums, annual gypsophila and blue marguerites are seen. There is a much larger supply of snapdragons of fine quality, and values have dropped sharply.

There has not been much demand for lilies of the valley the last week and cattleyas, which are mainly Mossiæ, have been largely neglected. Pot plant trade has been fairly good, with roses, hydrangeas, bulbous material and genistas the leaders. Easter lilies in pots are making their appearance; 25 cents per bud, at wholesale, is the general quotation for all good stock.

New England Florists' Alliance.

The severe snow storm prevailing April 1 cut down the attendance at the meeting of the New England Florists' Alliance, held at the City Club. About forty members were present for dinner and a few additional ones came in for the afternoon meeting. William H. Elliott presided and Secretary Eugene M. Naukam spoke to the members plainly and pointedly on present conditions. He showed that, while about 100 had joined the association, practically no assessments had yet been received and the treasury contained little money. He said that it behooved members to pay promptly on the twenty-fifth of each month, as now is the time to tell the public about flowers, while they are abundant.

William H. Elliott asked every member present to rise in turn and unburden his mind and prominent retailers like John J. O'Brien and Charles F. Boyle, and leading growers, like S. J. Goddard, W. C. Stickel and others, responded. All angles of the situation were well discussed. The proposed wholesale building, to be owned and controlled by the trade, was discussed and a point which found favor among those present was to debar all salesmen, growers and buyers from the same, who were not members of the New England Florists' Alliance. It was nearly midnight before the meeting terminated.

blue iris and cattleyas was charmingly made. Commissioner Curtis was a former mayor of Boston and got a national name a few years ago, when practically the whole police force of the city went on strike. At that time Mr. Curtis refused to allow them to become unionized and, aided by Governor, now Vice-President, Coolidge, guarded the city until a new force could be enrolled and trained. As a consequence, he was one of Boston's best loved citizens. T. F. Galvin also had the family orders for the funeral of Harry P. Nawn, the noted contractor. T. F. Galvin, Inc., had many orders, also, for these two funerals.

The sympathy of the trade goes out to John T. Cooke, the Commonwealth avenue retailer, in the death of his wife March 30. Funeral services were held April 3.

Thomas Roland and Henry Penn returned full of enthusiasm for Indianapolis and the west and for the wonderful way in which the national flower show was handled. The exhibits were grand, the attendance wonderful and the amount of newspaper publicity given astonished the visitors.

March went out in an unkind mood, after being a rather pleasant month, on the whole. March 31 and April 1 we had about a foot of snow, causing considerable transportation troubles. Such storms, even in April, are not unusual. We hope this will be the last of the present season.

A good attendance is looked for April 18, when Professor Clark L. Thayer, of the floricultural department, Amherst, will favor the Gardeners' and Florists' Club with a stereopticon lecture on the advantages offered by the college to florists and gardeners.

An extensive and naturally arranged exhibition of native ferns, flowers and shrubs will be staged at Horticultural hall, May 4 to 11. The arrangement will be on somewhat similar lines to those of the great show of native orchids in May, 1921, which attracted 25,000 visitors.

Local nurseries are now busy digging stock, orders being more numerous than a year ago. There has been a good deal of scorching of the foliage on hemlocks, rhododendrons, kalmias, andromedas and other evergreens.

John McFarland, of North Easton, has an exceptionally fine lot of Easter lilies. All are giganteums and a healthy lot. They are of a good height and carry as many as eleven buds each; few carry so small a number as four buds.

W. N. C.

NEWARK, N. J.

Newark florists expect a satisfactory Easter trade. While general business conditions are still bad, there has been slight improvement of late, and this will probably react favorably on all local trades, including ours. Prices are still so high that they drive away trade that might otherwise be had at this time.

The fire department of Hillside was called to extinguish a brush fire on the property of the Elizabeth Nursery Co., on Stone street. Many large trees were destroyed. Sparks from an engine were given as the cause of the fire.

Miss Mildred Strobell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Strobell, of 93 Pennsylvania avenue, and Alanson F. Partelow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alanson L. Partelow, of 8 Millington avenue, were married at the home of the bride's

The Market.

Monday morning, March 27, the market was glutted with roses, sweet peas and carnations. The stock piled up until on Wednesday, March 29, carnations could be bought at as low as $30 per thousand. Sweet peas were offered in huge quantities at $5 to $20 per thousand. There seemed to be a general business depression the first part of the week. During the last few days the weather changed and things brightened up considerably. The cold weather of Thursday and Friday, March 30 and 31, caused the prices to rise considerably and on Saturday, April 1, conditions were more nearly normal. Sweet peas were then readily taken up at from $15 to $20 per thousand and roses and carnations also cleaned up well at advanced prices.

Large quantities of bulbous stock came into the market last week. Included were hyacinths and tulips. The quantities of southern jonquils which came in largely failed to find purchas-

Easter that could not have been held, had the hot weather continued. It would have meant a serious loss to them.

American Beauty roses have improved greatly in quality and the prices are ranging from $6 to $9 per dozen. Columbia, Premier and Butterfly were the favorites among the moderate-priced roses and there was a big call on Saturday, April 1, for American Legion. All of these roses brought from $6 to $20 per hundred. Hydrangeas made their appearance in the market last week. A few small plants were shown at one of the local wholesale houses and prices ranged from $1 to $3 each. They were quickly bought up and found a ready sale in the retail stores. Tausendschoen rose bushes are still being used in decorations, and the blooms are being cut for use in dinner decorations. Easter lilies are plentiful at $20 per hundred and there are all the calls the market demands.

Various Notes.

From all indications, it would seem as though there would be plenty of lilies for Easter in Washington. Several of the local growers have promise of fine stock at that time, if conditions continue favorable. It is probable that the prices will be 25 cents each for bloom and bud, as against an average of 30 cents last year.

The A. Gude Sons Co. has one of the best selections of Easter plants in this locality. There are included a large quantity of Tausendschoen roses and other popular ramblers, all in the pink of condition. The firm has a house of good hydrangeas and these are coming in the smaller sizes. The firm's white lilacs are also fine; they are well budded and have long, well flowered spikes. In another house are 5,000 American Beauty rose plants which are as good as have ever been produced by this firm. They range from twelve to sixteen buds and blooms per plant. All of these plants will be in excellent condition for Easter use. The firm also has 15,000 pots of Easter lilies, the plants averaging about six blooms each. The height and condition of these plants are considered fine. In the cut flower line the firm will have a large quantity of extra fine American Beauty roses, besides all other kinds of roses popular in this section. The collection will also include carnations, sweet peas, calla lilies and various kinds of spring flowers.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

There has been comparatively little change the last week in the local market, excepting that cut and potted bulbous stock is becoming more plentiful and the department stores are making preparation for the usual handling of these goods for the Easter tide. As the great church day approaches, it becomes more and more evident that A-1 lilies will be conspicuous by their limited numbers. There will, undoubtedly, be thousands of plants and blooms, but, with the exception of a small percentage, they will be short, stunted plants, with small, partially developed blooms.

Violets will be scarce and high. Roses and carnations, which furnish the staple of this market, are in good quantity and quality, with prices within the reach of all.

Funeral work has continued active and there has been more social demand than usual.

Various Notes.

Scott the Florist had several large funeral calls last week.

The Boston Store has opened its spring department, with rose bushes, hedge and bordering plants and other shrubs.

Mayor Gainer received floral pieces from Scott the Florist, Macnair, Westminster Greenhouses and Johnston Bros. as greetings, in connection with the opening of the national flower show.

Samuel Kinder has been reelected tree warden by the town of Bristol for the ensuing year.

E. Brooke, of T. J. Johnston & Co., visited Boston and vicinity last week, on business.

The Rhode Island Motors Co. has opened a new farm supply department, with a full line of vegetable, flower and garden seeds, tractors, sprayers, pumps, tools, etc.

Charles Smith was a business visitor at Worcester, Mass., last week in the interests of the Eastern Wreath Co.

The W. E. Barrett Co. reports a material increase in business activities the last fortnight, especially in seeds and garden tools.

John Johnston, of Johnston Bros., spent a part of the last week in Boston and vicinity, on business.

Joseph Koppelman, of this city, was in New York and vicinity last week on a business trip.

C. S. Kempton & Co., Longmeadow, Mass., report heavy bookings for early deliveries of everbearing strawberry plants.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Last week was one that called to mind the floods in 1913. With heavy rains all week, the rivers rose rapidly. This had a bad effect on trade in general, especially on transient trade. Flowers of all kinds are plentiful.

The slackness in business was not without its reward, as it enabled most of the florists to attend the national flower show. The following attended: F. J. Knecht, Henry Freese, Ralph Tinkham, Miss Jeanette Schock, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Shive, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Blossom, Mr. and Mrs. Clem Lanternier, Van Knight, Clarence Commineavish, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Doswell, John Doswell, Herbert Glueskamp, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Helgren, Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Butler, Miss Margaret Vesey, Miss S. Nelson, Charles Morgan and William Clay.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

With the exception of an unusual amount of good funeral work, business with the local retailers has not been particularly good, but this work, however, has provided an outlet for a lot of stock. Roses have been more than plentiful and several florists have run special sales to clean them up. Carnations are improving and are better now than at any time this year. Callas are arriving more plentifully, but these are not up to the usual quality. Daffodils are passing the peak, King Alfred and other midseason kinds being followed by Emperor, Barrii and others, while the hybrids of poeticus are especially attractive now. Sweet peas are much improved, but are not plentiful. A good line of colored freesias are in and move freely. The beautiful hybrid aquilegias are fine for basket work and there are seldom enough of these for the demand. A few early flowers of Delphinium Belladonna were quickly taken at good prices. Double peach blossoms in the later varieties are attractive and sell well. Orchids are fairly plentiful, but the demand cleans them up almost daily. Greens of all kinds are now more plentiful and of better quality.

Wholesalers say that business is not by any means good just now, but the inquiries and orders for Easter and beyond show that better times are ahead. The financial troubles in Arizona and the loss on the cotton crops still have a bad effect upon the shipping business to all of that territory.

Various Notes.

At the American Florists' Exchange there has been an unusually good demand for everything during the last week and W. Kent has had to do a good deal of searching around for stock. Mr. Kent is to be congratulated on the improvement he has made since taking charge and also on the much better feeling prevailing among the stand-holders. He is handling a good line of cinerarias sent in by a local grower. These are of the strain of Howard & Smith.

The funeral of a local railway magnate made a good deal of work for the retailers and especially for the Dostal-Wolters Flower Shop, where a good deal of the family work was done, including a beautiful pall costing about $500. The entire staff was busy all night. Harry Hansen, the clever decorator lately with Lichtenberg's, has joined the staff here and Claude G. Leonardi, formerly with the Athletic Club Florist, has been here for some time.

As a leader at the new store, Wolf-skill's & Morris Goldenson have been running a special small basket on Saturdays at $1.50. As Albert Goldenson says, "there is not a large profit in the baskets, but it brings other business to the store." They are certainly attractive at the price. Several good decorations, including a big wedding at Hollywood, are reported here.

Jacob Dieterich has about decided to leave New York, May 25, on the Saxonia for his European trip.

Exceptionally fine roses are coming in to Wright's Flower Shop from the greenhouses, where everything is in good shape now. Propagating and potting the many thousands of the new fern, Adiantum Wrightii, is keeping the staff busy.

Roses in abundance have been coming to the store of the E. C. Amling Co. last week and on some days prices weakened considerably. The cut is large now from the Amling range at Santa Ana, and big things are promised for Easter and later.

Roy F. Wilcox and family have moved into the new residence at Montebello, and landscaping these grounds is in progress. Mr. Wilcox will have the most beautiful place, standing on high ground and overlooking the whole slope to the Pacific.

H. R. Richards is handling the whole of the spare cut of Howard & Smith's several places, including the trial grounds at Rivera and the rose fields at San Fernando valley, where hundreds of thousands of roses, in all the standard kinds and novelties, are grown.

There will be an immense cut from these during the summer, when the indoor roses are not good.

Great preparations are being made at the establishment of W. Armacost & Co. for Easter, which, according to Mr. Williamson, seems likely to eclipse anything heretofore seen. Easter lilies especially are going to be good, while the cut of roses will be much larger and better than ever before. H. R. R.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

Stock is plentiful. There is a large stock of roses, the quality of which is excellent. Violets are still in their prime and are plentiful. Large crops of carnations, grown under glass, are being cut. White peach blossoms are among the latest items to come in. There is also an abundance of pink and red peach, quince and acacia sprays and other such blossoms. The daffodil crop is coming to an end, although a good many daffodils are still being shown. Outdoor tulips are arriving well and cut hyacinths are plentiful. A good deal of heather is being cut. Primroses are plentiful. Snapdragons, sweet peas anemones and ranunculi are here in sufficient quantities to take care of the local demand and pansies are becoming more plentiful. Lilies of the valley and gardenias are no longer scarce and orchids are coming on satisfactorily. Easter lilies are becoming more plentiful and the wild flowers are appearing in the market. Poppies have not yet reached the market.

Various Notes.

Saratoga, down the peninsula from San Francisco, made April 1 and 2 the dates for its annual blossom festival. Radio is all the rage in California, and the principal entertainment planned for the festival was radio music, both for concert and dancing purposes. About 100,000 people were expected to attend the affair.

The Coalinga Floral Shop is shortly to be opened in Coalinga, Cal., by Cal Morcom, manager of the Fox hotel. The shop has been temporarily located in the lobby of the hotel, but Mr. Morcom plans to move to a new location. He will have a greenhouse and carry potted plants as well as cut flowers. Coalinga, Cal., is the center of the oil industry of northern California.

C. Main, of the Seabright Bulb Co., Santa Cruz, is a San Francisco visitor. He has moved all his freesia crop, which was under glass, and has planted gladioli.

J. A. Axell, who is handling large quantities of practically everything available at present, is making a special spread on roses. "The demand is a trifle slow, for the moment, but we are booking lots of orders for Easter," said Mr. Axell.

Victor Ferrari, of Ferrari Bros., said: "Lots of gardenias are in at present. We have only a few orchids this week, but the orchid crop is coming along well and we expect it will be in for Easter."

Enomoto & Co. expect to have many tulips and violets, as well as the staples, for Easter.

James A. Brown, of Brown's Bulb Ranch, Capitola, has been in the city. He has erected some new greenhouses,

I. Inoue, manager of the United Flower & Supply Co., says that a good tulip crop is coming on for Easter. Though held back on account of frost, this crop is now excellent and will continue so for several weeks. According to Mr. Inoue, there is plenty of stock for Easter, though it is believed there will be heavy demands on it.

The Market.

A continuous increase in the amount of stock available has been the tendency throughout last month in Oakland. No scarcity exists at present in anything. While greenhouse stock is disappearing, outdoor stock is arriving in large quantities and in excellent quality.

Practically no change exists in prices, which are steadier than they have been for several months. The general trend of prices is downward, but the movement is slight, with the possible exception of roses, which are more abundant than at any time this season and are correspondingly lower.

The abundance of stock at the present time extends even to gardenias and orchids. Spring flowers dominate the market now, with some summer flowers appearing. Indoor daffodils are disappearing and their place is being taken by outdoor stock. Marigolds, cut hyacinths of good quality, freesias and narcissi are all coming from out of doors in useful amounts. Carnations are the finest this season. Roses are also fine now and are unusually clean hand. It will probably be three weeks more before he will be able to take any active part in the business. Mr. Costa, Cliff Wagenet's partner in the Oakland Flower Shop, has been kept busy during Mr. Wagenet's absence. The shipping business has been good.

Business with the H. M. Sanborn Co. has been fairly good, but intermittent, owing to the unsettled character of the weather. W. S. Harmon anticipates a fairly good Easter, but nothing like the Easters of the last few years. He expressed the opinion that most of the business will be in low-priced goods, especially in potted plants. Mr. Harmon thinks it unlikely that much stock will be sold over $2.50 to $5. The growers have also figured this way and it is probable that the market will be well supplied with that class of stock.

Hogan & Evers report the cut flower business to be less than in February, owing to the influence of the Lenten season. Funeral work has also been less than in February.

Thomas & Harris say that business for March was not equal to that of February. However, it has been on the whole satisfactory and the clearing up of the weather will probably restore conditions to a better basis. They have purchased a piece of ground nearby, which they will devote to the growing of special plants and flowers. This firm furnished 350 corsage bouquets, besides extensive table decorations, for a banquet given by the Berkeley Jewish Alliance at the Hotel Oakland recently. Table decorations have been the most important work lately.

F. S. Clarke notes that the number of funerals showed a marked falling off last month. Business generally seems to be less active, though by no means bad. Mr. Clarke thinks that the present situation is simply part of the return to pre-war business conditions and that the present situation and volume of business are about what may be expected from now on. Keener competition, probably, will also exist in the future, as new stores are expected to open.

Mrs. A. H. Gregory, of the Berkeley Flower Shop, says that the observance of Lent has reduced business a great deal. Few social affairs are being held at the present time and funerals and weddings have fallen off considerably.

deliveries of Easter lilies were seen. The cut of roses is about the same. A little decrease has been seen on cut tulips. Local sweet peas are in normal supply, and dealers in a position to offer smaller-sized daffodils are able to move their stock quickly. Carnations hold about the same, with a little complaint as to color, since late weather conditions have been hardly favorable to the best development. Violets are among the heaviest sellers on the market, and short-stemmed roses for use in corsages with this flower are cleaned up early every day. The cut of orchids is light, with no immediate promise of any relief.

Among pot plants, larger sizes of cinerarias and combination boxes of bright-colored tulips and hyacinths have about shared honors. Ferns are selling well, and some fine deliveries are being made from the growers. From the advance inquiries, there is going to be a good shipping demand for Easter lilies this year.

Various Notes.

C. A. Shaw, Bellingham florist, was a recent trade visitor.

Special place in window displays has been given to potted offerings by Melby's Flower Shop. There has been an increased demand for corsage work from the transient trade.

Some of the best daffodils seen here during the entire season have been shown lately by the Hollywood Gardens. The cut of carnations at the greenhouses has lately shown an increase. Fancy baskets of exclusive design, filled with a variety of spring flowers, have been moving readily of late.

The Seattle Florists' Association bowling team met the team from the Tacoma Florists' Association March 24, but unfortunately came out on the losers' end of the score. The matches were rolled on the Ideal alleys and the Tacoma association sent over a rooting section of twelve to be sure that their 5-man team was properly supported. Local rooters raised the number on hand at the alleys to about sixty, and there was no excuse for anyone not knowing that the florists were a "live bunch." After the match each of the winners was given a $10 merchandise order, and more than thirty attended a supper in their honor at the Bungalow cafe. Here a menu of crab cocktail, assorted cold meats, ice cream, pie and coffee was served, and a cabaret entertainment enjoyed. A return match will be rolled in Tacoma this month, at a date to be set later, and the Seattle team states that a different score is going to result.

McCoy's have been showing some of the finest roses coming into the market. This shop has enjoyed a heavy run of fraternal orders on funeral and hospital work.

William S. Goldsbary, western representative for the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, has returned from his spring road trip and will be at home for a few weeks, making short side trips to cover the nearby northwestern cities and towns. He reports good business on the road, especially in the intermountain states.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

CHANGES in the Fordney tariff bill by the Senate finance committee are reported on a forward page of this issue.

CHICAGO visitors last week included H. H. Laughlin, of the Laughlin Seed Co., San Jose, Cal., and George Lucas, seed farm superintendent.

WALTER RICHARDS, a grower of Jackson, Miss., has brought suit for $20,000 against D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, claiming that he developed a new tomato variety for which the seed company failed to compensate him.

WELL informed persons say that the acreage under onions for seed in California this year does not exceed 400, or not more than fifteen per cent of what would be called normal. But there is seed of 1918 and all subsequent crops still in storage.

OCCASIONALLY we hear of someone who is breaking records in the mail-order seed trade these days, but on the whole the season to April 1 has fallen below the expectations of most of the men in that line of business. And it is an axiom that what is lost before April never can be recovered.

A SEED store will be opened at 24 Fulton street W., Grand Rapids, Mich., by Wilbur Luikens and John Schipper. The business will operate under the name of the Holland-American Seed Co. Mr. Luikens has had years of experience in the seed business and Mr. Schipper was formerly a grower.

EVERETTE R. PEACOCK has asked the creditors of his corporation to give power of attorney for the election of Harry T. Ellis as trustee in the bankruptcy case of Everett R. Peacock Co. Mr. Ellis is the representative of the eleven interested banks and has been in charge of the Peacock affairs through March. If elected at the approaching meeting, Mr. Ellis will continue the business to give Mr. Peacock the opportunity to show foundation for his belief that he can work out of his financial difficulties.

THE Southern Seedsmen's Association will hold its annual convention at the St. Charles hotel, New Orleans, La., Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 29 to 31. The St. Charles hotel is centrally located and Secretary Love believes that the management will give members every attention while in their city. The officers of the association are: President, Joseph Steckler, New Orleans; first vice-president, D. R. Mayo, Knoxville, Tenn.; second vice-president, Dick O'Bannon, Sherman, Tex.; secretary-treasurer, F. S. Love, Montgomery, Ala.

SENATE OUSTS FREE SEEDS.

The subcommittee of the Senate appropriations committee in charge of the agricultural appropriation bill for the fiscal year 1923 has voted to eliminate the appropriation made by the House providing $360,000 for congressional distribution of seeds. As a result, the annual conflict between the House of Representatives and the Senate regarding this matter will again be staged this year.

appeal for economy in the government service, the Department of Agriculture, in submitting its estimates for the next fiscal year, did not include an appropriation for congressional seeds. The House committee on appropriations also omitted this provision from the bill, calling attention in its report to the House to the fact that this action was taken in the interest of economy. When the measure came up on the floor of the House, however, it was amended so as to include the appropriation. The sum appropriated, $360,000, is the same as that appropriated for the current fiscal year.

LAUGHLIN VS. SCHILDER.

In the United States court for the southern district of Ohio the case of Laughlin Seed Co. vs. Schilder Bros. was on trial for a day and a half, resulting in a judgment for the plaintiff in the sum of $4,972.15.

This was a case growing out of a contract to grow onion seeds for delivery from the 1919 crop. Schilder Bros. sought to cancel prior to the shipment of the seeds, refused to accept them and the car of seeds was sold by Laughlin Seed Co., for Schilder's account. The defense was allegation of unsatisfactory quality of seeds delivered on 1918 crop contract.

In the hearing of the case it developed that Laughlin Seed Co., of San Jose, an "independent" grower in California, has for five years grown onion seeds and shipped subject to acceptance or return within twenty days with seal unbroken. H. H. Laughlin stated that in all 2,479 bags had been so delivered and only two bags returned. The form of growing contract used is as follows:

CONTRACT CROP 19.....

This Agreement made in duplicate, this day of by and between Laughlin Seed Co., San Jose, Calif., party of the first part, and of party of the second part.

Witnesseth, That for and in consideration of the covenants hereinafter entered into by the said party of the first part, said party of the second part does hereby purchase of the first party the quantities and varieties of seeds below named, and agree to pay therefor at the prices attached, on the following basis:

Packages—Packages are to be 100 pounds net, double sacked seamless bags, sealed, tryers furnished on request. Delivery.....19....

Acceptance—Breaking of seal, or failure to return seed within 20 days arrival is acceptance of goods, the same being a reasonable time for inspection.

Time of Payment—60 days net from date of invoice.

Special Terms—Seller guarantees all contract prices against their spot prices at time of delivery.

Said first party, in consideration of the foregoing, does agree to cause to have planted sufficient bulbs to ordinarily produce the quantities of seeds named therein and amounts of said each variety below, namely: 100 pounds Onion bulbs for each 5 pounds of seed herein contracted.

The court ruled that the contract constituted an implied warranty and that the period of twenty days constitutes a reasonable time for test and rejection for cause. Allowing an offset of $800 on claims set up concerning the deal of 1918, the jury gave judgment for $4,972.15.

HOW GERMAIN SELLS SEEDS.

The seed house of Germain is one of the largest and best known in Los Angeles, Cal., and one of the reasons is, doubtless, that this house keeps the people constantly informed of what they need and what Germain has for sale. Every day there is a fascinating column or two in the daily papers showing by little pictures and timely reminders what folks need in the way of seeds and handy articles, both for gardening and for use in the house.

Many folks do not know that they can buy a "catnip mouse" for their feline pets at a seed store; so Germain occasionally has a tiny picture of a tabby playing with a mouse and a few words telling about the catnip kind.

Next may come a picture of endive, in all its pretty curliness, with a few facts about this too little known plant, and a brief mention of what it is used for. This opens the way to speak of other salad plants, the seeds of which this firm handles, and also the plants, along with the price of each. Mention is made of the interesting fact that the French are especially fond of endive.

"Going to take your pet along?" is a question prominent in one column. "Secure one of our carrier baskets. They are light, well ventilated and durable."

Another item of interest is the caution about planting some seeds too deep. And below the advertisement of tuberous plants or vegetables is the appropriate notice of a gopher exterminator.

Seasonable flowers and vegetables are noted, and the one that thrives best in the particular locality. For instance, the California poppy has been developed from the wild, native plant into most wonderful shades and colors, and readers are informed of this fact. This is a surprise even to many native Californians, to say nothing of the numberless tourists and recent arrivals in the state.

The canary is not forgotten. His owner is warned that this bird needs a change of diet now and then and is informed that Germain carries a special kind of canary seed. Then there is a special bath house for this household pet, and that's another item that many people are ignorant of.

A picture of a fern, with some good hints on caring for this plant, is the preface for the advertising of a certain kind of flower and fern fertilizer.

Statistics on the average number of baby chicks that die after hatching are given, along with the remedy for chick diseases that will lower the death rate among them. The prices of all seeds, plants and other articles are always given.

"Say It with Flowers" is good advice, but Germain adds the phrase "and say it often," taking a little space for a picture of roses or some other favorite flowers and a few words about the influence of flowers on the grower and in the home. Mr. Man is reminded that a bunch of flowers is one of the most eloquent gifts he can give his wife.

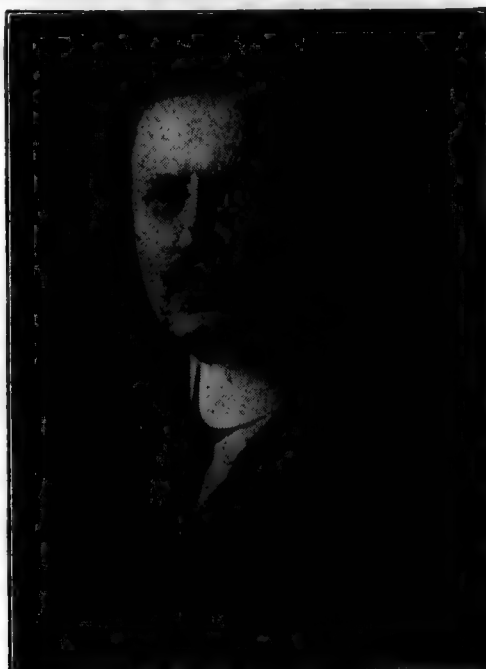

The best thing about this daily flower and vegetable talk is that it is exceedingly interesting. Folks who neither garden nor plant flowers like to read these short paragraphs and look at the pictures. They are more than mere advertisements; they are bits of useful and interesting information as well.

CONTROL CUCUMBER MOSAIC.

Investigations of the cucumber mosaic disease made during the last year show that it is carried over winter by the common perennial milkweed, as well as the wild cucumber. Both, therefore, according to the United States Department of Agriculture, are a menace to the growing of cucumbers, muskmelons and related vine crops.

The eradication of the wild cucumber for a considerable area around cultivated cucumber fields has given encour-ing held in St. Louis, when, at the request of the United States Department of Agriculture, it agreed to withdraw wild cucumber seed from the trade.

In addition, the investigations show that the rapidity and severity of the development of cucumber mosaic are related to soil and air temperatures. A temperature of 86 degrees favors infection and the rapid development of the disease, while temperatures below 68 degrees retard or entirely prevent its appearance.

Cucumber mosaic is serious and widespread in the large pickle-growing areas of the middle west, as well as other localities, and the discovery of methods for reducing losses from it is therefore a distinct contribution to the progress of the industry. The department plans to test the eradication methods further before making general recommendations.

TORONTO, ONT.

Business was good last week. Sufficient good stock has been available to fill all orders, but there has been no over-supply; in fact, in the lower grades there may be said to be a shortage.

Some fine sweet peas are being delivered at the present time. These have beautiful, large flowers and the stems on some reach twenty-four inches. Many of the florists are taking advantage of the opportunity by displaying the sweet peas in their windows.

Last week there occurred the death of a nationally loved man, Sir John C. Eaton. The florists had received orders from various organizations and persons for beautiful designs, but an order from the family was issued to the effect that flowers were to be omitted. This led to the cancellation of orders, and stocks of expensive flowers were left on the hands of some of the florists. This was offset in some cases by taking orders for delivery to the church and to the local hospitals, while the cards were sent to the house. Sir John Eaton was one of the greatest flower lovers and leaders in the country. His greenhouses were beautiful and he held displays at different times of the year, when all the florists' organizations were invited. At such times his greenhouses and gardens were crowded with flower lovers. He was a supporter of the flower shows and was always among the leaders in the displays.

The coöperative advertising is being continued, with good results. In addition, there is considerable individual advertising and the results are quite satisfactory. J. J. H.

'NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

V. E. BRUBAKER is going into the business of growing hardy perennials at Washburn, Wis.

CHANGES in the Fordney tariff bill by the Senate finance committee are reported on a forward page of this issue.

THE committee on arrangements of the American Association of Nurserymen has secured the Wolverine hotel at Detroit, Mich., as headquarters for the coming convention, in June.

THE incorporation of the Whall Nursery Co., San Antonio, Texas, took place March 13, 1922, with a capitalization of $2,500. The incorporators are Walter Whall, 313 West Cevallos street, and others.

THE nursery business so far this season has not come up to the expectations of the trade. Activity has become general since April, but the loss in March is not likely to be made up, however long the season may prove to be.

A SERIES of five lectures on home landscape work was given recently in various communities in Seattle and King county, Wash., by A. M. Doerner, professor of landscape gardening at the Washington State College. Nurserymen were active in arranging this schedule.

THE commission to prepare a detailed landscape planting plan for the Evergreen cemetery, at Seattle, has been awarded to Howard E. Andrews & Co., of Seattle, Wash. The current plans call for making this one of the finest memorial grounds in the Pacific northwest.

C. M. HOBBS & SONS, Marion, Ind., find a good demand for practically all nursery stock this season. Prices are a little less on some items, but on scarce sorts they are about the same as last year. There seems to be an especially good demand for fruit trees among commercial planters and an active demand for shade trees.

J. A. YOUNG, father of the "Plan to Plant Another Tree" campaign, recently caused to be sent out, in a bulletin of the Illinois Nurserymen's Association, the offer to supply the slogan in rubber-stamp form to any nurseryman who would write to a certain address for it. Within a few days 178 requests were received and they came from almost every state in the Union, indicating that the Illinois idea soon will be adopted nationally.

EASTERN TAX CONTROVERSY.

The controversy that has arisen between the several nurserymen in Middletown, Conn., and the tax assessors is being watched with considerable interest by the nurserymen, greenhouse men and florists throughout the section. At the recent assessment of taxes, young trees and shrubs under propagation were appraised and taxes assessed thereon. The owners filed protests and have paid the assessments and, at the recent financial meeting of the town, the matter was introduced and discussed, but no action was taken.

The matter raised so serious a question as to whether the tax assessors were within their rights or not that it is to be referred to the state tax commission for a conference with the Middletown assessors, so that the latter can make a report thereon at the adjourned financial meeting, to be held in May.

YOUNG'S PLAN UNDER WAY.

The "Plan to Plant Another Tree" campaign, sponsored by J. A. Young, secretary of the Illinois Nurserymen's Association, and inaugurated by that association during the month of March, is now well under way. Many agencies have been brought into the campaign. Every daily in the state has been asked for its support. The screen, the lecture platform, the banquet table, the pulpit, the grade and high schools, advertising agencies, clubs, organizations and societies of all kinds are doing their share in pushing the campaign to a successful completion. Dr. J. C. Blair, head of the department of horticulture at the University of Illinois, has had his entire staff at work on plans to give the campaign additional impetus. W. S. Brooks, secretary of the Illinois Horticultural Society, has given the plan his approval and is supporting it to the utmost.

Men of importance, in large and small towns alike, throughout the entire state have recognized the value of increasing the number of shade and fruit trees in the highways and byways of the state. There is no doubt that the Illinois Nurserymen's Association will bring to strikingly successful completion its campaign to educate people to the value of planting and caring for fruit, shade and ornamental trees and shrubs.

There is little likelihood that so valuable and worthy a campaign will be confined to the state of Illinois. It is only reasonable to expect that this campaign will be the nucleus from which will grow, in the next few years, a campaign of education of this nature which will be nation-wide in its extent.

ROWE'S RAMBLES.

Nursery at Harrisburg, Pa.

Harrisburg bids fair to become the nursery city of central Pennsylvania, as well as the capital city of the state. Three nursery firms now have offices in the city, with the growing grounds almost on the edge of the town.

The Berryhill Nursery Co. is the oldest, having been established about fifteen years ago. At that time the acreage was extremely small; in fact, not much larger than a city block. After about five years of business, a small farm lying east of the city was purchased. Here greenhouses were erected and plans laid for a much larger volume of business. Three years ago a consolidation of an Ohio and a Kentucky nursery was effected by the Berryhill Co., and at present the firm has more than 200 acres in growing stock.

'NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

V. E. BRUBAKER is going into the business of growing hardy perennials at Washburn, Wis.

CHANGES in the Fordney tariff bill by the Senate finance committee are reported on a forward page of this issue.

THE committee on arrangements of the American Association of Nurserymen has secured the Wolverine hotel at Detroit, Mich., as headquarters for the coming convention, in June.

THE incorporation of the Whall Nursery Co., San Antonio, Texas, took place March 13, 1922, with a capitalization of $2,500. The incorporators are Walter Whall, 313 West Cevallos street, and others.

THE nursery business so far this season has not come up to the expectations of the trade. Activity has become general since April, but the loss in March is not likely to be made up, however long the season may prove to be.

A SERIES of five lectures on home landscape work was given recently in various communities in Seattle and King county, Wash., by A. M. Doerner, professor of landscape gardening at the Washington State College. Nurserymen were active in arranging this schedule.

THE commission to prepare a detailed landscape planting plan for the Evergreen cemetery, at Seattle, has been awarded to Howard E. Andrews & Co., of Seattle, Wash. The current plans call for making this one of the finest memorial grounds in the Pacific northwest.

C. M. HOBBS & SONS, Marion, Ind., find a good demand for practically all nursery stock this season. Prices are a little less on some items, but on scarce sorts they are about the same as last year. There seems to be an especially good demand for fruit trees among commercial planters and an active demand for shade trees.

J. A. YOUNG, father of the "Plan to Plant Another Tree" campaign, recently caused to be sent out, in a bulletin of the Illinois Nurserymen's Association, the offer to supply the slogan in rubber-stamp form to any nurseryman who would write to a certain address for it. Within a few days 178 requests were received and they came from almost every state in the Union, indicating that the Illinois idea soon will be adopted nationally.

EASTERN TAX CONTROVERSY.

The controversy that has arisen between the several nurserymen in Middletown, Conn., and the tax assessors is being watched with considerable interest by the nurserymen, greenhouse men and florists throughout the section. At the recent assessment of taxes, young trees and shrubs under propagation were appraised and taxes assessed thereon. The owners filed protests and have paid the assessments and, at the recent financial meeting of the town, the matter was introduced and discussed, but no action was taken.

The matter raised so serious a question as to whether the tax assessors were within their rights or not that it is to be referred to the state tax commission for a conference with the Middletown assessors, so that the latter can make a report thereon at the adjourned financial meeting, to be held in May.

YOUNG'S PLAN UNDER WAY.

The "Plan to Plant Another Tree" campaign, sponsored by J. A. Young, secretary of the Illinois Nurserymen's Association, and inaugurated by that association during the month of March, is now well under way. Many agencies have been brought into the campaign. Every daily in the state has been asked for its support. The screen, the lecture platform, the banquet table, the pulpit, the grade and high schools, advertising agencies, clubs, organizations and societies of all kinds are doing their share in pushing the campaign to a successful completion. Dr. J. C. Blair, head of the department of horticulture at the University of Illinois, has had his entire staff at work on plans to give the campaign additional impetus. W. S. Brooks, secretary of the Illinois Horticultural Society, has given the plan his approval and is supporting it to the utmost.

Men of importance, in large and small towns alike, throughout the entire state have recognized the value of increasing the number of shade and fruit trees in the highways and byways of the state. There is no doubt that the Illinois Nurserymen's Association will bring to strikingly successful comple-

There is little likelihood that so valuable and worthy a campaign will be confined to the state of Illinois. It is only reasonable to expect that this campaign will be the nucleus from which will grow, in the next few years, a campaign of education of this nature which will be nation-wide in its extent.

ROWE'S RAMBLES.

Nursery at Harrisburg, Pa.

Harrisburg bids fair to become the nursery city of central Pennsylvania, as well as the capital city of the state. Three nursery firms now have offices in the city, with the growing grounds almost on the edge of the town.

The Berryhill Nursery Co. is the oldest, having been established about fifteen years ago. At that time the acreage was extremely small; in fact, not much larger than a city block. After about five years of business, a small farm lying east of the city was purchased. Here greenhouses were erected and plans laid for a much larger volume of business. Three years ago a consolidation of an Ohio and a Kentucky nursery was effected by the Berryhill Co., and at present the firm has more than 200 acres in growing stock.

ROBERT PYLE, President

ANTOINE WINTZER, Vice-President

ATTENTION—Local Nurserymen, Landscapers, Florists

Do you know how good a thing is the Hybrid Rugosa Rose Conrad F. Meyer?

As fine in color and form as good old La France. Hardy as an oak. Strong growing habit. Very free flowering. Glossy, healthy foliage. Fine for group and division line planting.

It is one of the few varieties of roses which can be advantageously used in general plantings, and with the absolute assurance of having a pleased customer.

Strong, field-grown, dormant, budded plants.....$40.00 per 100

There are hundreds of other kinds of good landscape and garden material offered in our current price list.

Write for Bulletin No. 7, printed April 3rd

Get your name on our mailing list and receive our Bulletins regularly. They are printed every two or three weeks during the winter and spring, so as to keep our offerings as nearly correct as a gratifyingly constant stream of orders will permit.

Use printed letterhead or enclose business card. Private trade not solicited.

Jackson & Perkins Company, Newark, New York State Nurserymen and Rose Growers Wholesale Only the mountains east of Harrisburg, the firm is growing kalmias and rhododendrons in quantity, together with many native trees and shrubs. Branch nurseries are located at Springfield, O., and Sparta, Ky. The business is actively directed by O. P. Beckley, president, and H. C. Carl, treasurer. The landscape department is in charge of Walter Miller.

Old Firm with New Name.

One of the important changes in the nursery and seed trade at Harrisburg is the reorganization of the Holmes Seed Co. This firm has been in business for more than a quarter of a century, confining its operations chiefly to garden, field and flower seeds, and probably Harry L. Holmes, the president, is as well known in the trade as any present-day seedsman.

Since the first of the year the old firm has passed out of existence, so far as the name is concerned, and has been succeeded by the Holmes Seed & Nursery Co., which is incorporated under the laws of Pennsylvania. Mr. Holmes still holds the president's chair and will be the active manager. He will also be chairman of the board of directors, which includes some of the city's best known bankers and business men.

To further the nursery trade, the new company has purchased a farm of 112 acres on the main highway east, which is said to be one of the best farms in the county. The greater part of this property will be used for nursery stock. The seed trial grounds will be near the highway; a reasonable acreage will be used for seed growing, particularly novelties and specialties offered by the firm.

Fern Runners,

HENRY H. BARROWS

Fern Specialist

264 High Street, Whitman, Mass.

Mr. Holmes states that it is the company's intention to feature farm seeds, with oats and corn as leaders.

Richard Guldemond, formerly with a large nursery firm near New York city and recently with the Seabrook Farms, will have charge of the nursery department.

No changes are contemplated at present in the retail store, as this is well located in the center of the city. Mr. Holmes says that business has been exceptionally good, both in the mail order and retail departments.

Third Firm Enters Field.

For the last two summers a signboard west of the city has announced that the Floral Nurseries were soon to be established on the Carlisle pike. The sign should have been changed last year, for in early spring the property began to look like a nursery, and in late summer it seemed to be fairly well established. Within the last month or so the statement has been made that "we are ready for business," either in actual landscape service or in supplying trees and shrubs. Approximately fifty acres of land are in stock, with the necessary buildings and frames. Ernest Morrell is the landscape engineer, and is interested in the management of the new concern.

Rumors of Fourth Nursery.

Stories to the effect that another firm is to begin business this spring have been current since the first of the year. Rumor has it that capital stock in the company has been offered by the promoters; that options have been taken on desirable land, and that plans for buildings have been drawn. Careful inquiry shows that there is a germ of truth in the rumors, but that the proposed company has not been fully organized or incorporated.

PAINESVILLE, O.

Nurserymen in general have every reason to be thankful for the heavy demands for stock of all kinds this spring. The season opened early this year and the weather has been favorable up to last week, when this section was visited by rain about every day.

T. R. Norman & Sons, who make a specialty of perennials, have purchased a new 1½-ton truck, in order to care for their rapidly growing business.

The demand for perennials is especially heavy and not for any one variety, in general, but every variety is selling well. Buyers are looking for sellers.

Joseph W. Kallay & Son, proprietors of the Donewell Nurseries, have their new greenhouse stocked to the brim with evergreens and hardy plants for planting out.

The Storrs & Harrison Co. is having its usual busy season. Express companies and freight departments are working overtime, with much extra help.

Claude Reynolds, of Mentor, O., shipped 50,000 delphiniums recently. This is probably the largest order of one species of plant ever shipped from this locality.

The Painesville Garden & Greenhouse Co., which has decided to go into the plant-growing business, has also started in cut flowers. At present the firm is purchasing its stock from the cities of Mentor and Cleveland, but eventually will grow cut flower stock, etc.

David W. Radcliffe recently opened a flower store at the corner of St. Clair and Main streets.

James B. Knight, of Willoughby, O., was a recent visitor and reports business good.

Victor Cole, son of W. B. Cole, is ill with pneumonia.

Kallay Bros. are having a busy season. "Our wholesale and retail orders are much heavier than last year," says Bela Kallay, manager of this concern.

Thomas J. Murphy has sold delphiniums and perennials in large quantities during the last two weeks. Business has been good with him; in fact, much better than anticipated.

C. C. Hallinan is sending out large orders of perennial stock.

George Martin is always optimistic in his views and says business never was better, and wishes that he had three times as much stock to offer.

Fred Endress & Son have a nice lot of Lilium regale to plant out this spring.

Arthur Nichols, of W. H. Nichols & Son, began plowing last week. He is always one of the first to start the planting season. T. J. M.

DOUBLE BABY'S BREATH.

SCHOOL GARDENS.

Benjamin Hammond, as chairman of the school garden committee of the Society of American Florists, has sent out a greeting to the school trustees of America, showing the benefits of school gardens and urging the school trustees to support the movement for them. He states that the florists in each town will assist the school trustees in this work, which they should be glad to do. The greeting, on a large sheet of enameled paper, carries several pictures of flower gardens, to reinforce Mr. Hammond's urgings.

This month Mr. Hammond begins enrolling the boys and girls of his home town, Beacon, N. Y., in the Beacon Home Garden Brigade for this season. The founder of this organization, Mr. Hammond, offers each year several prizes to the boys and girls who produce the best examples of home gardening in various respects, and awards certificates of merit to those who work in the brigade. The Home Garden Brigade was started in 1909 in Beacon and has done much to beautify that town, a matter of much pride to Mr. Hammond.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

USING 3-INCH BOILER FLUES.

I have three houses to heat, one of which is 60x150 feet; another is 20x100 feet and the third is 10x150 feet, with glass only in the roof. The heating apparatus will consist of a 35-horsepower hot water boiler, with 3-inch boiler flues as the piping in the houses. How many runs will be required in these houses to maintain 55 degrees, where the temperature outside hovers around 10 degrees above zero in the winter? The houses are detached, with cement walls four feet high. G. H. B.—Md.

Whether one flow pipe or a larger number of small pipes should be used for each of the houses, will depend upon the arrangement of the houses and the location of the boiler.

If possible, use independent pipes, both for the flows and returns, to each of the houses. The house 60x150 feet will either require one 7-inch flow pipe or four 4-inch flows. In the house 24x100 feet, use one 4-inch flow pipe, doing the same in the house 10x150 feet. This arrangement would require six 4-inch openings or one 7-inch and two 4-inch openings for the flow pipes, with the same number for the returns.

Five overhead flows and fifteen returns will be required for the wide house, if 3-inch boiler tubes for the heating pipes are used, but if 4-inch openings are selected, put in four 4-inch overhead flows and sixteen 3-inch boiler pipes as returns.

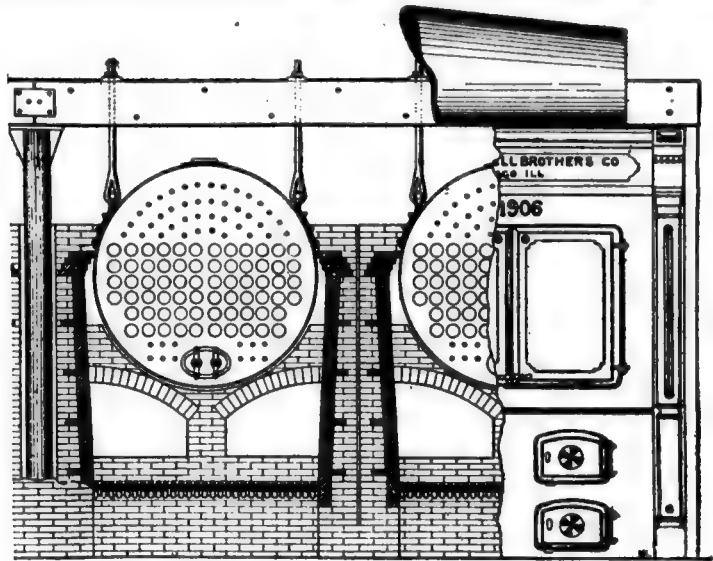

In the house 24x100 feet, two 3-inch tubes will be needed as flow pipes and six tubes as returns. For the narrow house only two flows and two returns will be required.

One flow should be placed upon each side wall plate, and in the wide house place two others under the purlins, while with five flows one should be placed under the ridge.

In case the mercury only drops to 10 degrees above zero a few times during the winter, good results could be obtained with one 6-inch main flow or three 4-inch flows, with returns of the same size. But no reduction should be made in the number of the pipes in the coils.

HEATING THREE HOUSES.

I am sending you a plan of my range, consisting of one greenhouse, 33x100 feet; a second, 15x50 feet; the third, 15x35 feet; a dwelling house, a boiler room and potting shed. Together with this I am submitting a plan for heating this range which I evolved myself, and which seems to me to be suitable for the purpose. Will you kindly give this plan a careful perusal, advising me as to the feasibility of this plan? The large house has 7-foot side walls, with

KROESCHELL FUEL ECONOMY

Higher production efficiency with lower costs is what every business is striving for nowadays. To the greenhouse man this means more and better stock with less operating expenses.

Coal is the big item for the grower. Each ton of coal he can save adds greatly to his profits.

For fuel economy there is no better boiler than the Kroeschell High Pressure Steam Boiler. It burns the lowest grades of coal, requires less, and gives more heat.

Kroeschell Boilers can be depended on at all times. They insure conditions necessary for raising the highest grade stock. The profits of hundreds of growers have been increased by raising better stock with less fuel in houses heated by Kroeschell Boilers.

BECAUSE PLIBRICO is jointless, it makes boiler settings without air leaks or gas leaks, thereby permitting the utilization of all possible heat units. That means a big saving in any greenhouse, where the fuel bills are always an important item.

PLIBRICO is easily applied by any man about the plant. When baked and properly vitrified it forms arches, baffles, side walls—all parts of the boiler setting—hard as rock and resistant to heat up to 3100° F.

degrees below zero. I wish to place the pipes so as to dispose of the necessity of running them the full length of the houses, to avoid the shading which will occur and the extra expense of the cost of the pipe.

The plan I have is to run a main flow through the center of the houses north and south, branching off and putting the flow pipes under the benches and returning to the center, where it will flow into a large return pipe. What size of pipes would be required to take care of the heating? I will use 2-inch pipe for the coils under the benches. How much lower should the boiler be set than the lowest point of the return pipes? Would a No. 4 Kroeschell boiler be large enough to heat this range?

E. B.—Mich.

The sketch shows one house 33x100 feet, running east and west; one house 15x50 feet, on the north side of the large house, and one house, 15x35 feet, on the north side of the 15x50-foot house. At the west end of the 15x35-foot house there is a 15x15-foot dwelling.

The arrangement suggested above would carry the mains across the east end of houses No. 2 and No. 3 and across house No. 1, at the center, with coils running both ways to the ends of this house.

To heat house No. 1 to 65 degrees will require about 1,560 square feet of radiation, or 780 square feet in each end of the house. It is not clear just how the radiation is to be arranged, but if it is all to be with 2-inch pipes, about 1,250 linear feet will be needed in each end of the house. This may be arranged as nine flows and eighteen returns. The other houses will need 300 square feet of radiation each. This will require three flows and seven returns in each house.

Much better results could be secured from five 2½-inch overhead flows and eighteen 2-inch returns in the wide house and three flows and six returns in each of the other two houses.

The main flow and return for the large house should be of 6-inch pipe. One 4-inch flow would answer for both of the smaller houses, or a 3-inch flow may be carried to each house. The main returns should be of the same size as the flow pipes.

A No. 4 Kroeschell boiler will be of ample size for the three houses. It will be advisable to have the top of the boiler at least as low as the lowest part of the returns, and if it can be two or man, former superintendent of city parks; Samuel Shorey and Mrs. F. S. Pomeroy, dahlia growers; George Cooper, nurseryman; Samuel Goodner, horticulturist at the University of Washington; Thomas B. Hill, of the state development bureau, and R. T. Reid, secretary-treasurer of the Western Washington Horticultural Association.

Minor decorations and heavy funeral work have been features at the Pinehurst Floral Shop, and sales of ferns have increased also.

Bulbs and roots for planting have exceeded seeds in the sales for Irving Harris, at the Bon Marche, with small potted items in good demand.

The Woodlawn Flower Shop is remodeling a part of its basement, and putting in a new stairway leading down from the upstairs salesroom. This will make available a light room about 40x60 feet, which can be used for the display of Easter lilies, potted poinsettias for Christmas, and other special sales, doing away with the necessity of rearranging the general salesroom whenever a special flower holiday comes along. An extensive window display of cacti by this shop attracted attention.

Business has been holding well up to standard with Kenney's, and this shop continues to feature some of the finest hydrangeas on the market. The results from funeral work have been especially good on medium-sized pieces.

Specially made fancy boxes of tulips, or of tulips and hyacinths, have been offered by the Orpheum Floral Co., along with some fine ferns. Hospital business is a good factor in late sales.

The City Flower Shop has been showing some of the finest roses now in the market, this being especially true of the red varieties. A better shipping trade has been seen of late.

The B. E. Hammond Co. has made extensive preparations for handling the Easter lily shipping demand and, from present indications, these are going to be good this year. There has been some October 19, 1921.

L. C. Stroh & Sons,
Batavia, N. Y.

Dear Sirs:

We are more than pleased with our Thoro-Mix Soil Shredder and would not be without it for many times its cost. We are using it entirely for breaking up rough, cloddy, partly rotted cow manure and mixing it with soil. It requires four men forking and shoveling this manure and soil to keep the machine working at its maximum and it puts the material in much better shape and in less time than ten men could by hand.

Yours truly,

and to date we have yet to hear of a single dissatisfied purchaser. We have sold soil shredders to florists in nearly every section of the United States and some in Canada. These machines are working under all sorts of conditions, in all kinds of soil, preparing soil and fertilizer into ideal condition for bench, compost or potting work.

Thoro-Mix was the center of attraction at the Indianapolis National Show and some of the most prominent growers placed their orders while there. You, too, regardless of the size of your plant, have need for a Thoro-Mix Soil Shredder. Write for circulars and testimonials.

Of Interest to the Smaller Grower— THORO-MIX, Jr.

To satisfy the demands of the growers with up to 20,000 feet of glass, we have built a smaller machine at a lower price that will do everything the larger machine will do. holding back on the part of buyers on the matter of getting their orders in early, however. Most of the growers advise that their deliveries will be mainly small-stalked plants this year.

Rosaia Bros. handled the store decorations for the opening of the first Pacific coast branch of a national clothing house, using a profusion of baskets with seasonal flowers. Some fine hydrangeas are coming in and these have been grouped with yellow daffodils to produce a beautiful blue and yellow window.

A good run of shipping orders is reported by the Seattle Fern & Moss Co., both on ferns and other greens.

The Art Floral Co. has been showing hardier stock for transplanting, and only a little good weather is needed to bring about a strong demand for this class of offering.

The sales of cut flowers have been good with Felix Rosaia. A few small decorations have also been handled.

Angelo Lavagetto, who has been connected with the Olsson greenhouses at Spokane, has been added to the force of the Thomas Floral Co., and started his new work last week. H. M.

Alexander W. Teaze and Albert L. Chase have been summoned for petit jury duty in the Superior court for Newport county.

F. P. Garretson has commenced the addition to his greenhouse, on Mill street, a house fourteen feet square, to be used as a propagating house.

Antone Bulk, nurseryman of Boskoop, Holland, has joined forces with his brother-in-law, E. Kempenaar, of Kempenaar & Christensen.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The weather has been everything but spring-like. The incessant rains, with a fall of snow of about four inches and the temperature high one day and low the next, have been disappointing to the growers. There are a lot of lilies that will be available if they get suitable weather. Bulbous stock is coming along rapidly. Other potted plants, such as rambles, genistas, cinerarias and primroses, are making an excellent showing. Ferns and palms are also plentiful and of good quality. The cut flower market has not been as brisk as that of two weeks ago, but stock has moved well, with practically no waste. Roses have been plentiful and have sold readily. Orchids, valley and cypripediums are in good supply and move well. Violets continue to be fairly good and sell well. The violet outlook for Easter is not encouraging. Sweet peas are plentiful and of excellent quality. They will be in good supply for the holiday. Carnations are tightening a little. The quality is good. Myosotis, calendulas, bachelor's buttons, bulbous stock, mignonette, daisies and snapdragons are included in the daily arrivals.

Hugo Teute, of Brighton, N. Y., has made plans for the erection of a conservatory, 40x300 feet. The work will be undertaken by the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, at an early date. H. J. H.

Champaign, Ill.—Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Yeats and their son, J. E. Yeats, Jr., arrived at their home here recently after spending the winter in the Isle of Champaign, near Miami, Fla. Mr. Yeats has spent the last three winters in Florida and during that time has planted the Florida place to palms, ferns, bougainvilleas, etc. There is also a strawberry patch, which even at this time is full of fruit. Then there are limes, oranges, bananas and other tropical fruits.

CLEVELAND CLUB DOINGS.

Our secretary, Charles F. Barteau, says that we are due for a wonderful meeting April 10. Reports from the national show will be heard. Homer Frey will address the club on new glazing compounds. This will be interesting to our growers.

President McLaughlin was at the national show, and reports that Cleveland did her share well. C. Merkel & Sons' rose garden, which took third prize, was a great attraction. Several other Cleveland exhibits won prizes.

The flower show to be given by a Cleveland florist is going to be especially fine. It is to be held at the establishment of Albert Barber, at Euclid and Superior avenues. The greenhouse which paralleled Euclid avenue was remodeled, and the plate glass windows make a frontage of nearly 100 feet.

Charles Felton, of Buffalo, stopped off in Cleveland on his way home from Indianapolis. He owns three stores in Buffalo and went to the establishments of C. Merkel & Sons and Carl Hagenburger to buy plants.

A new store, under the management of Mr. Johnson, was opened on the Heights, April 1, by Felton's for Flowers. A splendid location has been secured. The other two stores of this firm report a large business.

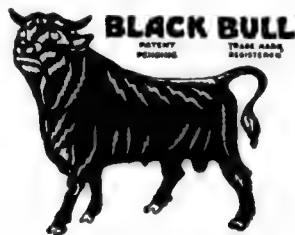

The annual show of the J. M. Gasser Co. will consist of acres of flowers.

Lars Anderson, of Rocky River, is almost in a class by himself with hydrangeas.

A. C. Fox, who took over the Naumann greenhouse range, is certainly coming to the front as a grower. His place has a healthy lot of plants.

A flower show is being held by Utzinger's, Witthuhn's, Lovell's, Kramer's, Daisy Hill Farms, the Bate Bros., Asher M. Coe and others.

Business looks good everywhere. There is a tendency toward pre-war prices, which means people will buy flowers now freely. A. T. F.

The Market.

There is a decided improvement in business. Although the weather has been clear and warm, there is a scarcity of lilies. Bulbous stock of all kinds is arriving too fast and, unless cool weather comes, it is going to be a task to hold down the blooms. Roses and carnations are mostly in demand. The markets clear on these each day. Carnations bring $6 per hundred. Roses are scarce and short-stemmed. Premier is the favorite, followed by Columbia. Jonquils and daffodils are beginning to wane. Home-grown violets are plentiful, at 50 cents to 75 cents per hundred. Sweet peas are getting shorter and heavier. Valley is fine.

Various Notes.

Many heated debates and newspaper articles are heard and seen daily on the Mothers' day question. Mrs. Hochstetter, of the Mothers' day committee of Nebraska, has waged war on the florists and is trying to introduce the wearing of badges.

J. J. Hess and Miss Ellen Ferrick returned last week, after attending the national flower show.

At the weekly bowling contest Omaha defeated Council Bluffs two out of three games. However, the Omaha team fell short in the total number of pins and paid for the luncheon. T. E. E.

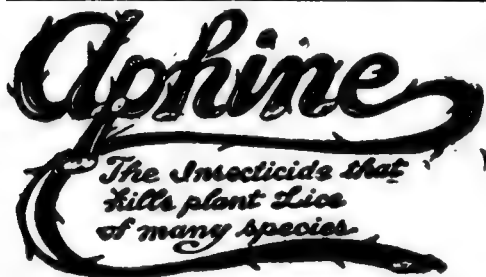

GUARANTEED FLOWERS.

Considerable newspaper publicity has been obtained by James Hayes, Topeka, Kan., as a result of his "guaranteed flower bond." This was announced in a full-page advertisement in the Topeka Capital, Sunday, March 19, and Mr. Hayes is spending a good many dollars in advertising his bond. The bond is a small slip of paper, which is placed in every order of flowers sent out, and reads as follows:

HAYES' GUARANTEED FLOWER BOND.
If these flowers are not satisfactory in every respect they will be replaced with other flowers or the money will be cheerfully refunded.

James S. Hayes.

Mr. Hayes is pushing the word "guaranteed" to the limit and he plans to change the name on his stationery, trucks, windows, etc., to read "Hayes' Guaranteed Flowers." From the comment which has been made on this move locally, Mr. Hayes believes it will be a great success.

Mr. L. C. Vinson:
Secy. Ohio Dist. Growers' Assn.,
227 High Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

Dear Mr. Vinson:

I am enclosing, herewith, circulars on Casein Spreader and Adhesive, a preparation used in spraying materials. I want to say that we have given this material a thorough try-out on our own premises in spraying with bordeaux mixture and arsenate of lead on our young and also replanted rose plants, where we found it especially good.

In fact, we think so much of it that I feel justified in calling the Growers of each District for any kind of spraying. I feel quite certain that you will confer a great favor upon the members of your organization by putting this matter before them at your next meeting.

Very sincerely yours,
(signed) J. F. Ammann, Secretary.

The Casein Spreader and Adhesive for Greenhouse and Garden Sprays

Ask your dealer, or mail this coupon to New York Office.

Enclosed please find 40 cents. Mail me sample package KAYSO, sufficient for 200 gallons of spray.

Name

Address

KAYSO is specially adapted for Florists' use with Nicotine Sulfate, Flowers of Sulfur, Lead Arsenate, Bordeaux Mixture and other spray solutions or combinations.

KAYSO is non-caustic—does not burn—costs less than other spreaders—makes your spray stick—convenient—no cooking—you sift it directly into the spray tank.

The Casein used in KAYSO manufacture is specially prepared for the purpose—properly pulverized and quickly soluble. No spray injury can result from the use of KAYSO.

CYCLAMENCYCLAMEN SEEDLINGS.

In offering our block of 300,000 TRANSPLANTED CYCLAMEN SEEDLINGS to the trade, we can emphatically recommend them as a superior grade of plants, in as much as we have specialized on CYCLAMEN for years, and are constantly improving our strain and methods of growing.

Through the use of a specially prepared compost, we have produced wonderful root action and a fine foliage, in fact we have never had a finer lot of seedlings of the very best known varieties. We established a new record with our CYCLAMEN plants last fall when we shipped them in full carload lots to the East.

Remember—Our plants have no trace or sign of the mite or any other diseases CYCLAMEN are subject to.

Orders booked in rotation. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Arthur Hans, Prop., Woburn, Mass.

VERY SPECIAL!

For $12.00 I will send 5000 selected bulblets of the new pure white Gladiolus Lilywhite and include 10 blooming size gratis. Lilywhite is the long desired pure white Gladiolus of vigorous, healthy growth; great multiplying power; straight spikes opening six to eight blooms at a time; an ideal forcer, early as Halley and the best commercial pure white to date.

Awarded first prize by New York, Massachusetts and St. Thomas, Ontario, Canada, Horticultural Societies and American Gladiolus Society.

This variety will be grown eventually by the million and practical florists will get stock at once.

Send for our descriptive list of cut-flower varieties suitable for retail florists; also testimonials from leading growers.

P. O. BOX 555, GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.
 "THE HOME OF TRUE GLADIOLI."

MR. GLAD. GROWER.

You cannot go wrong on La Couronne. Get a start on this highly colored, early Glad., one of the best, but little known. Color, Ivory-white, lower petals shading to deep yellow bases, blotched and stippled brilliant scarlet, increases rapidly.

No. 1.

$5.00 per doz., $35.00 per 100 postpaid.
 Bulblets, $4.00 per 100.

GEO. J. JOERG,

New Hyde Park, L. I., N. Y.

GLADIOLUS AUTUMN QUEEN.

Creamy-yellow suffused with a very delicate rose-pink, lower petals blotched maroon; large well opened flowers on a long straight spike. A late bloomer and stands the early autumn frosts in northern Michigan the best of any Gladiolus that has been grown here.

I am discontinuing the growing of Gladioli and, in order to dispose of the remainder of my stock, I am making the following offer:
 5,000 1 1/4-in. and up $22.00 per 1000
 4,000 1 1/4 to 1 1/2-in. 17.50 per 1000
 3,000 1 1/4 to 1 1/2-in. 12.00 per 1000

20 per cent discount on lots of 5,000 bulbs.
 40 per cent discount on entire stock.

ANTHEMIS KELWAYII.

This is sometimes called everblooming summer
Chrysanthemum. These large field-grown plants will bloom for Decoration day and continue throughout the summer and fall. A most beautiful sulphur yellow. Fine for florists' work.

Large Clumps, $10.00 per 100.

Artemisia Pedemontana. A most beautiful, hardy perennial plant. With feathery and lacey-like silvery foliage; a fine plant for mixed border and a very good bedder. Its chief value we have found is its decorative value; either green or dried, it easily finds a use. Try it, you will wonder how you got along without it. Strong 2-in. plants, $6.00 per 100.

SEEDS

HYBRIDIZED DAHLIA SEED.

This seed is raised from the most up-to-date Dahlias in existence. No place in the world have Dahlias been brought up to such perfection as they have been around San Francisco. This mixture contains all colors and types of Peony, Cactus and Decorative varieties. Our rainless California summers make it possible to get seed even from the very double varieties, a result extremely difficult in States where it is rainy during the time when the seed should set.

The seed we sent out in previous years was highly praised by all who raised Dahlias from it, but this seed is far superior to what we have sent out in previous years. The seedlings will commence to flower two months after sowing and almost a month earlier than plants raised from bulbs.

Price per 100 seed.....$1.00
Price per 100 seed, fancy selected..... 8.00
Walden, N. Y., Feb. 14, 1921.

Richard Diener, Co., Kentfield, Cal.
Gentlemen: The Dahlia Seed received from you last year turned out fine. Could not think Dahlias could be grown from seed in such short time. Had some very fine blooms. One yellow Peony flowered that was extra fine, some 8 inches and a clear canary-yellow. Everyone who saw it was amazed at the size grown from seed. Had a clear flesh-pink; beautiful under lamp light. Respectfully, Wm. McBrier.

SPOTS ON VINCA VINES.

Our vinca vines are affected with a black spot on the leaves and as soon as they are touched they fall off. What is the trouble with these plants, and what can be done to alleviate the situation?
W. G.—Ia.

Probably the plants are being kept too cool and damp. Give them a drier and warmer house, and do not spray overhead. Remove the affected leaves and give the plants a spraying with Bordeaux mixture or any other good fungicide. Repeat the sprayings weekly until the trouble disappears. C. W.

THEY WISH THEY HAD MORE!

No one can guarantee the results from advertising, as a great deal depends on the way the offer is presented, how it compares with others, and on the extent of the demand. But in this trade there almost always is a demand, somewhere, for every kind of stock—and The Review goes everywhere. The result is like this:

We wish we had more stock to offer, but you have practically sold us out. We have had to return about as many checks as we have cashed.
—A. F. Atkin Co., Bowling Green, O., March 30, 1922.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

New houses of A. L. Miller at Jamaica, N. Y. equipped with Concrete Benches

A. L. Miller of Jamaica, N. Y., is one of many growers who uses Concrete Benches

A. L. Miller, one of the best known and progressive growers in this country, is fast replacing his wood benches with those made of concrete. In his large establishment he has always been careful with bench construction, using none other but the best in wood, No. 1 Cypress. Yet he has concluded that concrete benches are the better because rebuilding is never necessary and repairing expenses are brought to an end. Careful investigation caused him to employ our services for the construction of concrete benches, he took advantage of our long years of bench building experience and knowledge on the subject. He, like hundreds of other growers in every section of the country, is well satisfied and we point with pride to the everlasting benches in the houses of A. L. Miller. Perhaps you have benches that have outlived their usefulness, that need replacing—or you may desire to figure for your future needs. In either event we suggest that you permit us to place in your hands, at this time, information and data that will be the means of saving money—that will overcome for all time your bench building problems.

Your request places you under no obligation.

Concrete Benches—the first cost the last cost.

Ever heard of one of our "finely designed" eaves falling?
 Ever heard of any grower kicking because they didn't cast enough shade?
 Ever heard of one who had the dripless eave, that wished he had drip gutters?
 "No." And neither have we.

These Two Drawing Knives And That One Greenhouse Eave

You will recall how, in our last advertisement, we discussed the question of design and good looks and their importance in relation to good greenhouse construction. Remember that we said, that the best tool was the tool of the best design.

Just take, for example, a straight old-fashioned drawing knife that granddad had in his tool box. Have you ever tried it alongside one of a Keen Kutter with its curved blade and slant-off handles? You and I perhaps can't tell why the Keen Kutter cuts so much easier, but the man who designed it can.

Now just go over in your mind any tool—planes, hammers, anything you choose, and compare its present day design with the old-timey ones; and in every case the better the design, the better the tool works.

By the same token, take our construction at the eave. Notice how clean-cut and free from clumsiness it is. Notice the rafter and post is in one continuous piece and how gracefully it curves at the eave line.

Notice the total absence of all splicing plates. Notice the absence of a drip gutter and its fittings.

Still you know full well, that the one-piece post and rafter has all the strength needed. And as for the drip gutterless eave; you are convinced beyond all argument, that our dripless eave is the simple common-sense way of taking care of the drip.

Has our construction lost anything of its strength and efficiency, because it has good looks? Not a bit of it!

It has gained!

You know umbrellas used to be made with heavy reed bows bigger than a lead pencil.

When someone designed one of steel and gave a more graceful curve to the roof, so to speak, it was pooh-poohed as a toy.

All good enough for dainty women, but never for red-blooded men.

Would you carry one of those old reed-ribbed blunderbusses today?

Still you consider yourself a red-blooded man.

Then why think of buying greenhouses of blunderbuss design?

You know we go anywhere for business. Or to talk business.

"The Best Houses on My Place"

Furnished for Mr. Phil. J. Goebel, Jr., at Kirkwood, Mo.

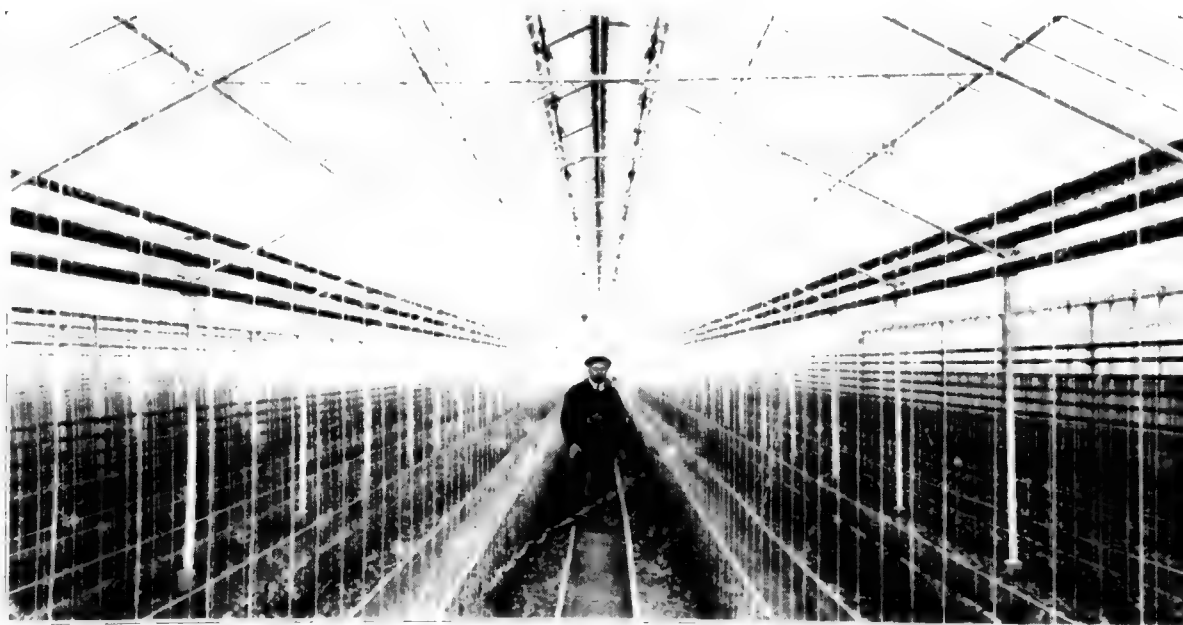

Last Summer we furnished the material for two houses 40x200 to Mr. Goebel.

Shortly afterward he wrote and told us that he had built them completely in four weeks' time, including the heating pipes and all. That is a very good record, for it shows that Mr. Goebel is a hustler and incidentally that Moninger materials are made right and fit properly.

Of the ventilating machinery Mr. Goebel says he can turn the hand-wheel with his little finger and raise the 200 ft. run of sash. That is what the right principle, roller bearing hangers and careful machine work will accomplish.

It pays to buy Moninger greenhouses.

When may we send you an estimate?

The E. G. Hill Company Builds Two Number One Construction Each 41 ft. 9 x 250

A few weeks ago I was passing through Richmond, Indiana, on my way to Chicago.

Just to see what he would say, I asked the conductor what Richmond was noted for.

His reply was: "Say, man, don't you know? Where you been? Don't you do no reading or anything? Why, this is the home of Fair Ophelia and all her folks. Out that way about a couple of miles, lives her fine old daddy, E. G. Hill, and his son-in-law, Earl Mann. Together they are the E. G. Hill Company, known the world over as hibernaters and producers of more worth while roses than anybody else."

Of course I thanked him for having written half the ad for me, and now here's my other half.

"E. G." shies at picture taking. But we caught this when he was off guard. Next time we hope to catch Mr. Mann.

It's 25 or 30 years ago since "E. G." bought his first L & B Iron Frame Houses, which he later on sold to Mr. Fred Lemon, the retail florist, who says they are just as good as they ever were.

It was Earl Mann, Secretary, Treasurer and General Manager of the Company, who gave us this order.

They were simply forced to build, their business has grown so tremendously.

It is indeed something of a feather in our cap to say that E. G. Hill Company's roses are grown in our houses.

It puts a seal of satisfaction on our houses that is no small thing.

When you are ready to talk building, say when and where and we'll be there.

Don't Be Caught Short

Without our patented cardboard Wreath Forms

Experience has shown us that most of our trade has paid too much for their Wreath Forms because they held back their orders until shipment had to be made by express. This increased the cost of the merchandise from 25 to 35 per cent. Besides, our customers lost business because they did not have the goods on hand—their customers would not wait when delivery could not be made at once. The profit on such specialties comes through having the goods on hand when wanted. It does not pay to approach the Christmas holidays with little goods on hand.

Therefore we suggest to you that you place your orders now for fall requirements in Christmas Wreath Forms.

Send for our line of samples of cardboard Wreath Forms as illustrated in this advertisement. Do it now. Prices and samples will be sent gratis on request. We make the following sizes:

Wreath Forms—4, 6, 8, 10, 12 and 16-inch.

Star Forms—4, 6, 7, 9 and 12-inch.

Heart Forms—5, 6 and 7-inch.

Cross Forms—14x21-inch and 18x30-inch.

THE NEW JAPANESE KURUME AZALEAS

Unquestionably these new Azaleas are the most important flowering plants that have come forward since the introduction of the Lorraine Begonias and its types and the French Hydrangeas, and we believe they will, in a short time, due to the ease with which they are handled, their many varied colors, and the satisfaction they will give to the amateur, become even more popular than these standard favorites.

The illustration here shown is a 5-inch pot plant, the photograph of which was taken just eighteen months after the cutting was inserted in the propagating bench. It is one of the plants that was shown in our exhibit at the International Flower Show at New York, which attracted so much attention. This plant demonstrates the speed with which good salable plants with an abundance of flowers can be developed.

It will be noticed that with the exception of the variety Hinamayo, introduced some 6 or 8 years since, we are offering these new introductions under descriptive English names and not under the Japanese names under which they were imported. This may be open to criticism but in explanation of same we will state that the Japanese stock supplied to us was so badly mixed, 3 and 4 different colors having been supplied under one label so that identification was impossible. Furthermore, we believe the trade, as well as the public in general, will better appreciate the descriptive names under which we are now offering them.

YOUR ASSORTMENT OF EARLY SPRING AND EASTER FLOWERING PLANTS HAS BEEN GREATLY CURTAILED THROUGH THE EFFECTS OF QUARANTINE 27. YOUR CUSTOMERS COMPLAIN OF THIS LACK OF VARIETY AND SAMENESS. THE KURUME AZALEAS WILL HELP TO RELIEVE SOME OF THIS MONOTONY.

We are now booking orders for delivery Fall of 1922 and Spring of 1923 of good 2 1/4-in. pots of the following varieties:

Carbonic Safety System

The Kroeschell System is Safe—simple to operate—does not require an engineer.

There is absolutely no fear of explosion—no possibility of danger to the lives of your patrons or employees.

It is noiseless in operation—very little space required.

Kroeschell Equipment, using Carbonic Gas, is the only safe system adaptable to Florist requirements.

—it is the most economical in general use —the initial cost is soon saved, as compared with the old-fashioned method of icing or with any other system of mechanical refrigeration.

—It will outlive any other system of mechanical refrigeration—shown in actual records of service.

We Specialize On

We have been specializing on Florists' Refrigeration for thirty years. During this time we have made a thorough study of the Refrigerating requirements of the Grower of Cut Flowers, the Wholesaler and the Retailer. An entire department of our business is devoted to Florists' Refrigeration.

ICE MACHINES FOR FLORISTS

To keep pace with the times in the face of keen competition, we must increase our efficiency. We must not only produce better goods, but we must also insure ourselves against depreciation in the value of these products during their marketing process. Failing to do this, we cease to progress.

MECHANICAL refrigeration has been made possible by the fact that certain gases, chief among them anhydrous ammonia, carbon dioxide and methyl chloride, when subjected to abnormal pressure, can be transformed from their original or gaseous state to a liquid consistency and will remain in this state as long as the pressure is maintained. This fact, however, would be of little value in itself if it were not for the fact that when the pressure is released, the liquid product evaporates immediately, producing an intense cold in the surrounding atmosphere. This method of refrigeration would be an expensive one if a new supply of the refrigerant were necessary each time that an evaporation took place, but upon experimentation it was found that these gases could be compressed into a liquid state and allowed to evaporate with the same results an infinite number of times without deterioration or loss, as long as the containers were kept air-tight.

How Machine Works.

If any one of these gases is compressed to a liquid state, stored in a container and allowed to escape gradually, it will absorb heat and can be used over and over again, it being only necessary to remove the heat which has been absorbed. With these facts in mind, it will be readily understood that it is only necessary to provide machinery which will accomplish these transformations in order to have a refrigerator in which a temperature as low as 18 degrees above zero, or even less, can be maintained for almost any length of time. Such a machine is made self-regulating by attaching a thermostatic control.

An ice machine consists of a compressor, driven by an electric motor or any form of power found most convenient or economical at the place of installation, which compresses the gas into a container, called a condenser, under pressures varying with the kinds of gas used as the refrigerant, over which a constant stream of cold water flows. The pressure is sufficient to transform the gas into a liquid state and the water flowing over the condenser in turn absorbs heat which the gas picked up on its previous round, thus making the liquid substance ready for its second trip. From the condenser the liquified gas collects in a storage drum, or receiver, from which it is permitted to escape into the expansion coils at a greatly reduced pressure, as low as fifteen pounds per square inch. These expansion coils are placed in the top of the various refrigerating boxes which it is desired to cool and are equipped with valves, both automatic and hand, in case the thermostatic control is attached, which allow the liquified gas to expand gradually from the receiver into the excoils, a material with the greatest heat-conducting properties is used, in order that the greatest amount of heat can be absorbed in the least possible time by the refrigerant.

The thermostatic or automatic control has been made possible by the discovery that certain metals respond readily to temperature changes, expanding or contracting as they become warmer or colder. By using a metal which responds readily to slight temperature changes, a small switch has been perfected which is placed within the cooling box, and any slight variation of the temperature in one direction or the other causes this piece of metal to expand or contract, thus opening or closing the switch, which, in turn, controls the expansion valve, either opening or closing it, allowing more of the refrigerant to pass into the expansion coils if the box is becoming too warm, or stopping the flow entirely in case the temperature in the box goes too low. The supply of water which flows over the condenser is also regulated automatically in the same manner, with the exception that, in this case, air pressure controls the water valve instead of the expanding and contracting metal mentioned above.

Two Systems.

There are two distinct methods of mechanical refrigeration. The method described above is known as the direct system of refrigeration. It is called the direct system because the expansion coils are placed directly within the box to be cooled; these coils are not only within the box itself, but are also directly above the contents of the box. Herein lies a disadvantage in the direct system, because there is ever present the possibility of a leak in the ammonia pipes, and should such a leak occur, the ammonia would ruin the contents of the box if they were exposed, as in the case of flowers in vases. Where carbon dioxide (carbonic acid gas) is used as a refrigerant, this possibility is obviated because carbon dioxide has not the injurious properties of ammonia gas.

The second system of mechanical refrigeration is known as the indirect method. In the indirect method the same apparatus and principles are em-

Occasional references in these columns to mechanical refrigeration and the best types of ice machines for florists have been followed by numerous inquiries on this subject from subscribers. To provide answers to them and to furnish other interested readers with full information on the subject, a careful study has been made by a member of The Review staff, the results of which are here set forth. The facts stated by florists using ice machines are allowed to speak for themselves.

pansion coils, where evaporation takes place and where the heat from the air surrounding these coils is absorbed.

This expansion valve is so regulated that, with the compressor running, the pressure in the refrigerator coils will be sufficiently low to produce the desired degree of temperature. After the refrigerant is completely vaporized—that is, returns to its gaseous state—due to the reduced pressure and addition of heat absorbed in the refrigerator coils, the gas passes to the compressor, which forces it back into the condenser.

Oil traps are also provided to catch the small amount of oil that may by chance creep past the piston rings of the compressor and into the condenser. In the construction of the expansion ployed as in the direct system and, in addition, several brine tanks containing a saline solution are used. The expansion coils are not in the refrigerator, but are placed in some convenient location, immersed in brine tanks. The brine, being cooled by the expansion coils of the machine, is then pumped through the coils in the refrigerator, absorbing the heat and returning to the tank, where it is cooled again. This system can be made to maintain the required temperature in the box during a shut-down of the machine or over night, when it is not desirable to have the compressor in operation. The latter system is somewhat more expensive, but the added security obtained is considered by users sufficient to offset the extra initial cost.

Determining Costs.

The cost of maintaining and operating an ice machine depends upon the cost of power and water in the locality where the machine is to be installed. It is highly important, however, that a florist intending to install a refrigerating system should make an accurate determination of the size of machine necessary for his needs, as a plant of too large a capacity would only tax him with an unnecessary expense. It is thought, however, that a machine should be installed which has a somewhat larger capacity than that absolutely necessary, because in this way the florist is assured of a more even temperature. It is impossible to make an accurate, hard-and-fast rule by which to estimate the capacity of a machine, as the conditions are apt to vary in individual cases. For instance, a 1-ton machine which would adequately supply refrigeration for 1,000 cubic feet contained in one refrigerator, would not supply over 600 or 700 cubic feet if the space is divided among two or three refrigerators, because, in the latter case, there are more walls through which heat will leak. Again, a box which is nearly square will not require so large a machine as one that is not.

The proper temperature for a florist's refrigerator is about 45 degrees. A $\frac{1}{2}$ -ton refrigerating machine will cool approximately 600 cubic feet; a 1-ton machine, 1,000 cubic feet.

The following table gives the approximate cost of a machine of from $\frac{1}{2}$ -ton to 10-ton size, installed, and the cost of electrical current for a machine of each size in Chicago:

Size machine.	Original cost	Cost of electrical power per month
$\frac{1}{2}$ -ton.....	\$1,000	\$ 4
1-ton.....	1,200	18
2-ton.....	1,800	25
4-ton.....	2,500	32
5-ton.....	3,200	45
10-ton.....	6,000	80

Operating Cost.

Refrigerating machines are rated in the tons of refrigeration produced if operated continuously for twenty-four hours. One ton of refrigeration is the amount of cooling produced by the melting of one ton of ice. This is equivalent to 288,000 British thermal units.

It is not necessary to operate the compressor in a refrigerating plant twenty-four hours per day, as usually a compressor is provided of such capacity that the work is performed during a shorter period of time.

The power required to operate the compressor varies from approximately one to one and three-quarter horsepower per ton of refrigeration, depending upon the size of compressor, temperature of condenser water and work to be done. Refrigerating machines may be operated by any available power; namely, steam engine, electric motor, gas engine, etc.

Mechanical refrigeration is far more economical than the use of ice. In practically every case where the refrigerated space amounts to 500 cubic feet or more, it is cheaper than ice. The figures below may be relied upon to determine the cost of operation. From this table any florist can estimate the cost of operating a refrigerating machine. For example, a 4-ton machine requires six kilowatts. At a cost of 5 cents per kilowatt hour, it will cost 30 cents per kilowatt hour to operate this machine. To the figures stated must be added the cost of water and oil, which is an exceedingly small item. Knowing the cost of electricity in your town, you can calculate the cost of operating an ice machine from the following table:

Tons refrigeration	Horsepower required	Kilowatts required for motor
1	2	1.71
2	4	3.43
3	6	5.14
5	9	7.7
6	10.4	8.9
7	11.7	10
8	12.9	11
10	15	13

A formula commonly used by refrigerating engineers is that two horsepower of energy is required to one ton of refrigeration per day. A 1-horsepower motor will consume 746 watts per hour, and other sizes in proportion, according to their rule. The rates for electric current vary from 5 to 10 cents per kilowatt hour. From these data it is possible to calculate the probable consumption of current for any size of motor. Ice machines are run all the way from two hours to twenty-four hours per day and generally about on an average of 270 days in the year.

One might, however, deal in approximate figures and general statements at length and still be as far from knowing the real truth regarding cost and satisfaction in service as before he started to consider the subject under discussion. If one can learn from florists the facts regarding their machines in actual operation, he will be in a better position to determine what there is to be had and what requirements are important. For this reason the remainder of this article deals with specific types of machines and florists' actual experiences with them.

Favored by Florists.

In most of the wholesale florists' establishments in Chicago and in a number of greenhouses and retail stores in the vicinity, as well as in other parts of the country, the Kroeschell ice machine is used. In it carbonic anhydride, commonly called carbonic gas, is the refrigerant. Because carbonic gas is odorless, non-explosive, neutral in effect on perishable goods and quite safe, this machine is built on the direct system, although it is occasionally used in indirect systems. The ice machine is built by the same concern which is widely known because of its boilers used in greenhouses. The Kroeschell ice machine is in units of from one-half ton to 250 tons of refrigeration capacity. A specialty of refrigeration for florists has been made by this concern for thirty years. Study of the trade's requirements has enabled it to provide a compact, economical equipment which increases the cooling capacity of a refrigerator. A hold-over brine storage tank makes necessary only intermittent operation of the machine.

As stated before, a number of the wholesale houses in Chicago use the Kroeschell machine. Such growers as the Joseph H. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., and the A. F. Amling Co., Maywood, Ill., as well as a number of others, use this machine to cool the flowers at their greenhouses before they are shipped.

The new store of George Wienhoeber, on Michigan avenue, Chicago, contains two iceboxes, which are cooled by means of a 3-ton Kroeschell machine. Combining storage and display refrigeration, with all equipment concealed, it is regarded as a noteworthy engineering achievement.

The Kroeschell system of refrigeration was one of the first used by florists. The original Kroeschell installation in the store of the L. Bemb Floral Co., Detroit, Mich., the first Kroeschell machine used in a flower store, has been in continuous service since, operating at present at considerable overload capacity.

The 5-ton machine at the store of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association cools three large storage rooms. The actual operating load considerably exceeds the rated capacity of the machine. The cost of running it is about $50 a month.

At the store of the E. C. Amling Co., a 5-ton machine carries an 8-ton load; in other words, sixty per cent more than its rated capacity. Three large rooms are cooled, two on the first floor and one in the basement.

At the range of the Joseph H. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., is a combination refrigerating and ice-making system. In addition to cooling storage boxes, the machine manufactures 300 pounds of ice each day for use in express shipments of cut flowers.

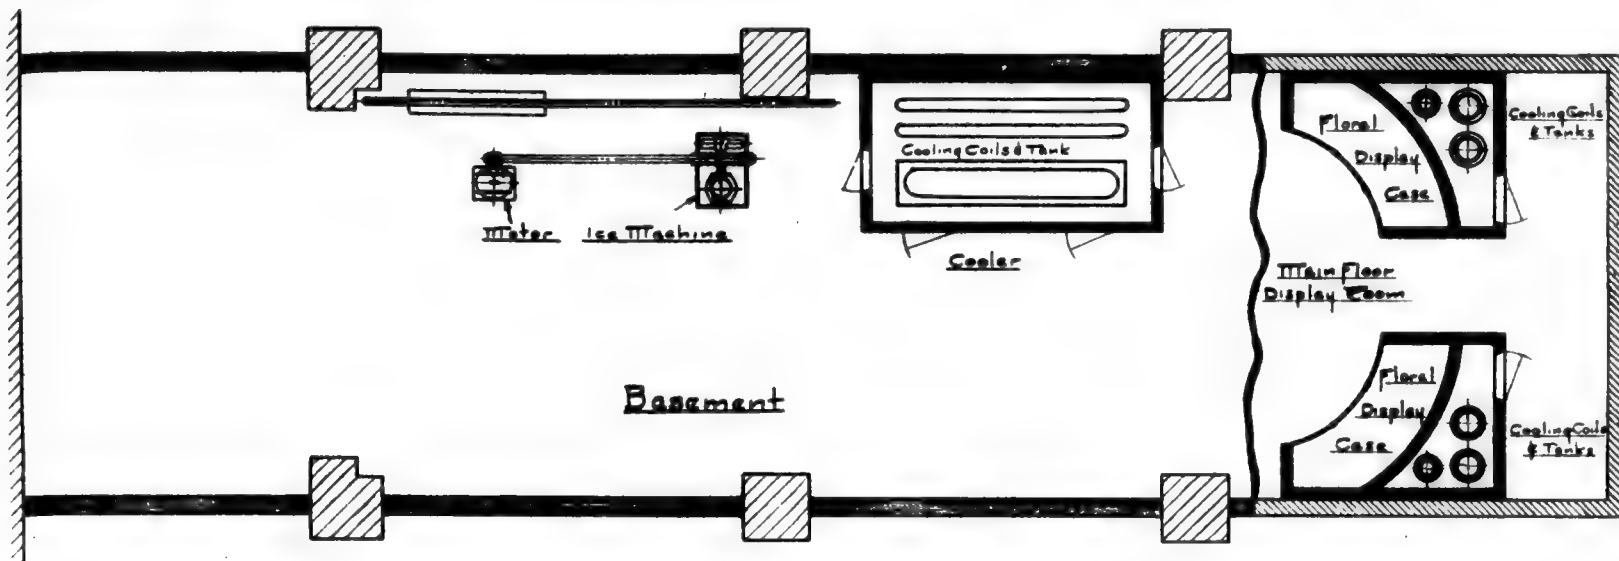

Not only is the Kroeschell favored in Chicago, but also by florists in other cities. Randolph & McClements, Pittsburgh, have a 5-ton machine; Gude Bros. Co., Washington, D. C., has two large ones, while William Schlatter & Son, Springfield, Mass., and Dunlop & Son, Richmond Hill, Ont., have 3-ton machines. Robert Simpson, Clifton, N. J., has a Kroeschell, as have A. Washburn, Bloomington, Ill.; C. Loveridge, Peoria, Ill.; Daut Bros., Decatur, Ill., and William Staaek, Moline, Ill.

Anhydrous Ammonia Machine.

An anhydrous ammonia machine, operating by both direct and indirect methods and of from $\frac{1}{4}$ -ton to 600-ton capacity, is made by the York Manufacturing Co., York, Pa. Several florists have expressed to The Review their opinion of this machine, based on actual experience.

"The average cost of running our 2-ton York machine, including overhauling it once," says A. N. Kinsman, Austin, Minn., "has been $53.27 per year. The power bill averages about $4 to $6 per month and $2 worth of water is used each month. It has been the most satisfactory single investment we have ever made on our range and we would not be without it under any circumstances. We can maintain an even temperature and the flowers keep well in the room."

"We have found that the two York machines that we have in operation, at our store and greenhouses respectively, save us at least twenty-five per cent over the old method of using ice," says Harold M. Joy, of the Joy Floral Co., Nashville, Tenn. "A machine is much cleaner and keeps the flowers much longer. We have also found that the York machine requires practically no repairs and our oldest machine is seven years old. We are of the opinion that the calcium brine tubes are better to hold down the temperature than the brine tanks with coils in them."

Architect's Drawing Showing Ice Machine that Cools Storage Box in Basement and Two Display Cases on Main Floor.

A 4-ton York refrigerating machine, driven by a 20-horsepower gas engine, according to W. K. Brown, superintendent of the C. & G. L. Pennock range, at Lansdowne, Pa., cools a concrete room, 7x12x32 feet, lined with three inches of cork. He says: "The cost of operation is about 35 cents per hour for power and about 1 cent per hour for lubrication. A 100-pound cylinder of anhydrous ammonia will last several years, if the piping is free from leaks. It is possible for us to reduce the temperature in the above-mentioned room at the rate of 10 degrees in ninety minutes to a point 45 degrees above zero. Below this point, however, a little greater length of time is required. In this operation a brine temperature of 15 to 18 degrees is maintained." Mr. Brown believes that the use of the brine tanks in connection with the York machine is highly desirable and, if electricity is available, he advises its use in preference to other forms of power.

Another Ammonia Machine.

A refrigerating machine and equipment suitable for florists' use is manufactured by the Lipman Refrigerator Car & Mfg. Co., Beloit, Wis., in which anhydrous ammonia also is used as a refrigerant. This machine is used by a number of florists.

"We have had a Lipman refrigerating machine in operation for a little over two years," says H. G. Pauli, Davenport, Ia. "We use about five pounds of ammonia a year. The original cost of the machine was about $800 and the cost of the electric wire connections was approximately $85. The upkeep so far is not worth mentioning. The machine consumes about $6 worth of power per month, and the water bill amounts to about $1 per month. We have no brine tank at present, but are figuring on building a box four times as large as the one we now have. We are going to put in a brine tank and are sure that the machine will take care of the new box with little extra cost."

"I would not care to go back to the use of ice, with all of its muss and inconvenience," says Harvey C. Sheaff, president of the firm of Mrs. E. A. Williams, Inc., Pittsburgh, Pa. "We installed a ½-ton Lipman machine in October, 1920, and arranged to cool two boxes continuously, and a third one at any time desired, using ammonia and brine (indirect system). The little machine did its work well, as regards refrigeration, and, even with the lack of mechanical advice and care, we found we could save money. The automatic features have not always worked effectively, but I have been advised that it is on account of a lack of knowledge or care on the part of the mechanic. You can, therefore, see that ours has been somewhat a matter of experiment. I have been advised that the direct expansion system is superior to the brine tank. I would make certain, however, that the engineer who sold the machine or installed it, knew his business. After the machine is installed and operating, it is essential that some one be on the ground, subject to an emergency call, or it might be well to have monthly inspections, which we will have in the future. Our machine is doing finely at present. We have always had faith in it, and would not care to give it up, but it is an experiment, and a great deal depends upon the service your selling agent or his engineers render after the machine is installed."

At the store of the T. J. Noll Floral Co., Kansas City, Mo., a Lipman machine has been in operation over two years without a single repair. "The cost of operation is less than one-third the cost of ice," says this firm, "to say nothing about the saving in space taken up by an ice chamber. A 6-inch space is allowed for hanging the coils on the back of the icebox. The Lipman only covers the pipes with frost and does not form any ice, so that there is only a small amount of drip. Our box is 7x8x30 feet, and our machine is operated with a 2-horsepower motor. This machine holds the box at 46 degrees in any kind of weather at a cost of from $15 to $25 per month. Being strictly automatic, the machine needs no attention except oiling occasionally."

The cost of installing the machine at the store of the Alpha Floral Co., Kansas City, Mo., was about $2,500. This cools the window, eighteen feet long, eight feet deep and ten feet high; one icebox, 8x8x20, which is all glass; one wooden storage box, 8x9x20, and another box, 6x6x16. The only expense in running the machine is about $55 a month for electricity, states this firm, and an average of about $30 a month for storage. The machine now in use, a Lipman, the firm has had about sixteen months and it has not had to be recharged with ammonia. "Before putting in this machine," states the Alpha Floral Co., "we used the city refrigeration, which cost $300 to $400 a month. Never having used ice in these boxes, we couldn't say what it would cost to ice so much space. The machine operates automatically. The thermostat is set in the icebox. We think such a machine is the only thing for a florist, for it doesn't need a mechanic to take care of it. All that needs to be done is to oil it once a week, in three different places, which takes about fifteen minutes."

In Cleveland.

The new store of the Jones-Russell Co., Cleveland, O., which received widespread publicity at the time it was opened as one of the most beautiful flower stores in the country, is equipped with a 2½-ton Phoenix ice machine, made in Cleveland, which is driven by a 5-horsepower electric motor. The ammonia compressor is equipped with a safety relief valve, which eliminates any possible danger that might be caused by the operator starting the machine and forgetting to open the discharge valve. The ammonia receiver is equipped with a liquid gauge glass and safety relief valve. The latter eliminates the danger of explosion in case of fire, for should the pressure in the receiver exceed 250 pounds at any time, the relief valve automatically opens and lets the ammonia escape through a pipe which leads to the roof of the building. The machine cools the storage icebox in the basement and the display cases on the first floor at the back of the store. The refrigerating compartment in the back of the display cases is equipped with three round congealing tanks filled with calcium chloride solution and piped with extra heavy ammonia pipe coils. These tanks make it possible to carry an average temperature of approximately 40 to 45 degrees. The architect's drawing reproduced above shows the location of and floor space occupied by the ice machine and iceboxes in the Jones-Russell store.

The cost of equipment such as was installed for the Jones-Russell Co. is about $3,500. A 1-ton equipment, where there is only one box, not to exceed 8x10x10 feet in size, would cost approximately $1,500 in Cleveland. It is estimated that the maximum cost of operation is $15 a month.

Refrigerating equipment of ten tons' capacity has been installed by the Phoenix Ice Machine Co. for the Temp-lin, Crockett, Bradley Co., Cleveland. This concern, one of the largest mail order seed houses in the country, uses the equipment to refrigerate rooms for storing shrubbery in a dormant condition. For such use, ice machines have value to many nursery firms. By seed houses they are employed for keeping bulbs in cold storage.

In Pennsylvania.

A number of florists in the east have installed Frick ice machines. The Frick Co., large machinery manufacturers, at Waynesboro, Pa., make small refrigerating machines, which use anhydrous ammonia. These may be used in either direct or indirect installations and are adapted for use with any kind of power. The approximate price for the ½-ton outfit is $750. Larger sizes cost proportionately more. This machine is used by the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., and also in the widely known Delaware avenue store of W. J. Palmer & Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

In the East.

Among florists in the east the Brunswick ice machine has attained some favor. This machine uses anhydrous ammonia. The cost of this machine is given approximately as follows: One-half-ton, $1,000; 1-ton, $1,200; 2-ton, $1,500; 4-ton, $2,000. The upkeep per month is estimated at $15 for a ½-ton machine and $20, $25 and $35 for a 1-ton, 2-ton and 4-ton machine respectively. The operating cost depends upon the local cost of electricity; the power consumption is one kilowatt per hour for a ½-ton machine and one and one-half, three, and five and one-quarter kilowatts per hour for the three larger sizes, respectively. The water consumption is one gallon per ton per minute; in other words, a ½-ton machine would use thirty gallons per hour. This machine is in use in the stores of Thomas F. Galvin, Inc., in New York and Boston; the Briarcliff Nurseries, Briarcliff, N. Y.; Pennoek Bros., Philadelphia; Charles Thorley, New York, and the Growers' Cut Flower Co., New York.

In Milwaukee.

The installation in the wholesale store of the Holton & Hunkel Co., at Milwaukee, Wis., was made last year by the Rottel Refrigerating Machine Co., of Milwaukee. The machine made by this company is of the carbonic anhydride type. It was believed that this type of machine would be safer for use with an icebox containing flowers. Of course, in the refrigeration of a florist's box with any type of machine, proper circulation and ventilation are important. A steady temperature is necessary and the humidity of the air must be properly maintained. These conditions are affected by the construction and location of the icebox or cooling room and the manner in which it is used. For that reason careful consideration must be had of all the conditions surrounding, or possibly interfering with, the proper refrigeration of the florist's box.

Another Carbonic Machine.

Another machine of the carbonic anhydride type is made by the Wittenmeier Machinery Co., Chicago. It is stated that a machine of ½-ton capacity for twelve hours' operation, with the tanks and under average conditions, will cost in the neighborhood of $1,300 installed in Chicago. A 1-ton machine, for cooling boxes up to 1,000 cubic feet, would cost approximately $1,800; a 2-ton, $2,100 to $2,400, and a 4-ton, $3,000. Out-of-town installations, of course, necessarily are higher in cost than those in the city where the company is located. The store of Mangel the Florist, in the Palmer House, Chicago, is equipped with this type of machine. The flower booth in the Union station at St. Paul, Minn., is also equipped with it.

Another Eastern Make.

A machine built on the ammonia compression system is made by the Rem-

In this article are described the makes of ice machines most in favor among florists. But the list is not exhaustive. If you have in your establishment one of a make not mentioned here which gives you satisfaction, write The Review, giving the name of the manufacturer as well as of the machine. By so doing you will assist other florists to make the acquaintance of a meritorious machine.

ington Machine Co., Wilmington, Del. The capacity runs from ½-ton up. The smallest size, called a Baby Remington, and a 1-ton size, called Baby Remington's Brother, are portable machines, cost less than $1,000 and appear to be well adapted for florists' use. A number of machines of larger size made by this company have been installed by growers and wholesalers, most of them in the east. The Waban Rose Conservatories, Natick, Mass.; Welch Bros. Co., Boston, and E. J. Asmus, West Hoboken, N. J., have machines of 5-ton capacity. F. R. and P. N. Pierson, at Scarborough, N. Y., have one of four tons. The Leo Niessen Co., Philadelphia, has one of six tons. H. S. Pennoek, at Jupiter, Fla., has one of two tons.

Another Chicago Make.

One of the most efficient of small refrigeration machines is that made by the McClellan Refrigeration Co., Chicago. The machines range in capacity from ½-ton to 2-ton and in price from $761 to $1,046. These prices include the machine complete with motor, but not the cost of pipe work and installation. The operating cost of this machine is small and may be figured as one-fourth to one-third the cost of ice.

In figuring the necessary capacity for a machine, this company bases its estimate on the outside surface of the ice-box. A ½-ton machine will cool a box of 500 square feet of outside surface; a 1-ton machine, 1,000 square feet, and a 2-ton, 2,000 square feet. The McClellan machine is stated by its makers to be particularly suited to establishments that need to economize on space, in which class are florists. The largest machine takes only 3x6 feet of floor space. A unit construction is employed which does away with all wall condensers and other auxiliary units.

Used in Rochester.

A machine using anhydrous ammonia has been made for many years by the Automatic Refrigeration Co., at Hartford, Conn., which has sales offices in many large cities. Two well known florists of Rochester have machines of this make, George B. Hart and J. B. Keller Sons. The company makes machines of from 1-ton to 32-ton capacity. There are a number of special features in this machine, protected by patents, which add to its value from the mechanical point of view.

On the Pacific Coast.

Pacific coast florists will be interested in the machines made by the Armstrong Machinery Co., at Spokane, Wash. The ½-ton machine made by this company will, it is stated, take care of a florist's icebox from twelve to fifteen feet long, ten feet high and ten feet deep, providing a temperature of approximately 45 degrees. The company's price on this machine is $777 in Spokane. Outside installations call for the addition of freight and an engineer's traveling expenses. The same company makes larger types of ice machines up to 15-horsepower. This company has made installations in Spokane for the Spokane Floral Co., A. J. Burt, Eugene's Flower Shop and Jack Burt's Flower Shop.

Uses Methyl Chloride.

A machine using methyl chloride as the refrigerant is made by the Associated Refrigeration Products, Chicago, and is called the Iseboy. Methyl chloride is said not to have the objectionable features of either ammonia or carbon dioxide. Methyl chloride operates at a pressure of only sixty-five pounds, which is even less than ammonia, which operates at a pressure of 180 pounds. There is no odor to methyl chloride and its escape would not injure either cut flowers or growing plants. The Iseboy refrigerating machine is an automatic self-contained unit. Both the compressor and condenser, together with other essential parts, are consolidated on one base. The machine is assembled and tested at the factory and shipped ready for immediate connection and operation. The ordinary ½-ton to ¾-ton installation, including automatic control, costs about $1,500. The cost of a larger machine may be estimated by adding $500 for each additional ton. The Iseboy machine is in use at Raske's Flower Shop, 176 West Jackson boulevard, Chicago.

Some Others.

At the range of L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, N. J., are two Audiffren machines, which were installed by Johns-Manville, Inc. Sulphur dioxide is used in the drum and Mr. Coddington says, "It is the simplest ice machine that I know of to operate. Of course, as in other things, the price is much higher, but it can be run with any power."

The Brecht Co., whose refrigerators are well known by florists, makes, in its factories at St. Louis, the Brecht Crescent refrigerating machine. This machine is built in capacities of from one to thirty tons and is of the anhydrous ammonia type. This machine is extremely simple in construction and combines complete accessibility with high thermal and mechanical efficiency and a low operating cost.

A Sanitary machine is in operation at the store of George F. Forber, at Davenport, Ia. It is a 1/2-ton machine and is automatically regulated by a thermostat within the box. Mr. Forber says: "Before we used artificial refrigeration our ice bill amounted, on an average, to $70 per month. The cost to operate the machine, considering wear and tear, is approximately $20 per month, a saving of $50 monthly over ice. Therefore, a machine of this kind, costing $1,600, will pay for itself in about two years. I believe that no florist who can afford the initial investment required for a machine should be without one."

A machine of the ammonia type is made by the Triumph Ice Machine Co., at Cincinnati, which has offices in other principal cities of Ohio. Many sizes and styles are made. The company does a large export business in addition to its domestic trade, probably because of the simplicity of the Triumph equipment and the effort devoted to that field.

The Arctic Junior is a small machine of the ammonia type adapted to flower stores, made by the Arctic Ice Machine Co., at Canton, O.

Another ammonia machine in 1-ton, 1 1/2-ton, 2-ton and 3-ton sizes is made by the Continental Machinery Co., Chicago. This machine is made in a self-contained unit which can be moved with as much ease as an icebox. This is an attraction to a florist who does not own the building in which his store is located and apprehends the possible necessity of removing.

There are still other makes of ice machines, but in this survey are included those best adapted for and most used by florists. From among them a florist in any locality can choose the type which seems most suited to his particular needs. It has been the aim in this article to point out the important facts about the individual makes, without recommending any, so that each florist will have data to enable him to fit his own requirements to best advantage.

GASSER'S ANNUAL EASTER SHOW.

The magnificent range of the J. M. Gasser Co., located on Wooster road, over a mile from the car service of Cleveland, O., was a solid mass of visitors from morning till night, Palm Sunday, when the annual Palm Sunday show was held. It was estimated that over 20,000 visitors were entertained. This company is Cleveland's pride. There are sixty-eight acres devoted to flower growing, including 342,000 square feet of glass, 125,000 rose plants, 90,000 carnation plants, 150,000 French and Dutch bulbs, 20,000 hydrangeas, 15,000 cyclamens, 25,000 lilies, 10,000 begonias, 3,000 orchids, 7,000 maidenhair ferns, 500,000 gladioli, 50,000 dahlias and 300,000 miscellaneous plants.

The writer went through with the crowd, which was a steady stream. Not a flower was sold or any order taken.

"Say it with Flowers" for EASTER

"Flowers—the only sweet thing God ever made and forgot to put a seal into."

"The Soulful Expression of the Day"

For "her"—mother, or wife or sweetheart—Easter cannot be Easter without flowers. The beauty of the rose—the purity of the lily—the daintiness of the orchid—the fragrance of the sweet pea—the wholesomeness of the violet, the fragrant appeal of the carnation, or the lasting beauty of potted plants can be hers if you place your order early. See your florist now and make your selection. Now is the time to beautify home and grounds with planting of bulbs, flowering shrubs, trees, vines and perennials—what happier thought for Easter Gifts.

Buy Them—Give Them—Enjoy Them

Your florist has made special preparations to serve you for this occasion. His stock is plentiful, so that your selection is assured. But visit him early. Reserve your Easter flowers now. It is not too soon.

Forty-one Firms of Boston and Vicinity Combined in This Page Advertisement.

It is purely a means on the part of the management to educate the public to appreciate flowers and plants. The whole place was one solid mass of blooms and thousands of plants ready for the Easter trade. Easter lilies, hydrangeas, carnations and roses were simply excellent.

Fred C. W. Brown, the manager of the immense institution, has everything well in hand and every member of the organization is ready for the big work. R. Emsley, the superintendent of the growing end at the greenhouses, is deserving of great credit.

It would seem almost impossible to move such a tremendous amount of stock in a week. The Gasser trucks will be augmented by a fleet of outside trucks and Saturday and Sunday, just preceding Easter, the firm uses about fifty taxicabs.

The writer left this magnificent display on Wooster road and walked the mile to the car. The road was one steady flow of cars and the sidewalks were full of people, all headed for the Easter show. Why do not other Cleveland growers follow the example of the J. M. Gasser Co.?

BOSTON'S EASTER ADS.

Nowadays, when advertising appropriations are so large, one almost has to use a page advertisement if he would be heard, particularly in the daily newspapers. Few florists have the means to buy space on such a scale, however. For this reason cooperative advertisements are rather popular in this trade. A good one appeared in the Boston Sunday Herald, April 9, in which forty-one florists of Boston and vicinity were represented. The reproduction on this page shows the advertisement and gives the names of the firms participating.

In the Boston Herald of the same date Penn the Florist used a quarter page in the rotogravure section to advertise "Flowers for Easter," picturing the various items available for the occasion and giving their prices. It was a most effective advertisement.

DUTY ON IMMORTELLES.

Last week the board of general appraisers at the port of New York sustained a protest of M. Goldfarb, covering immortelles dried and dyed, which had been returned for duty at sixty per cent ad valorem, under paragraph 347 of the present tariff law. Mr. Goldfarb claimed that the merchandise should have been returned as cut flowers, preserved, by similitude, at twenty-five per cent ad valorem under paragraph 210, following treasury decision 36,390. The claim of the importer was sustained and the decision of the collector modified to allow the lower rate of duty to be paid.

TARIFF IN SENATE

SENATE CHANGES SEED DUTIES.

Decided changes from the rates on flowers, seeds, bulbs, etc., carried in the House tariff bill are contained in the measure which has just been reported to the Senate by the Senate finance committee.

Most of the changes were in the nature of increased ad valorem duties, made by the committee to permit the carrying out of its policy of continuing the assessment of duties on the basis of foreign valuations. The House bill is predicated on the American valuation of the imported article, but the Senate is not in agreement with the American valuation plan and will work for the retention of the present system of basing ad valorem rates on the value of the imported product in its original country or on its export value.

The Senate bill also gives the President wide latitude in making changes in the rates to meet foreign competition where such action is deemed necessary, and he will be empowered to increase or reduce rates to an extent not to exceed fifty per cent where such action is deemed desirable.

Following are the flower and seed paragraphs of the Senate bill:

Par. 751. Tulip, lily and narcissus bulbs and lily of the valley pips, $2 per thousand; hyacinth bulbs, $4 per thousand; crocus bulbs, $1 per thousand; all other bulbs and roots, root stocks, clumps, corms, tubers and herbaceous perennials, imported for horticultural purposes, thirty per centum ad valorem; cut flowers, fresh or preserved, forty per centum ad valorem.

Par. 752. Seedlings and cuttings of Manetti, multiflora, brier, rugosa, and other rose stock, all the foregoing not more than 3 years old, $2 per thousand; rose plants, budded, grafted, or grown on their own roots, 4 cents each; cuttings, seedlings, and grafted all budded plants of other deciduous or evergreen ornamental trees, shrubs, or vines, and all nursery or greenhouse stocks, not specially provided for, thirty per centum ad valorem.

Par. 753. Seedlings, layers, and cuttings of apple, cherry, pear, plum, quince, and other fruit stocks, $2 per thousand; grafted or budded fruit trees, cuttings and seedlings of grapes, currants, gooseberries, or other fruit vines, plants, or bushes, thirty per centum ad valorem.

Par. 760. Oil-bearing seeds and materials: Castor beans, ½ cent per pound; flaxseed, 40 cents per bushel of fifty-six pounds; poppy seed, 32 cents per hundred pounds; sunflower seed, 2 cents per pound; apricot and peach kernels, 3 cents per pound; soya beans, 4/10 cents per pound; cotton seed, ½ cent per pound. Provided: That no allowance shall be made for dirt or other impurities in seed provided for in this paragraph.

Par. 761. Grass seeds: Alfalfa, 4 cents per pound; alsike clover, 4 cents per pound; crimson clover, 1 cent per pound; red clover, 4 cents per pound; white clover, 3 cents per pound; clover, not specially provided for, 2 cents per pound; millet, 1 cent per pound; timothy, 2 cents per pound; hairy vetch, 2 cents per pound; spring vetch, 1 cent per pound; all other grass seeds not specially provided for, 2 cents per pound. Provided: That no allowance shall be made for dirt or other impurities in seed provided for in this paragraph.

Par. 762. Other garden and field seeds: Beet (except sugar beet), 4 cents per pound; cabbage, 8 cents per pound; canary, 1 cent per pound; carrot, 4 cents per pound; cauliflower, 25 cents per pound; celery, 2 cents per pound; kale, 6 cents per pound; kohlrabi, 8 cents per pound; mangel-wurzel, 4 cents per pound; onion, 10 cents per pound; parsley, 2 cents per pound; parsnip, 4 cents per pound; pepper, 15 cents per pound; radish, 4 cents per pound; spinach, 1 cent per pound; tree and shrub, 8 cents per pound; turnip, 4 cents per pound; rutabaga, 4 cents per pound; all other garden and field seeds not specially provided for, 20 per centum ad valorem. Provided: That the provisions for seeds in this schedule shall include such seeds whether used for planting or other purposes.

As compared with the House bill, the following changes are outstanding in the Senate, committee's draft of the measure:

The duty on tulip, lily and narcissus bulbs and lily of the valley pips, $4 per thousand in the House bill, is reduced to $2 per thousand, and the $10 per thousand clumps provided on lily of the valley clumps is cut out and clumps are included with all other bulbs and roots, which are made dutiable at thirty per cent ad valorem, instead of twenty per cent. The House rate of twenty-five per cent on fresh or preserved cut flowers is increased to forty per cent.

The Senate draft of paragraph 752 is materially different from that in the House bill, which provided for a rate of $2 per thousand plants for seedlings and cuttings of Manetti, multiflora, brier, rugosa and other roses; and twenty per cent ad valorem, for cuttings, seedlings and grafted plants of other deciduous or evergreen or ornamental trees, shrubs or vines, including greenhouse plants.

The House bill, under paragraph 753, provided a rate of twenty per cent ad valorem on grafted or budded fruit trees, cuttings and seedlings of grapes, currants, gooseberries or other fruit vines, plants or bushes.

The only items in the seed paragraph, 761, which were changed were the House rates of 3 cents per pound on alsike clover and red clover and ½ cent per pound on millet. In the garden and field seed paragraph, 762, the House had a rate of 1 cent per pound on sugar beets, and had rates of 8 cents per pound on cabbage and 20 cents per pound on onion, which were changed by the Senate committee.

The committee cut out the House's provision of 4 cents per pound for flower seeds. T. N. S.

MAX SCHLING'S SCHOOL.

Max Schling will hold another school for florists this summer, just as he did a year ago. It will open June 27. The period of the school has been shortened from that of last year. Last year ten days were devoted to the course, but that space of time proved somewhat too long for some of the florists who attended. For that reason the school will last only five days this year.

Mr. Schling will lecture and demonstrate two hours each forenoon and two hours each afternoon. After each session he will give one hour to answering questions of those present in regard to designing, business principles or any other topic connected with the business.

ROSES

If you pruned too lightly and gave higher temperatures than indicated, it would account for a lack of flowers, always provided that the shoots on your roses were of sufficient strength when received and potted and were not shriveled at all. C. W.

MAGNA CHARTA NOT FLOWERING.

We have some 2-year-old Magna Charta roses budded on Manetti stocks. We potted them in 6-inch pots to bring them out for Easter. They are good stock, having from six to twelve shoots on some plants, with two to three buds, while the other shoots show no signs of buds. Some of the plants show no signs of buds at all. What is the trouble? They are all from the same block and received the same treatment.

D. T. McC.—N. Y.

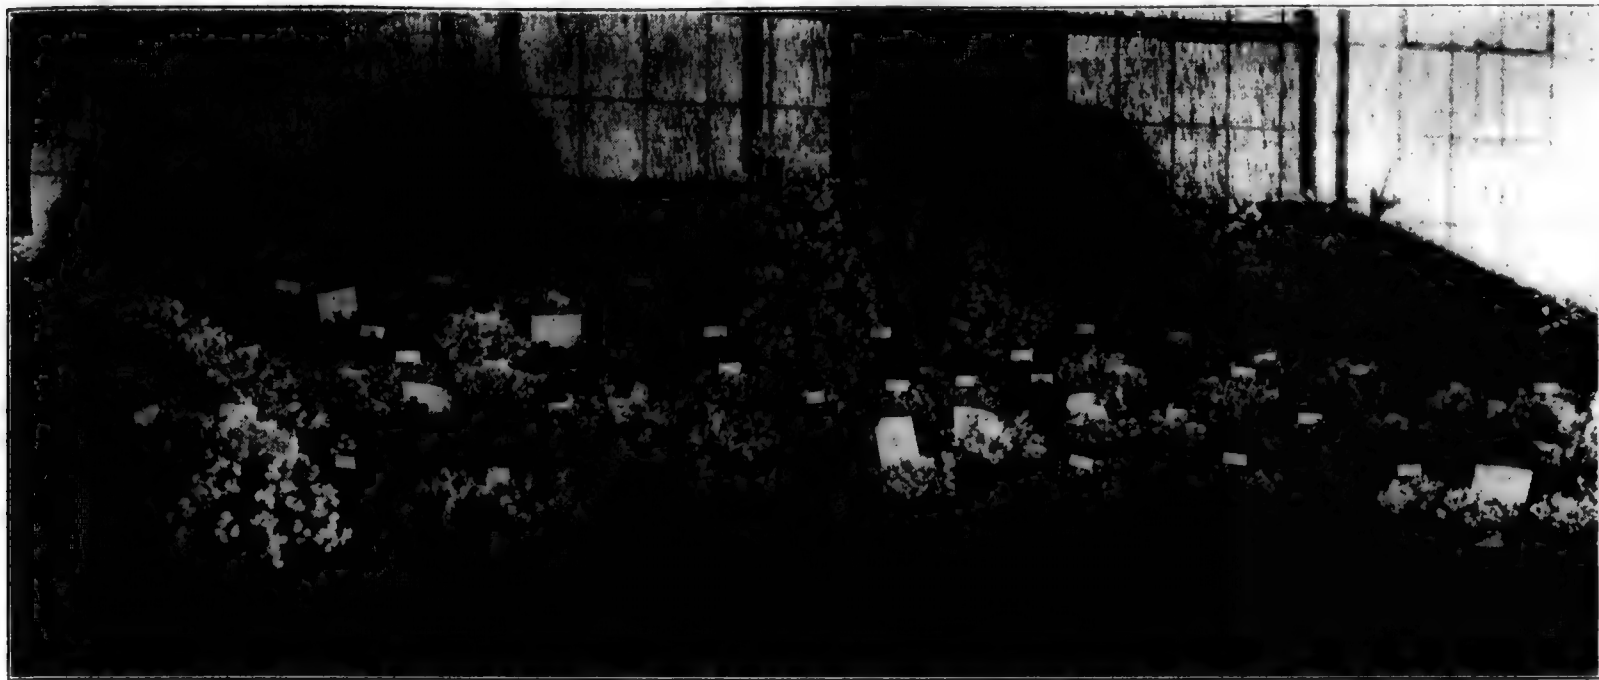

ROSES FOR SUMMER BLOOMING.

Are any of the roses grown today, such as Killarney, Russell, Ophelia, Columbia and Premier, good for summer blooming? If so, which is best? Would it be possible to plant any of these varieties in a house where they would be allowed to freeze slightly during the winter, and depend on them for summer blooming? A. B.—Neb.

All of the varieties mentioned in your letter are good for summer blooming with the exception of Killarney, which is not so good in summer, on account of the comparative fewness of petals, which makes the flower blow open quickly. Were I to suggest the most valuable varieties for summer blooming, I should say Premier, Columbia, Russell and Ophelia, in the order named; that is, I should consider Premier the best, Columbia next and so on.

If the varieties mentioned are planted in a house and allowed to freeze slightly during the winter and come up again

I do not know what treatment your plants have had, nor how they were pruned before starting. These hybrid perpetuals should be cut back quite hard before being started. Three to five eyes are sufficient to leave on strong wood and one or two when it is weaker. Extremely weak canes should be cut out altogether. Roses of this type do best when started at 40 to 45 degrees at night, later advancing the temperature to 50 to 55 degrees; these latter readings are better not exceeded.

BURPEE'S SWEET PEAS.

One of the most interesting exhibits to the public at the Indianapolis show was the display of the W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia. It was a flower show in itself, with sweet peas the subject. Arranged most artistically in vases, against a purple velvet background, were more than sixty varieties, an aggregate of several thousand blooms. This display was changed three times during the week, necessitating four separate shipments of this size halfway across the continent. The display received not only a first prize, but also a gold medal. Included in the varieties shown were the well known Burpee novelties and particularly the following six new ones, which each received a certificate of merit, as at the New York show: Chevalier, Milkmaid, Spokane, Lady Fair, Quaker Maid, Robin Hood. The interest and value of this display, to trade and public alike, were enhanced by the presence of George W. Kerr and W. Atlee Burpee, Jr., who imparted much information regarding sweet peas in general and the varieties shown in particular.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

The Market.

Stock is plentiful. The market has a varied assortment of all spring blooms to offer for Easter. All colors of roses are to be had and range in price from $6 per hundred up. Stock is of good quality. Sweet peas are abundant, especially the short-stemmed varieties. The majority of these are bringing from 75 cents to $1 per hundred. Good sweet peas bring more.

Bulbous stock is attractive. Jonquils range from $4 to $6 per hundred. Tulips and cut hyacinths are bringing about the same.

Carnations are scarce. Prices have been $5 and $6 per hundred and will probably be higher this week. Snapdragons are newcomers and are attractive. Lilies are going to be in good supply for Easter, if present indications materialize. Easter lilies have been bringing $3 per dozen. Callas are in abundance and sell for $2 and $2.50 per dozen.

Business has been only fair, but this is the usual lethargy before a holiday.

Various Notes.

A severe hail storm visited Indianapolis and vicinity Friday, April 7, and did a great deal of damage in certain localities. The A. Wiegand's Sons Co., Bertermann Bros. Co., Pahud Floral Co. and Martin Brandlein suffered great loss of glass. The storm was especially severe in the central part of Indianapolis, and it also swept through Shelbyville and Connersville. A high wind accompanied the storm. Many large buildings in the heart of the city lost a number of windows.

Mr. Huddleson, of the Ove Gnatt Co., La Porte, Ind., was in the city and has returned home for Easter.

The H. W. Rieman's Sons Co. has two attractive new delivery cars. One of these was on display at the national flower show.

That the national flower show was a wonderful advertisement for the entire business has been proven. The florists and nurserymen have scores of calls a day. Calls are continuous for stock from grass seed to trees. Everyone is endeavoring to beautify his place. Another result of the flower show was shown in a recent advertisement of the Bankers' Trust Co. Because of the wonderful success of the national flower show and the people's appreciation of it, the Bankers' Trust Co. has decided to have an amateur flower show every month and to award prizes to the contributors. The premium list is quite interesting.

A mistake was made in the report of the premiums received at the flower show on Cineraria stellata. The second award was given Martin Brandlein instead of the Bertermann Bros. Co.

The monthly meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association was held at the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce, Tuesday evening, April 11. At this time a full report of the flower show was given. E. E. T.

CINCINNATI GROWERS MEET.

Those who had preferred to pay a dollar for missing the meeting of the Cincinnati district of the National Flower Growers' Association, held April 5 at the range of Frank A. Volz, changed their minds in about five minutes when it began to rain that evening and all were present except one member. Several new members were admitted and blank applications were taken by some of the members, which would indicate that there are other applicants in view.

From the reports of the committees appointed to solicit subscriptions for the advertising fund, it would seem that practically the entire city and suburbs have been canvassed. However, the out-of-town growers whose products are sold through the Cincinnati market do not seem to appreciate the value of advertising and are rather slow in contributing. Surely they do not expect the Cincinnati florists to bear their burdens in this respect, and we hope to hear from them before long. As will be noticed from the following list, only two out-of-town florists have shown their willingness to help this cause along and we hope the wholesale man will take cognizance of this fact in pushing the sale of the stock he has to offer.

The following subscriptions were received since the last report: Joseph H. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., $50; C. E. Hawkins, Leesburg, Fla., $10. The remainder are local subscriptions: Ray Lindsey, $3 per month; George W. Mack, $5 per month; H. W. Sheppard, $50; Tromey's Flower Shop, $50; Louis E. Roth, $15; William A. Berlier, $25; E. W. Rutenschroer, $25; Philip T. Popp, $25; J. C. Rutenschroer, $15; William Rutenschroer, $15; A. J. Horning, $15; Henry Koster, $15; Fries Floral Co., $15; C. J. Jones, $25; Ed. A. We were fortunate in having with us in the evening Walter Stephens, president of the Ohio district, and his remarks were not only interesting, but instructive. The Cincinnati district also took advantage of this occasion to inform Mr. Stephens that we, Cincinnati, would be a contender for the next state meeting, and if we are fortunate enough to secure it we expect to make a two-day affair of it, the first day to be devoted entirely to business, and the second day to have a strictly florists' picnic at some private grounds.

Mr. Volz, at whose place the meeting was held, is due a special vote of thanks for the 200 "frog's legs" which were a part of his lunch menu.

Don't forget the next meeting, which is to be held at John Bruckner's place, 1135 California avenue, Bond Hill, May 3, at 2 p. m.

SHIPPING FLOWERS

FLOWERS BY EXPRESS.

As Expressmen View Them.

Even the American Railway Express Co. is taking notice of the extent of the business contributed by florists! The April issue of the Express Messenger bears as its cover illustration a picture of two express trucks loaded with shipments of cut flowers. The number contains two articles highly interesting to florists. The first, headed "Say It with Flowers," is written by Walter C. Ditt, express clerk in the Chicago & Northwestern depot, Chicago, after a trip to Wheaton. The article is illustrated by a group picture of Eric Johnson, Casimir Gouza and R. C. Scheffler and a panorama of Mr. Scheffler's greenhouses. The article reads:

"There is a flower grower named R. C. Scheffler at Wheaton, Ill., about twenty-five miles west of Chicago, who has many good words for express service. This man has nine greenhouses, ranging from 150 to 250 feet in length, and adapted especially to the growing of sweet peas and chrysanthemums, or 'mums' as we call them.

"Mr. Scheffler ships all of his mums by express. The season for these starts about the middle of October and ends about the end of December. His shipments run from ten to forty-two boxes each morning, coming into the C. & N. W. depot on train No. 32, which leaves Wheaton at 6:09 a. m. and arrives at Chicago at 7:18 a. m. Mr. Scheffler always follows his flowers to market, riding on the same train.

"Our wagon always has these flowers, and those of other shippers, on the flower market, which is about eight blocks due east from our depot, by 8:00 a. m. Mr. Scheffler has often expressed his appreciation of this prompt service.

"If the market prices are favorable for the day, Mr. Scheffler phones back to his employees at Wheaton, instructing them to cut and pack so many more for shipment, which come in on C. & N. W. train No. 702, arriving at 12:45 p. m. These, too, are taken to the market promptly. In fact, one thing that all depots do, I suppose, is to expedite the delivery of cut flowers, since, as is also true in the case of movie films, we get the business both ways. Of course, all of the flowers we handle are not for local trade. Many loads depart for different points on the evening trains.

"Mr. Scheffler says it pays him to come in each day with his shipments, if for one reason only; namely, to see that his empty containers of P. boxes are properly taken care of and labeled for the return trip.

"These containers are of corrugated cardboard and bear the manufacturers' test strength. He seldom packs more than thirty-five pounds to a box. Consequently, while these mum blooms are very delicate, I have yet to see a shipment of them come, on which it is necessary to make out a bad order report on form No. 679.

One Grower's Mums.

"During the last two weeks of last October, we handled 433 boxes of mums for Mr. Scheffler, weighing 8,745 pounds and involving charges of $78.15. In November we handled 651 boxes, weighing 11,145 pounds and with charges of $102.01, and in December, 491 boxes, weighing 8,300 pounds, with charges amounting to $76.55. For the whole season, these figures total 1,575 boxes, weighing 28,190 pounds and involving $256.71 in charges. While the revenue on heavier shipments between points farther apart than Wheaton and Chicago might seem greater, the flower traffic is nevertheless profitable, since the light weight of the commodity enables it to be handled easily.

"To my knowledge, it has not been necessary for Mr. Scheffler to file one claim during the last three years, and this is due to the interest which his employees take in packing his flowers right, as well as to our careful handling. And this interest on the employees' part is attributable in a large measure to the way in which Mr. Scheffler treats them. He not only maintains a good home for them, a good housekeeper and cook, but he also keeps a Ford for them to use outside of working hours.

At Wheaton.

"His employees number about a dozen, and since the greenhouses are about a mile from Wheaton proper, they have to get there rather early to cut, pack and mark the flowers for shipment. One of them, whom they call John, is particularly interested in the matter of packing, marking and tying. When Mr. Scheffler goes away to conventions and so forth, John takes charge.

"Mr. Scheffler has twelve acres of land which he devotes to the growing of peonies and five to gladioli. During the summer months his shipments consist mostly of peonies, packed heavier in boxes than the mums, since they do not break so easily. These peonies are cut and shipped while still in the bud, for the most part, though some intended for local trade are packed when in bloom.

"The gladioli are cut and shipped in V-shaped crates, because they are long and the tops of the stalks consist of many buds and flowers.

"In the early spring months Mr. Scheffler ships many barrels and boxes of greenhouse radishes and lettuce, consigned to the various Chicago commission houses on South Water street."

Dreer's Express Shipment.

Following the above is an article, shorter in length, but interesting because it gives figures on the tremendous express business which is done by Henry A. Dreer, Inc., at Riverton, N. J. It reads:

"There is located at Riverton, N. J., H. A. Dreer, Inc., one of the largest shippers in the east of plants, palms, ferns and roses. The firm ships to all parts of the country, using express service almost exclusively.

"The business amounts to considerable, and occasionally we are called upon to handle carload shipments, which require every possible protection from freezing in the winter months and from the wilting heat of the hot sun in the summer months.

"Only recently we were called upon to move a shipment of 243 crates of roses and palms to Mentor, O. A car was provided and the contents were in a splendid condition when delivery was effected, forty-eight hours later.

"H. A. Dreer, Inc., was highly pleased and sent the following letter to F. A. Conway, our agent at Riverton:

We want to thank your company for the successful and efficient manner in which our fall and winter trade was handled. Not only pleasing to us, but also satisfying to our customers. Under all kinds of weather conditions our perishable business was well taken care of.

We are looking forward to unusually heavy shipping this spring, as advance orders are coming in very satisfactorily and we have prepared a large stock of plants, roots, bulbs and seeds for this spring's trade. In roses alone we have over a quarter of a million plants, which must all be handled this spring. As you are familiar with the very perishable nature of this stock, I might suggest for you to prepare extra equipment for the spring rush. You know last spring we shipped by express from Riverton as follows:

	Total weight	No. of pieces
March	272,244 lbs.	3,683
April	585,526 lbs.	8,463
May	276,882 lbs.	3,755
June	131,511 lbs.	2,677

We are always ready to cooperate with you and help you to do some hauling, but in the spring months when all our teams and trucks are busy it is impossible for us to give you any assistance and I thought best to mention this in order to give you ample time to procure extra equipment and help, as we intend to turn all the shipping we possibly can over to your company.

RATCLIFFE'S REMINDER.

In Richmond, Va., there is a florist named John L. Ratcliffe who gets ideas and these ideas get money for him. For this Easter's business he evolved a new one:

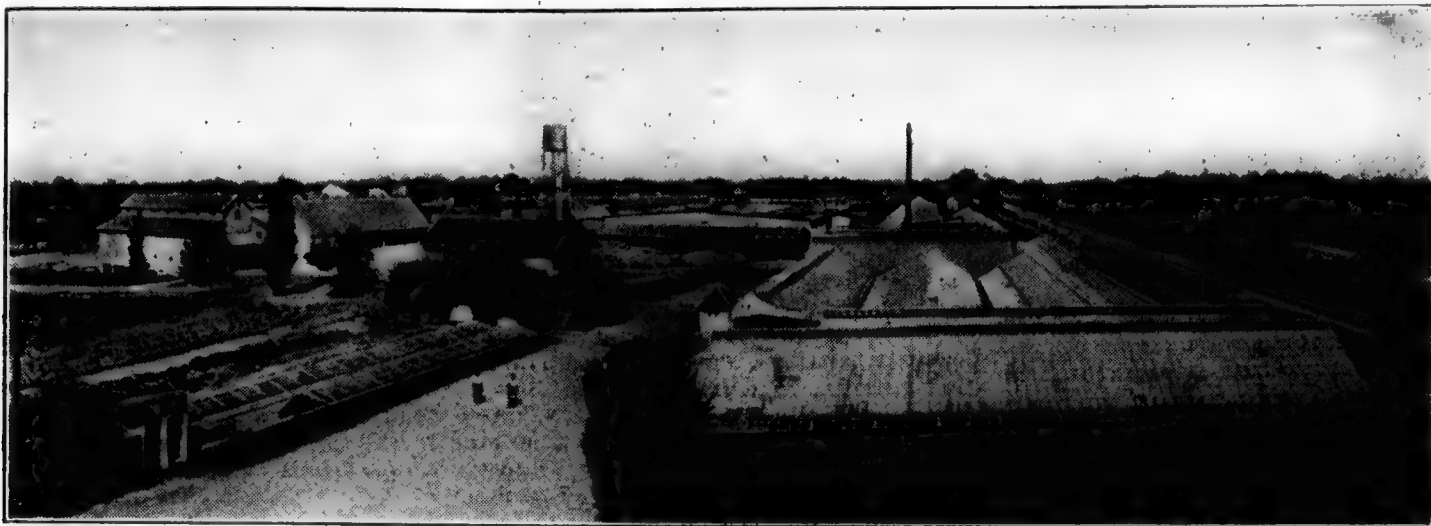

He sent out a considerable number of 4-page folders, about 3x6 inches, entitled "Flower Suggestions for Easter." On the second page of the folder appears the following:

Easter time is essentially flower time, for the spirit of Easter is the spirit of spring, of buds and blossoms.

We are making big preparations for our friends this Easter. We will have flowers in profusion—John L. Ratcliffe quality—but order early and get the pick of selections.

The following prices give suggestions, and you can detach the convenient order card and mail direct to us if you desire, or phone.

And, sure enough, on the third page of the little folder is a list of prices on Easter corsages, roses and plants in all varieties. Then the fourth page of the folder is in the form of a post card, with space for an order blank, addressed to John L. Ratcliffe. The folder is perforated, so the third and fourth pages, detached, become a neat post card all ready to send to the florist. The recipient of this folder has at once the prices of what he wants and a convenient way to order.

Greenhouses of the Van Lindley Co., at Greensboro, N. C., of Which Paul C. Lindley Is the Head.

SON OF THE SOUTH.

Noted as Nurseryman and Florist.

For more than three generations the name of Lindley has been intimately connected with the nursery industry in the southern states. Today a list of southern nurserymen could not be started—much less completed—if this name did not appear.

The late J. Van Lindley was long a prominent figure in the south, because of his interest in horticulture and in the welfare of his own state, North Carolina, the city of Greensboro, and the community of Pomona.

His efforts, supplemented by those of his son, Paul C. Lindley, have made Greensboro one of the most attractive cities in the south. Broad lawns, shade trees, flowering shrubs and pleasing landscapes are permanent monuments to the memory of the elder Lindley.

The mantle of the father descended on the son, Paul C. Lindley, some fifteen years ago, when the father retired from active business. Under the management of "P. C." the nursery business and the cut flower trade in Greensboro have made rapid advance. In addition to the nursery operations at Pomona, the company has large branch nurseries at Overhills and Friendship, giving an area of around 1,500 acres in stock, buildings and farm lands.

Business Interests.

Mr. Lindley is president of the J. Van Lindley Nursery Co., of Pomona, and of the Van Lindley Co., of Greensboro, which does the florists' business, as well as director in several local enterprises, including the American Exchange National bank, the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Co. and the Pomona Terra Cotta Co.

Mr. Lindley is past president of the Southern Nurserymen's Association and the present vice-president of the American Association of Nurserymen. For a period of three years he was chairman of the vigilance committee of the latter organization.

The Van Lindley Co., of which Mr. Lindley is president, operates one of the largest flower stores in the south, and Greensboro has the reputation of being the center of the cut flower trade in North Carolina. The location on the main line of the Southern railway, halfway between Washington and Atlanta, gives the city exceptional shipping facilities. A railroad man recently said that the Van Lindley Co. had the distinction of receiving the largest single shipment of cut flowers ever sent out of Philadelphia by one shipper to one firm—a solid express car for the Easter trade.

CONSTRUCTING A HOTBED.

"There are usually three things to keep in mind in the construction of a hotbed. These are the pit, frame and sash," says J. G. Moore, horticulturist at the Wisconsin experiment station, in describing the methods of erecting one.

The purpose of the pit is to hold the material which provides heat for the bed. It may consist merely of a hole of the desired size and depth dug in the ground. It is usually advisable to wall up the pit. When the hotbed is temporary, lumber is commonly used. Many now construct the pit of concrete and extend the construction to include the frame. This makes a permanent hotbed.

The dimensions of the pit are determined by the sash to be used. Ordinarily it is six feet wide and six to twelve feet long. Its depth depends upon the severity of the climate, how early the bed is to be started and the kind of plants grown. The pit should be a few inches deeper than the depth of manure required. In starting early crops eighteen inches of good manure are the minimum; for more tender plants of similar nature from twenty-four to thirty inches are needed.

Wooden or concrete frames are the rule. Concrete frames are most desirable where they are wanted from year to year and when they can be given a permanent place. For a long-lasting wooden frame, 2-inch cypress is desirable. Temporary frames can be made from any material at hand.

The rear of the frame should be at least six inches higher than the front, advises Mr. Moore. When a "take-down" frame is to be constructed, two 12-inch planks and one 6-inch plank are necessary. They should be the desired length of the bed. One of the 12-inch planks is cut in two and used for ends. Bolt or screw two wagon box irons on the inside of each side. It is then possible to bolt the frame together tightly without difficulty. Such a frame will last for years if proper care is given. If the bed is to be temporary, the walling-up of the pit and construction of frame may be one operation. Two by fours are used for the posts. At least six posts should be used for a 12-foot bed. They should be long enough so that the boards forming the frame may be nailed to them and should be so placed as to be outside the pit after the lumber is in place.

Cross bars or slides are desirable. They are pieces extending across the bed at intervals equal to the width of the sashes. A piece 2x3 inches, surfaced on the upper side, is satisfactory. The ends must be mortised into the sides so as to permit the sashes to rest on the frames.

Sashes may be procured from firms handling greenhouse material. Cedar or cypress sashes are preferred. Sashes 3x6 feet usually are used. A three-run, horned, 1 $\frac{3}{8}$ -inch sash will ordinarily be found satisfactory. The glass should be double-strength, which will reduce the breakage materially. Double-glazed sashes may be used, but are not necessary.

Paul C. Lindley.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

GET AFTER THE MIDGE.

If pimple-like swellings appear on the leaves of your chrysanthemum plants, and these swellings, when pricked open, reveal a tiny white worm, you know you have the midge on your plants. When it is discovered, proper measures will exterminate the pest. The great danger lies in the fact that few growers recognize its presence until the infestation has become strong. If growers will carefully examine their plants, they can determine whether or not the measures for control described below need be taken.

If a few points regarding the life history of the midge are clearly in mind, greater success is likely to follow efforts to exterminate the pest. First, several generations are always present in greenhouses during the spring and fall occurrences; second, the adults emerge and mate during the early morning hours, and egg laying quickly follows; third, experiments show that the egg stage may be controlled by means of spraying or dipping the cuttings or plants; fourth, it has been demonstrated that the adult can be killed easily at the time of emergence by consistent spraying; fifth, the adult is easily killed by fumigation either with nicotine papers or hydrocyanic acid gas.

By adherence to a definite control program, involving any of the above cited measures, either singly or in combination, the insect can be readily controlled. In case of a light infestation daily picking of gall-infested leaves will hold the pest in check. Should this practice prove ineffective, nightly fumigation for a period of two or three weeks may be resorted to. When a severe infestation is encountered the most heavily infested plants should be taken out immediately and burned. This should then be followed by either fumigation or spraying as outlined below.

Fumigate every night, with either nicotine papers or hydrocyanic acid gas, for a period of at least six weeks. This will kill all the adults that emerge during such a period and at the same time will prevent the further laying of eggs for future generations. The dosage need not be heavy in either case. When nicotine papers are used, one sheet to every 1,000 cubic feet of space will suffice. If hydrocyanic acid gas is employed, one-eighth to one-fourth ounce per thousand cubic feet will kill all of the adults. The use of hydrocyanic acid gas is not recommended unless in the hands of a competent fumigator, owing to its deadly poisonous effects.

Too much emphasis can not be laid on the fact that the fumigation must be set off after midnight to be effective. It is preferable to start generation between the hours of 12:30 a. m. and 2 a. m. Any fumigation done before midnight would be useless, for it has been pointed out that the adult does not emerge until after midnight. On the other hand, if it is started later than 2 a. m. many adults will have emerged and laid their eggs.

In case fumigation is not advisable, especially where chrysanthemum plants are isolated or when other varieties of plants are present in the houses, spraying is recommended. This must be done consistently for a period of four to six weeks, a forty per cent solution of nicotine sulphate extract diluted (1-800) being used, and soap added at the rate of one-half to one ounce per gallon of solution. The application should be made late in the afternoon in order that the best results may be obtained. In this manner practically all adults can be killed at the time of emergence and any eggs present will be destroyed.

It has been proved that the means of disseminating this insect has been the shipment of infested chrysanthemums, both plants and cuttings. It is therefore imperative that only clean plants and cuttings be brought into commercial houses where chrysanthemums are growing or to be grown. Growers should carefully examine all chrysanthemums received and see that all material intended for shipment or distribution is free from this pest.

As a preventive measure, it is recommended that cuttings be dipped in the following solution at the time they are taken:

Nicotine sulphate, forty per cent.....part	1
Water	parts 800
Laundry soap	ounce per gallon ½ 1

Another satisfactory method of securing chrysanthemum cuttings free from midge when the previous season's stock has been infested is to plant the stock in benches or coldframes directly after the season's crop has been removed. This should then be followed by thorough treatment with a mixture consisting of equal parts of dry or air-slaked lime and tobacco dust. It is advisable to keep all new growth covered with the mixture until further operations in the spring.

HAIL AT PITTSBURGH.

A heavy hail storm visited Pittsburgh and vicinity Monday evening, April 10, and caused considerable damage at the range of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. The company suffered a heavy loss, which will undoubtedly curtail the production of stock for Easter. This will seriously affect many florists in Pittsburgh and vicinity, who largely depend upon this company's large range for their cut flower supply.

Auburn, Ala.—W. C. Cook has resigned his position as manager of the college greenhouses and instructor in floriculture and landscape gardening at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, at Auburn, and has assumed the management of the Rose Hill Greenhouses, at Columbus, Ga.

HEATING BY WIRE

ELECTRIC HEAT AGAIN.

The electrically heated Kenwood Greenhouse, at Tacoma, Wash., has attracted considerable attention among greenhouse men. The experiment of heating a greenhouse by electricity has been carried on for two winters, and a concrete basis for computing the cost of this enterprise has been arrived at by the manager.

While the rate per kilowatt hour for electric current in Tacoma is one-half cent, it may be possible for the large greenhouse ranges to develop their own electric power at less than the cost mentioned above.

In the 18x50-foot greenhouse where the experiment was carried on, the growth of plants was marvelous and the results obtained have called forth expressions of wonder from experienced greenhouse men. Experiments have been made with varieties of plants numbering 100 or more for two consecutive winters and no failures have occurred so far. In addition to the good results obtained, the greenhouse has been kept clean of all pests, and the roses have a clear, glossy, vigorous appearance. No attempt has been made to regulate the temperature so as to accommodate any kind of growth. All of the plants have been compelled to take their chance in 45 degrees to 50 degrees at night, and 58 degrees to 65 degrees on cold, dark days.

Some of the most prominent plants seen growing in the greenhouse are described as follows: The cinerarias have huge foliage and solid heads of flowers fifteen inches across. Leaves four to five inches long are seen on young calceolarias. Hyacinths in 4-inch pots are above a 12-inch stick in height. One cyclamen bulb in an 8-inch pot had twenty perfect flowers at one time. Petunias, fuchsias, pelargoniums, daisies, callas, ferns, calendulas and snapdragons all show splendid growth.

Accurate figures on the cost of this method of heating, from a carefully kept record for two winters, are available. The temperature average for the first winter was about 12 degrees above zero and for the second winter approximately 10 degrees above zero. The records show the cost for heating to be $1.80 per thousand cubic feet of space for thirty days in December, the coldest month. The house has 6,500 cubic feet of space. The cost for heating the entire house was $11.70 for that month. If your house is 200 feet long and contains 46,000 cubic feet of space, the heating cost will be $82.80 for a period of thirty days, paying at the rate of one-half cent per kilowatt hour, with the minimum outside temperature at 10 degrees above zero. Cold ends or exposed sides of the house are easily kept at normal temperature by pressing the button. One watchman and a man to shovel coal can keep any heating plant in operation, where the current is generated on the premises. It will not be economical to heat by means of electricity if the current must be purchased at a higher rate than one-half cent per kilowatt hour. L. B. Morris.

TULIP BLIGHT.

A bulletin has just been published by the experiment station at Cornell University on a severe disease of tulips. The disease is prevalent in this country and, in many cases, it does much damage. The author of the bulletin, E. F. Hopkins, now at the Missouri station, made a thorough study of the disease and in order that the results of his studies, as embodied in the bulletin, which is largely technical, may be available to florists, I present below some of the essential facts.

The disease was first discovered in Europe, where it exists apparently wherever tulips are grown. In this country it was first noted in New Jersey, in 1902, and, from all indications, was brought into this country by means of a shipment of bulbs from Holland. At the present time the disease is widespread throughout the United States and, in the words of the author, it probably will be found wherever tulips are grown.

Statistics are given to show that the disease is of economic importance. Counts made on the Cornell campus of Darwin tulips showed 100 per cent of the leaves and ninety-eight per cent of the stalks diseased with various degrees of severity. A report from St. Petersburg, Russia, states that fifty per cent of the tulip crop was destroyed in 1911 by this and other diseases. The disease is not confined to the stalks and leaves, but occurs also on the outer parts of the bulbs. It can be detected as small spots or lesions, varying from deep yellow to brown in color, usually circular in outline, and occurring often under the outer, papery skin. It is difficult, however, to determine with certainty the presence or absence of the disease on the bulbs, because small infections occur, and, since these are not readily found, but little emphasis can be placed on the selection of clean bulbs as a means of control. On the flower the disease makes its appearance as minute spots, whitish to light brown, the color being bleached from the perianth. Later the spots enlarge, turn to a deeper brown, and the entire segment of the perianth finally becomes dry and wrinkled. The whole flower may become affected and have the appearance of being blighted.

Unfortunately, control experiments were not carried to completion. However, from the studies made, the author makes the following recommendations:

Select, so far as is possible, clean bulbs. When the disease appears on the outer skin, this should be removed and burned.

Avoid injuring bulbs by handling, for infection takes place more readily if the bulb has been bruised or injured.

The bulbs should be stored in a temperature of about 40 degrees and the humidity should be low.

Destroy all diseased plants when they occur in the field or greenhouse by burning. This will limit the spread of the disease.

The complete description of the disease may be found in memoir No. 45, of the Cornell station. One colored

FREDERICK W. FLETCHER.

BORN in Massachusetts in 1857 and left an orphan at the age of 8 years, Frederick W. Fletcher was soon a pupil of experience. He worked at the printers' trade for twenty-four years, and in 1893 and 1894 was editor of the New England Florist. During this time he was instrumental in calling attention to the Boston fern and giving it its botanical classification and name. In 1892 he built his first greenhouse, at Auburndale, Mass., which soon developed into a good-sized range of glass. Mr. Fletcher introduced a number of plants into this country, among them the Princess of Wales violet. For the last eighteen years he has been crossbreeding antirrhinums, freesias, gladioli, etc., with noteworthy results, and he has been honored with many awards of merit by societies at home and abroad. Owing to advancing years, Mr. Fletcher went to Orlando, Fla., five years ago. The illustration above shows him there in his field of watsonias. As he was in Massachusetts, Mr. Fletcher is a live wire in Florida, where he is vice-president of the S. A. F. for that state and a member of the committee on ornamentals of the Florida State Horticultural Association. He is a charter member of the Florida State Florists' Association.

plate of a diseased plant and numerous photographs in black and white add to the usefulness of the bulletin.

NAMING A NARCISSUS.

We are mailing you a specimen of yellow narcissus and we should like to have you tell us the name of the variety. We have a great many of them mixed among some single jonquil bulbs we bought. They bloom in February at the same time that the jonquils bloom. The one we are sending you has only two buds on it, but the majority of them have from four to six small, star-shaped flowers to the spike.

A. C. J. F. C.—Tex.

This is Narcissus Campernellii rugulosus, a fine form of the true, sweet-scented jonquil. I presume the single jonquils you speak of are really single daffodils, often misnamed jonquils in the trade. True jonquils have small, sweet-scented yellow flowers, carried several on a stalk, and with much narrower and more grassy-like foliage than have the larger-flowered narcissi.

WINDOW BOXES

BOXES THAT BRING BUSINESS.

Demand Is Starting.

Now that the spring of the year has come again, the demand for window boxes and porch boxes, to make the home more lovable and the office more livable, has already begun to grow. This means business for the florist and it behooves him to understand the why and the wherefore of these boxes.

Window boxes may be bought ready made, with pattern tiling, or made of highly finished wood and supported by fancy brackets, but a strong pine box of the necessary length, from ten to twelve inches wide and at least six inches deep, will serve quite satisfactorily, if painted a suitable color. After the plants are growing well, especially if vines or drooping plants are included, the appearance of the box itself will make little difference. Good drainage is particularly desirable and may be provided by boring several half-inch holes in the bottom of the box and covering them with coal cinders, gravel-stones or pieces of broken pots, placed with the convex side up. This arrangement will allow water to escape, but retain the soil. If the box is to be located where water dripping from it will be objectionable, it may be set in a galvanized drip pan, which should be about two inches wider than the box. The box should be raised from the bottom of the pan by means of cleats, so as to permit free drainage.

Planting the Boxes.

Because of the restricted space in these boxes, the soil should be one which is quite rich in plant food, yet one which neither packs hard when watered nor contracts much when dry, but remains porous and springy. Such soil may be made by mixing two parts of garden loam, one part of leaf-mold or wood-earth and one part of sand, with the addition of well decayed manure, preferably cow manure, at the rate of one peck to two bushels of soil. About one inch of space should be left between the surface of the soil and the top of the box, to afford room for watering, which should be done as late in the day as possible. After the plants have filled the box with roots, more plant food must be worked into the soil; a weekly watering with dilute liquid manure is best, but a light coating of bone meal, a thicker layer of well rotted manure, or an application of a complete commercial fertilizer will prove adequate.

When plants grow together so compactly as is the case in window boxes, if one plant dies the desired effect is lost and it is practically impossible to dig it out without injuring the other plants or to cut it out without leaving a space. This difficulty may be overcome by using pot-grown plants, setting the pots containing the plants in the boxes and filling in around the pots with earth or moss; with that method, any one plant can be removed and another substituted without danger of injury to the others. This also makes it possible to change quickly from winter material to spring-flowering bulbs, from bulbs to pansies, then to summer-blooming annuals and, once more, to autumn-blooming plants, or to make whatever other changes may be desired. With few exceptions, a 4-inch or 5-inch pot is sufficiently large for this purpose. In using potted plants in this way, it is best to have two or three inches of rich earth in the bottom of the box, on which to place the pots; the roots of the plants will escape through the hole in the bottom of the pot and find sufficient food for their development.

In selecting the plants, attention must be paid to the exposure of the windows, the color of the walls and the general style of the exterior decoration. The plants should harmonize, not only with one another, but with the color of the building; if that is a neutral tint, like the gray of concrete or of most stucco, less care will be required than if it has a distinct character, like the red of brick.

Selection of Plants.

If the exposure is northern, the choice is practically confined to foliage plants; these will be of the more delicate types than would be desirable if the boxes were to be in full sunlight. For sun-loving plants, geraniums, coleus, achyranthes, Paris daisies and double petunias may be used, or, if more display is desired, crotons, colored-leaved dracenas, acalyphas, aspidistras or small palms. Possible low-growing plants for the front of the box are the dwarf white-leaved geranium, Madame Salleroi; the golden feverfew, lobelia, sweet alyssum and the white-leaved cineraria. Excellent drooping vines are the variegated-leaved vinca, nasturtiums, tradescantias and German ivy. For window boxes in shady locations, vigorous-growing ferns, like the nephrolepis, a few of the pteris and the hardiest of the adiantums; narrow-leaved dracenas; grevilleas, and Rex begonias are good plants to use.

No set of rules can be given for the combining of these or other suitable plants into appropriate box groups, but, as a suggestion, the following arrangements of common plants are enumerated:

FOR SUNNY LOCATION.

1. Vinca major—front.
Petunia—filler.
Ageratum—filler.
Vinca rosea—points.
2. English ivy—front.
Asparagus Sprengeri—front.
Geranium—filler.
Lantana—filler.
Hibiscus—points.
3. Wandering Jew—front.
Asparagus Sprengeri—front.
Verbena—filler.
Petunia—filler.
Marigold—filler.
Croton—filler.

FOR SHADY LOCATION.

1. Asparagus Sprengeri—front.
Dracena terminalis—points.
Boston fern—filler.
2. English ivy—front.
Coleus—filler.
Boston fern—filler.
Pandanus Veitchii—points.
3. German ivy—front.
Asparagus Sprengeri—front.
Hibiscus—points.
Whitmanii fern—filler.
Croton—filler.

After Summer Comes Winter.

In the autumn evergreens may be substituted for the summer selection and with these early spring-flowering bulbs may be planted, such as tulips, daffodils, crocuses and snowdrops. The winter group may include a choice of small conifers, broad-leaved evergreens, small Irish junipers, low-growing junipers, arbor-vitæ and young trees of spruce, hemlock or pine. Of broad-leaved evergreens, dwarf box, mahonia, Evonymus radicans and pachysandra or Vinca minor are good. To relieve the somber effect of the dense green, small shrubs bearing bright-colored fruits may be introduced, such as dwarfed plants of Berberis Thunbergii, with its bright scarlet berries borne along the gracefully bending branches. Privets, either Ligustrum vulgare or L. Regelianum, are good for berries, both bearing clusters of blue-black fruits, which contrast well with the green of the conifers or the reds of the barberry; these fruits are held through the winter without change of color. Hardy strains of English ivy or drooping plants of Evonymus radicans may be used to hide the boxes in winter. Evergreens used for winter may be arranged to produce a hedge-like appearance or some points may be introduced either at the ends or in the center or at both ends and center. Customers to whom the prospect of all-the-year-around window boxes is presented are likely to invest more heavily than if they were expecting to have only some flowers for the summer.

Window Boxes May Be Filled in an Infinite Variety of Ways.

CLUB MEETINGS

Sweet Peas Present.

Members of the Chicago Florists' Club who attended the meeting in the Randolph hotel April 6 were greeted with a brilliant array of gorgeous sweet peas grown by Hans Jepsen at Maywood, Ill. Among the varieties seen were Apricot, Sunburst, Mrs. Kerr, Snowflake, Blue Bird, Glitters, Zvolanek's Blue and Zvolanek's Rose. These were decoratively arranged and were, indeed, a beautiful sight. Instead of the usual course being followed of appointing judges to make an award, T. E. Waters was selected to have the flowers conspicuously marked with the name of the grower and placed in the lobby of one of the prominent hotels, where they would meet the eye of the public. A rising vote of thanks was given Mr. Jepsen.

Discussing the west town show, Peter Pearson and Paul Weiss, the latter chairman of the committee representing the Chicago Florists' Club, pronounced the show a great success, and the committee above mentioned took this opportunity of thanking all those who gave so generously of their wares, and entered into the spirit of the show so wholeheartedly with their service. A vote of thanks was given the committee representing the club at the show.

President Kohout, who represented the club as a director of the S. A. F. at the meeting at Indianapolis of the directors of that organization, made a report of the proceedings, explaining numerous plans which the organization had in view for the coming season.

A letter was received by F. Lautenschlager thanking the club for the beautiful vase that was presented to E. G. Hill by the club at Mr. Hill's golden wedding anniversary, celebrated March 13.

The national flower show at Indianapolis was reported a grand success and the organization adopted resolutions giving a vote of thanks to the Chicago wholesalers who contributed the 8,000 roses and the 10,000 carnations. W. J. Keimel, as chairman of the Chicago day committee, reported the day a thorough success.

Past Presidents Absent.

Although the meeting was designated as past presidents' night, the meeting was honored with the presence of but three of these sagacious veterans. It was therefore decided that, inasmuch as the next meeting was to be a ladies' night, the club would postpone the honors which were to have been bestowed upon the past presidents until the next meeting, making that a gala occasion. There will be a special prize offered at that meeting for the best arrangement of flowers by a retailer in baskets or vases.

F. Lautenschlager made a short talk on arousing enthusiasm at the meetings and suggested that a trip be made to the establishment of Hans Jepsen, at Maywood, Ill. At this suggestion Mr. Jepsen arose and stated that he expected to have about 130 varieties of sweet peas sometime in the fall and that he would be glad to entertain the florists at that time. Mr. Lautenschlager included in his suggestion that the club would stand the expense of the entertainment, but a delightful smile engulfed his countenance when Mr. Jepsen announced that the mallards would be fat enough to eat at that time and that the engineer of his culinary department was indeed efficient. Mr. Jepsen stated that he would also insure the visitors a truck ride from the station if they would promise to come legion strong.

NEW YORK FLORISTS MEET.

Discuss Flower Shows.

A regular meeting of the New York Florists' Club was held Monday evening, April 10, in the club's rooms, in the Engineering Societies' building.

WE SHALL BE GLAD TO HEAR FROM YOU

There was a fair attendance of members, considering that the meeting date was so near Easter. President Irwin occupied the chair.

After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting, reports from various committees were received. The report from the good of the club committee was as to progress. A subcommittee had been appointed to seek new quarters for the club, the present quarters not appearing to meet the requirements of a majority of members.

Arthur Herrington, for the flower show committee, reported that the ninth international flower show appeared to be a success from every point of view. Secretary Young also spoke on the matter, and stated that while the financial accounts of the show were not yet ready for reporting upon, it might be said that, as far as was known at present, there would be approximately $26,000 left over after paying all expenses, from which the premium payments would have to be deducted. There would be, in all likelihood, a good round sum to divide between the club and the Horticultural Society of New York.

Exhibitors Pleased.

Exhibitors, he said, were all satisfied with the show, and practically all of them had signed up for next year's exhibition. He then moved, and the motion was carried, that the president appoint a committee to meet a committee from the Horticultural Society of New York to make arrangements for the 1923 show. The personnel of the committee will be announced later.

C. H. Totty also spoke, corroborating the statements of the previous speakers and adding a remark or two evidencing the value of coöperation in shows of this kind.

Paul Rigo, for the transportation committee, explained why it was impossible to organize a regular party to travel to Indianapolis. The same gentleman, as chairman of the dinner committee, reported that the annual dinner of the club, held at the Hotel Biltmore, March 15, was a splendid success, the table reservations numbering 257, with sixteen invited guests. The function financed itself; in fact, there was a balance left over amounting to $36.15. The thanks of the club were, by vote, passed to the committee.

A. M. Henshaw reported progress for the publicity committee.

Traendly Speaks.

Frank H. Traendly, as a member of the national flower show committee, gave an eloquent description of the Indianapolis show, and paid tribute to the loyalty and zeal of the Indianapolis florists, and many others within a wide radius of the city, in the bringing to completion within seven weeks a show of great magnitude and a credit to the florists' industry. Arthur Herrington, who was floor manager of the show and responsible for its layout, endorsed everything Mr. Traendly said, and, above all, declared that never before had a flower show had the advantage of such a building as that enjoyed in Indianapolis, where exhibits could be trucked on to the floor to their exact locations. Secretary Young followed, with a lengthy address, in the course of which he eulogized the work of the local committees and those at the head of them. Irwin Bertermann came in for especial commendation for the amount of time and work he put in on the show. Several others were personally commended. And to George Asmus, the chairman of the national flower show committee, he attributed the complete success of the show, and he heartily approved of the action of the executive board of the S. A. F. in awarding him the society's gold medal for the most meritorious work of a member of the S. A. F. during a period of five years.

A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y., was given a vote of thanks for work in obtaining the beautiful flag decoration at the annual dinner, and also for his kind action in donating his plant exhibit at the national flower show to the Indianapolis park department.

The committee on awards, through

Joseph Manda, reported on its visit to the establishment of Henry Hession, Flatbush, Brooklyn, to see his new carnation, My Welcome, which had been awarded a preliminary certificate, growing, and the committee recommended the award of a final certificate.

Secretary's Report.

Secretary Young read his annual report, which had been deferred from the February meeting and which showed the affairs of the club to be in excellent shape. Treasurer Rickards read his report, which showed the treasury as having a fund in all amounting to over $23,000. Percy B. Rigby, for the board of trustees, verified both reports. A rising vote of thanks was passed to the secretary and treasurer for their excellent work in the interests of the club.

John Watson, of Princeton, was present and made a short address.

The secretary announced the death of C. J. Van Riper, of Dundee Lake, N. J., a member of the club, and moved that a committee be appointed to prepare memorial resolutions. The motion carried, and President Irwin appointed Edward Sceery, J. G. Esler and M. C. Ford as such committee.

The following were elected to membership: F. Wittenberg, Richfield, N. J.; C. F. Hagemann, New York; Harry Rapner, Maspeth, N. Y.; Fred Manker, Farmingdale, N. Y.; A. Hotchkiss, Summit, N. J.; Vincent Hession, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Henry Hession, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The secretary read several amendments to the club's by-laws, proposed by the committee on the good of the club, and announced that voting on them would take place at the next meeting.

There were no exhibits at this meeting. J. H. P.

WASHINGTON CLUB'S BANQUET.

More than seventy-five local florists and their guests attended the annual banquet of the Florists' Club of Washington, D. C., held last week at the new City Club. The affair was held in the Blue room, which was turned by the florists into an excellent simulation of a woodland, the columns in the center of the room being entirely covered by branches of dogwood in full bloom and the walls filled with spring blossoms, palms and various flowers. The tables were decorated, chiefly with roses, and the ladies who attended were presented with corsage bouquets of sweet peas and forget-me-nots.

William F. Gude acted as toastmaster and earned much praise for his work in that connection. A number of prominent congressmen and city officials were present and Mr. Gude called upon several of them for a few remarks. The principal speakers included Representative Kahn, of California; Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., who told of his recent visit to California; Robert N. Harper, president of the District National bank, and Miss Willabrandt, assistant to the attorney-general, the only woman who ever occupied such a position. The decorations elicited much praise from these and other speakers.

Otto Bauer, who retired as president of the club, was presented by Mr. Gude with a handsome silver platter as a token of the organization's appreciation of his work as its chief officer. Following the presentation of the platter, Z. D. Blackistone made a speech, in the course of which he presented Mr. Gude with a handsome cut glass vase filled with spring flowers and roses, as a token of appreciation of his work as treasurer, which has extended over a number of years.

The present president of the club is O. A. C. Oehmler, who was installed with appropriate ceremonies. Following the conclusion of the formalities the tables were cleared away and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing. T. N. S.

OBITUARY

Michael H. Walsh.

M. H. Walsh, of Woods Hole, Mass., one of America's leading rosarians and the introducer of a large number of beautiful and desirable climbing and hybrid perpetual roses, died suddenly at his home April 10. Mr. Walsh, who was of Irish ancestry, was born at Wrexham, North Wales. He gained much practical experience in Wales and at Chester, England, including a stay at Dickson's celebrated nurseries, before coming to America. He made a specialty of hardy roses. For some time he gained experience in and around Boston and later located at Woods Hole, near Falmouth, on Cape Cod, as head gardener to the late Joseph S. Fay and later the Misses Fay, who had a splendid rose garden and grew about every desirable new variety which was obtainable.

Some twenty-five years ago, Mr. Walsh started in business on his own account, although still maintaining charge of the Misses Fay's beautiful garden. The rose shows of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for many years had wonderful displays of Mr. Walsh's roses, which were a whole show in themselves, and at the spring shows his ramblers were for several years conspicuous features.

As a hybridist Mr. Walsh was one of the greatest America has produced. In addition to some hybrid perpetuals, like Jubilee and J. S. Fay, Mr. Walsh raised a large number of distinct and strikingly beautiful ramblers, most of which are still popular here and even more popular abroad. Some of these are Debutante, Sweetheart, Milky Way, Lady Gay, Wedding Bells, Minnehaha, Hiawatha, Excelsa, Maid Marion, Bonnie Belle, Carissima, Evangeline, Juanita, Lady Blanche, Lucile, Mrs. M. H. Walsh, Nokomis, Paradise, Snowdrift, Snowball, Summer Joy, Urania, Troubadour and Winona. His introductions among hybrid teas were Lillian Nordica and Flush o' Dawn.

Numerous gold and silver medals were awarded to Mr. Walsh for his introductions by the American Rose Society and the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, as well as the National Rose Society and the Royal Horticultural Society, of England. Mr. Walsh was one of the early recipients of the George Robert White medal of honor, awarded by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for distinguished service to horticulture.

About twenty years ago the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad burned down a building with a tarred roof alongside Mr. Walsh's rose gardens, and the smoke, charged with creosote, caused great damage to his plants, which included many valuable seedlings. He brought suit for $25,000 against the railroad. The case was tried before an auditor and among Mr. Walsh's witnesses were J. K. M. L. Farquhar, A. H. Fewkes, W. H. Elliott, W. N. Craig, Lawrence Cotter and Robert Cameron. The railroad company paid $20,000, which was accepted as a settlement. This sum is believed to be the heaviest damages paid in any similar case.

During the last few years of his life

Mr. Walsh did not exhibit much and, with advancing years, stayed more at home, leaving a larger share of the care to his son, who was associated with him. His establishment was always the Mecca for all rose lovers who visited Cape Cod; nowhere else in the east were finer hardy roses to be found. In Dr. Van Fleet and Mr. Walsh, America has lost its two greatest hardy rose hybridists. How poor would our list of climbers be with their introductions taken away!

Mr. Walsh was a member of the American Rose Society and the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. He was also for many years a member of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston. Mrs. Walsh predeceased him several years. W. N. C.

Edward T. Alburger.

Edward T. Alburger, a widely known and highly respected florist of Philadelphia, died, after a lingering illness, at his home in Roxborough, Monday, April 10, in his seventy-first year.

The partnership of Alburger Bros., consisting of Philip H. Alburger and Edward T. Alburger, was for many years a leading firm of cemetery florists. Their store and greenhouses were located at Ridge avenue and Huntingdon street, just opposite Laurel Hill cemetery. They did a general business in plants, cut flowers and designs and the care of lots, and were reputed to be highly prosperous. About 1895 Edward T. Alburger withdrew from the firm, leaving his brother to run the old place. He organized a new firm, under the name of Alburger & Cascaden. They built greenhouses on the other side of the Schuylkill river, at the entrance to West Laurel Hill cemetery. Here they did a large business. After the withdrawal of the junior partner, Mr. Alburger continued the business under his own name.

Ill health came some time ago, and while he was able to go to his store, he was unable to be about the greenhouses. Mr. Alburger was a prominent Mason. Mrs. Alburger survives her husband.

John G. Eisele.

John G. Eisele, who was probably the oldest florist in Philadelphia, died at his residence, 3325 North Twentieth street, Tuesday, April 4. He was 82 years of age.

John G. Eisele is best known to the present generation as the father of Herman Eisele, for whose store he operated greenhouses. To the older generation he is best known as the florist with a greenhouse over his store, a rarity then, at Eleventh and Jefferson streets. Mr. Eisele was a brother of J. D. Eisele, president of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., and of the late Christian Eisele.

The funeral services took place from the residence Saturday, April 8.

Robert Crawford, Jr.

Robert Crawford, Jr., one of the best known florists of Philadelphia, died after a long illness Saturday, April 8. He was 70 years of age.

Robert Crawford opened a retail flower store at 233 South Eleventh street, in the City of Brotherly Love, about forty years ago. The new store was opened in the heart of the residential district of this city and it soon became known to flower buyers. Mr.

Crawford took great pride in the appearance of his business home. The show window was always a show window. The store was always neat and clean. Later, with the aid of mirrors and white enamel, he made it beautiful. Mr. Crawford's store, when arranged for Easter, was simply lovely. He believed in his business, putting both his sons in his chosen calling.

He established the Philadelphia connection at Secane with Horace T. Dumont. Later he bought out Mr. Dumont, putting his son, Harry R. Crawford, in charge of the place. It was Mr. Crawford's especial pride that the fine carnations and other flowers sold in his store were grown by his son, Harry, on his place at Secane. Mr. Crawford's oldest son, William W. Crawford, has been in the florists' business all his life. Now he has charge of his father's business.

Mr. Crawford's business was run as a family affair, as well as to supply families. Billy Thompson was almost a son to him. Miss Daisy is faithful as a daughter, while William W. Crawford and Harry R. Crawford, his two sons, have given him their best. Mr. Crawford was a hard worker, who devoted himself closely to business. His smile and kindly word of greeting will be missed by many friends.

Edith F. Kyrk.

As a result of a stroke of apoplexy, Miss Edith F. Kyrk died March 31. Miss Kyrk was the proprietor of a flower shop conducted at 3446 Reading road, Cincinnati, O., which has done a good business in this location for about twenty years.

Miss Kyrk was active in social circles, being a member of the Women's Rotary Club and the Women's Business Club. She is survived by one brother, L. H. Kyrk, wholesale commission florist, and one sister. Interment was made at St. Joseph's cemetery, Price Hill.

G. H. K.

Charles Carlin.

Charles Carlin, known to the wholesale trade of New York city for many years as a buyer for Charles Thorley, the Fifth avenue florist, died suddenly Sunday night, April 9. He was 76 years of age and, were the term permitted, a landmark in the New York florists' trade. About forty years ago he was a partner in the firm of Carr & Carlin, retail florists at Thirty-sixth street and Sixth avenue, where they had a lean-to greenhouse in connection with their store. He left the firm, long since defunct, to engage with Mr. Thorley, about 1884, a year or two after the Thorley business was started. About five years ago he retired from business on a pension provided by Mr. Thorley, but his leisure time until death was spent in the purlieus of the market. He was well liked and will be greatly missed.

Mrs. Samuel Neil.

Mary Charlotte Neil, the wife of Samuel Neil, the well known Dorchester florist, died at her home, 501 West Park street, Dorchester, Mass., April 8.

Mrs. Neil was a native of Jersey, Channel islands, but had lived in America for nearly half a century and would have been 74 years of age next July. April 3 was the anniversary of her golden wedding, but critical sickness prevented the occasion being celebrated.

She was a most estimable lady, esteemed by all who knew her. Besides her husband, she leaves six children: Thomas and Fred, who are associated with their father in business; Marshall; Charles, who operates a retail store; Mrs. William Decker, of Orange, N. J., and Mrs. Ernest Watson, who resides near Constantinople, Turkey.

Funeral services, which were private, were held at Mrs. Neil's late home April 11. Many beautiful floral tributes were sent. W. N. C.

SWEET ALYSSUM FROM SEEDS.

Can double, dwarf sweet alyssum be propagated from the seed? If not the double, dwarf sweet alyssum, what is the best variety to grow in small pots for Memorial day sales? G. R. S.

Double alyssums are not dependable except when propagated from cuttings. They root easily. The double variety is really the best for bedding. Of the singles, Little Gem is excellent and, as it grows rapidly from the seed, you can get good plants for Memorial day sales yet. You can also buy rooted cuttings from one of a number of the firms advertising these cuttings in The Review. C. W.

NEWS NOTES

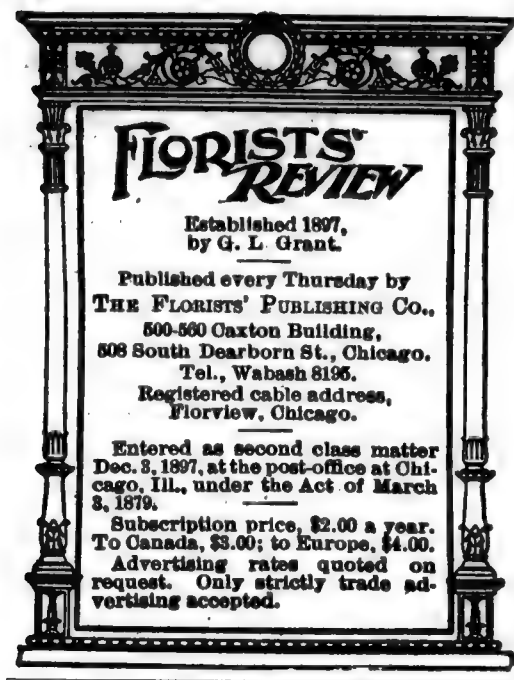

Sioux City, Ia.—The J. C. Rennison Co. hereafter will operate the floral department in the store of Davidson Bros. Co. The department is being outfitted with new fixtures by the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago.

Forrest City, Ark.—F. C. Seaton and his brother have two greenhouses, 21x100 and 21x55, respectively, with two houses, each of which is 21x100, in the course of construction. The firm will operate under the name of Seaton Bros. Greenhouses.

Bowling Green, O.—The erection of a greenhouse, at 959 North Main street, will be undertaken by W. W. Milnor within a week or ten days. The structure will be 25x125 feet and will cost in the neighborhood of $10,000. Mr. Milnor will conduct a business here when the work is completed, which will be about June 1.

Muskogee, Okla.—Two new greenhouses, 34x150 feet, are being erected by the Muskogee Carnation Co. This firm makes a specialty of carnations and roses, and a general line of pot plants is grown for the wholesale and retail trade. Members of this firm report that business throughout the season has been entirely satisfactory.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—A new company was organized April 6, and the store, greenhouses and all the assets of the Stiles Floral Co., bankrupt, were taken over from the First National bank, the purchaser at the trustee's sale. The business will be conducted as the Art Floral Co., under the management of J. W. Furrow and H. W. Blocker, Mr. Blocker having charge of the store. The business was incorporated for $50,000 by J. W. Furrow, H. W. Blocker and R. M. Scruggs.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

MAIL the Editor a clipping of your Easter advertisement.

THE approaching summer will afford many excellent opportunities for getting into the florists' business in a first-class way.

THERE is a good piece of money waiting for the man who comes forward with the right red rose. Ditto the yellow and white.

THE number of business failures has been falling off lately. The sound firms are over the bumps and the others have mostly fallen by the wayside.

CHRYSANthemum midge is appearing here and there with sufficient frequency to cause growers to be on their guard. Inspect carefully the cuttings you receive. Some growers do not know they have the midge.

MOTHERS' day follows fast upon Easter—only four weeks away. It will keep florists stepping to get ready for a big day May 14. And, despite the remarks of sundry overzealous persons about flower prices, it will be a big day for florists.

THE first week of the strike of the union bituminous miners ended with the market for coal practically unruffled. There has been no improvement in demand and this apathetic situation discloses that the market is apparently well stocked.

THE British trade talks of exclusion being threatened rose stocks, narcissus bulbs and possibly other horticultural products by extension of quarantine 37. Our federal horticultural board has given no warning. No one yet knows what will be the subjects of discussion May 15.

ON the list of nominees for the Legion of Honor recently announced by the French government is the name of Mme. Philippe de Vilmorin, widow of the famous French horticulturist. At the same time similar honor was conferred upon M. Graindorge, who is vice-president of the National Federation of Horticulturists' Associations of France and president of the association of the Paris district, the largest and most powerful association of France.

ADVERTISING is a powerful agency, whether used by upright persons or otherwise. It is different from most other strong forces, however, in that it eventually reacts on the unscrupulous user in proportion to his use of it.

FROM the interest displayed by growers, Mrs. Warren G. Harding's namesake rose is one she may be proud of. Shown at Hartford, at New York and at Indianapolis, this dark pink sport of Columbia appealed to a considerable number.

THE variety of Easter plants has been enriched this year by the addition of Paul's Scarlet Climber. Introduced as of outstanding merit for outdoor use, the variety is proving amenable to pot culture and some splendidly flowered specimens are seen in various markets.

THE F. T. D. Association continues to enjoy an income considerably greater than is necessary to care for the work now being done. Wonder if anyone has suggested using the surplus to advertise the F. T. D. service in the Saturday Evening Post, a rather widely read publication not recently used by the S. A. F. national publicity committee.

OUR NATIONAL ADVERTISING.

Advertisements are appearing in a number of national magazines, placed by the publicity committee of the Society of American Florists. If you haven't noticed them, you will find them, occupying one-column space, in the following periodicals, in the issues noted:

Literary Digest—March 11, May 6.
Outlook—March 8, April 5, May 3.
McLean's—March 15, April 15, May 15.
Life—March 23, April 8, May 13.
Collier's—April 1, May 13.
American—May.
Red Book—May.
Cosmopolitan—May.
Sunset—May.

Reprints of these are being mailed out to florists who do not contribute to the campaign. If those who are not helping this good work would "come through," the committee would be better able to use magazines of still larger circulation than those named above and also advertisements of larger size.

WHY NOT MORE CARE?

As the growers and sellers of plants and flowers, members of this trade are looked to by the public as authority in matters of floriculture. We ought to try to live up to that reputation. Whenever the public finds reason for doubt, it is to our disadvantage. It is surprising the frequency that the public is given such occasion for doubt in florists' advertising, by reason of misspelled names. There are certain misspellings which are more common than others, such as "lillies," "gladiolas," and the like, but the list does not stop there. In an Easter folder mailed to his customers last week, one florist—and one of some repute, at that—allowed the following misspellings to appear:

Lilys, Poeticers, nasturtimus, nasturitums, cinerias, hydrandgeas, marguriet, Jouquell, tomatoe, pheonix, candytuff, chrysanthumms, gypsophia, belltrope, sinias, pansys, Aspurgus plumosa, Aspurgus sprengrie, rubarb, laural.

Probably the printer was responsible for these misspellings. In that case the florist should change his printer, or should ask that a proof be given before the pages are finally printed. If the florist was responsible, he should know better. By referring to a current issue of The Review he could have found the correct spelling of pretty nearly every plant mentioned; much time and effort is devoted to putting every botanical name in its proper form in these columns. And a small dictionary giving the correct spelling and pronunciation does not cost much.

LOOK OUT FOR HIM.

ON March 7 a medium-sized man, of rather delicate appearance, apparently of good breeding and refinement, introduced himself as J. B. Corl, of the Berryhill Nursery, Harrisburg, Pa., and appealed to us at the Fraser Nursery Co., Birmingham, Ala., for financial assistance. He stated that he had been south attending a Mardi Gras, at Mobile and New Orleans, accompanied by his wife, who was in bad health. While in Mobile he had been robbed of all the money he had, with the exception of enough to get to Birmingham, where he hoped to find an old friend. On his arrival in Birmingham he failed to locate this friend. He stated that he had wired to the Berryhill Nursery for sufficient money to get him home, but did not have enough to buy food in the meantime.

The writer talked with this gentleman at some length, sounding him out as to the extent of his acquaintance in the nursery trade. His answers gave reasonable assurance that he was just what he represented himself to be. He seemed to have a good acquaintance with the nurseries all over the country, and he knew considerable about the nursery business. He spoke of a personal acquaintance with several people in Harrisburg whom the writer knew. On the strength of these statements we lent him $25, to be returned as soon as he received funds from Harrisburg. To date we have heard nothing further from him. On March 30 we wrote the Berryhill Nursery, O. P. Beckley and J. Horace McFarland, whom he had mentioned as knowing intimately. All of these persons report that he is a fraud, that there is no one by that name connected with the Berryhill Nursery and that we have been victimized.

This man is small of stature, apparently about 50 years of age, bald-headed, with teeth somewhat irregular and prominent, rather sallow complexion and a nervous, timid manner.

Please warn your subscribers to be on the lookout for him and anyone with whom he is connected. We are willing to spend some money to prosecute him, as we believe steps should be taken to bring this man to justice.

O. W. Fraser.

WHY BUSINESS IS GOOD.

Business is good with many florists for the reason that The Review prints 13,000 copies of each issue and because somewhere in the country there is a demand for every kind of stock. The combination works like this:

Kindly take out our geranium ad, as we have sold more than we intended.—Emile Blum & Son, Pineville, La., April 6, 1922.

The Review brings big results at low cost.—J. Dobberty Sons, Rochester, N. Y., April 8, 1922.

Please discontinue my chrysanthemum ad, as I have more orders than I can fill this season.—William Doel, Pascoag, R. I., April 8, 1922.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

TORONTO, ONT.

The Market.

The outlook for Easter trade is good and a visit to the greenhouses shows that there is a good supply of first-class stock available for Easter week. The lilies look better than ever and there is a supply of roses and spiræas. Hydrangeas are not so plentiful, but bulbous stock is plentiful and of good quality.

Various Notes.

Robert Greenlaw, of the S. S. Pen-nock Co., Philadelphia, has been calling on the trade in Toronto.

The coöperative advertising is being continued with good results. This week Easter advertising is appearing in the Sunday World and Star Weekly in large space. The busy Saturdays testify to the good results of the advertising campaign.

The regular meeting of the Toronto Retail Florists' Club was held April 3, with President S. A. McFadden in the chair. There was a good attendance. E. S. Simmons reported that the dance had finished with a balance on the right side of the ledger and he was accorded a hearty vote of thanks. Advertising was discussed and arrangements made for Easter advertising. G. M. Geraghty reported on the Indianapolis show. April 24 an entertainment will be held, when the members and their friends will enjoy cards and a social evening.

The show of flowers at the funeral of Sir John Eaton was fine. Lady Eaton had expressed a wish that flowers be omitted, but the Retail Florists' Club arranged that flowers be delivered to the church where the services were held. There were some decidedly striking arrangements, the baskets being beautiful. Following the service the cards were sent to Lady Eaton and the flowers were delivered to the hospitals.

Prospect Florists have been registered.

William Jay had a good display of Easter stock at his greenhouses on Wells street. The front greenhouse, 24x55, was banked with lilies, ferns and various flowering plants.

George Yavner, Arcade florist, has returned from Hot Springs.

The following program has been arranged for the twenty-fifth annual convention of the Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association, to be held at Montreal, August 8 to 11, inclusive: "Rock Gardening," by C. J. Gilbert, of London; "What Science Can Do for the Florist," by Professor Crow; "Growing Cyclamens," by W. C. Hall, Montreal; a paper by A. Walker, of McDonald College, St. Anne de Bellevue; "Advertising for the Florist," by a Montreal member; "What the Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association Can Do for the Private Gardener," and a floral demonstration. The annual session of the retail section will be held at the same time. The discussion on the president's address, to be delivered by W. E. Groves, of Hamilton, will be opened by F. D. Clark, president of the Gardeners' and Florists' Association, Toronto. There will be a trade exhibit and those desiring space should communicate with the secretary, H. J. Eddy, 4425 Sherbrooke street, Montreal. W. E. Groves, president of the organization, has been active and a large increase in the membership and an increased interest in the work of the association has been noted during his tenure of office. The association is to be congratulated on the aggressiveness of its officials.

The regular meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Association will be held April 17. J. J. H.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The market has changed but little. The supply seems to be still somewhat in excess of a demand which is extremely fickle. The approach of Easter lends a little interest to what might otherwise seem quite ordinary. With the close of last week, prognostications as to the possible Easter business became common. Of course, the weather man is a factor in the situation, and he is eyed with suspicion. All last week it was seen that a bountiful supply of bulbous material could not be expected, and Monday, April 10, with a thermometer registering high, it was easy to forecast the violet situation—nobody wants to take orders for violets. But, with blasted hopes for violets, the sweet pea crop is especially promising and there will surely be no dearth of lily of the valley, both good substitutes for violets, although sentiment clings to the latter.

The market for a week has been cluttered with lilies in all grades, and they have moved fairly well. Most arrivals were of the short-stemmed variety, useful for limited purposes only. Wholesalers have for some days been booking orders for Easter requirements of lilies at $25 per hundred and, possibly, long-stemmed stock may bring $35 per hundred. There seems to be no probability of a shortage, and who shall say that a $35 maximum is not quite in accordance with present-day conditions?

Roses are in good supply and promise well for Easter. Arrivals for some days have shown signs of holding, and many retailers have complained of buying "pigs in pokes." American Beauty is in only moderate supply. Hybrid teas are suffering from weather effects, but last week's prices are fairly well maintained. Ophelia is a wonderful variety, seemingly withstanding anything in the way of conditions.

Cattleyas have advanced to a range of $75 to $100 per hundred, with hybrids bringing additional value hardly quotable. It is not expected that the Easter supply will be overly large, but the lower grades may be better in quality. Spray orchids are in moderate supply, but their movement, necessarily, is slow.

Lily of the valley is plentiful, but stronger, the top price now being $6 per hundred. Valley may move upward if the violet situation becomes critical.

Carnations are plentiful and arrivals generally are of good quality. Sales are made within a range of $4 to $6 per hundred, with superior stock bringing as much as $8. Whites seem to be in greatest demand.

Miscellaneous flowers are abundant. Bulbous stock has shortened somewhat, but some of the late stock is splendid in quality and brings good prices. Tulips are passing, except Darwins, which command as much as $1 per dozen. Narcissus poeticus is plentiful at $2 per hundred. Southern shipments of narcissi fill the demand for cheap stock. Lilac, bouvardia, calendulas, stocks, freesias, daisies, mignonette, delphiniums, pansies, wallflowers, myosotis and snapdragons form the most of the offerings, supplemented by shrub flowers, such as forsythias, deutzias and fruit flowers.

Various Notes.

The trade regretfully notes the death of Charles Carlin, for many years connected with Charles Thorley, the Fifth avenue florist. The deceased was around the market Friday and Saturday, April 7 and 8, but died the next Sunday night. More about his demise is noted in the obituary columns of this issue.

Interest runs high as regards the mass meeting of florists, to be held on Friday afternoon, April 21, at 3 p. m., in the Engineering Societies' building. At this meeting representatives of every branch of the trade and the auxiliary trades are expected to be present. The Allied Florists' Trade Association is sparing no effort to make this a most representative meeting, and the advance literature being sent out should surely appeal to everyone in the trade to the extent of making attendance at this meeting peremptory.

Robert G. Wilson, the Brooklyn florist, made several pieces for the ceremonies in connection with the arrival of the last of the American dead from France last week. Among the orders he filled was one from the United States Senate for a wreath; another for a wreath from President Harding, and a third from the headquarters of the American Legion. J. H. P.

The Horticultural Society of New York will hold its annual fall flower show at the American Museum of Natural History, November 9 to 12, 1922. Prizes will be offered for chrysanthemum, orchid, foliage and decorative plants and for cut flowers, vegetables and fruits. Complete schedules of classes can be secured from Mrs. George V. Nash, secretary of the organization, Bronx park, New York.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

A little warm weather and bright sun last week, with the approach of Easter, produced a marked change in market conditions. It was impossible to hold stock, either on the plants or in the coolers, under such weather conditions and the market filled with flowers. When closing time came Saturday night, in spite of a good day's business, the ice-boxes were crowded with roses, sweet peas and bulbous flowers. Carnations did not accumulate to so great an extent.

April 9 was the warmest, brightest day of the spring to date and it contributed much toward increasing the supply in the early days of this week. This report is written just as the Easter rush is beginning. It is apparent that the market will be well supplied in certain lines, though poorly in others. There will be plenty of roses, sweet peas and bulbous flowers, especially jonquils. Quality will be of the top-notch degree, unless something unseasonable happens. Carnations will not be so plentiful, but it begins to be suspected that price is a more powerful factor than heretofore in balancing supply and demand. Time was when the holder of a scarce article could make his own prices. Now, however, the buyers make the price on even the scarcest of flowers, by letting them alone if the price is too high. This is especially the case at present, when there are many plentiful flowers to compete with the scarce ones. Some of the wholesalers begin to think carnation prices for Easter were started too high.

The same condition exists with lilies. There are not many lilies this Easter, but the price is limited by the refusal of the buyers to pay more than certain figures; they just pass them up. Cat-tleyas are the scarcest item for Easter, but the demand for these has been limited for many months by the prices asked. Violets are in small supply, but seem quite good for so late an Easter. However, a hot day might make stock in transit unfit for use.

At the opening of this week there was a huge mail and this, with the early orders, brought the advance bookings up to a thoroughly satisfactory total. During the last three days of this week this market will do an enormous shipping business—it is assured. How the demand will compare with the supply it is much too early to tell, but all the larger houses seem satisfied with the outlook. To quote one of the wholesalers, "the market seems to be riding pretty so far."

ton to Elmhurst. It was the path taken by many preceding storms. This time the loss was not great. Fischer Bros., at Evanston, lost a few hundred panes of glass and other Evanston growers suffered slight breakage. At Maywood, where all the ranges are in a group, practically everyone lost a little glass, perhaps 200 or 300 lights. It was at Elmhurst that the greatest damage was done. The Dramm Greenhouse Co. lost 600 to 700 panes and the Wendland & Keimel Co. lost 1,600 to 1,700 panes. Hurry-up orders for glass to repair the damage developed that the supply on hand in Chicago warehouses is extremely small.

Our Successful Politicians.

The trade was more than ordinarily interested in the primary election April 11. We had numerous candidates, all of whom were victorious.

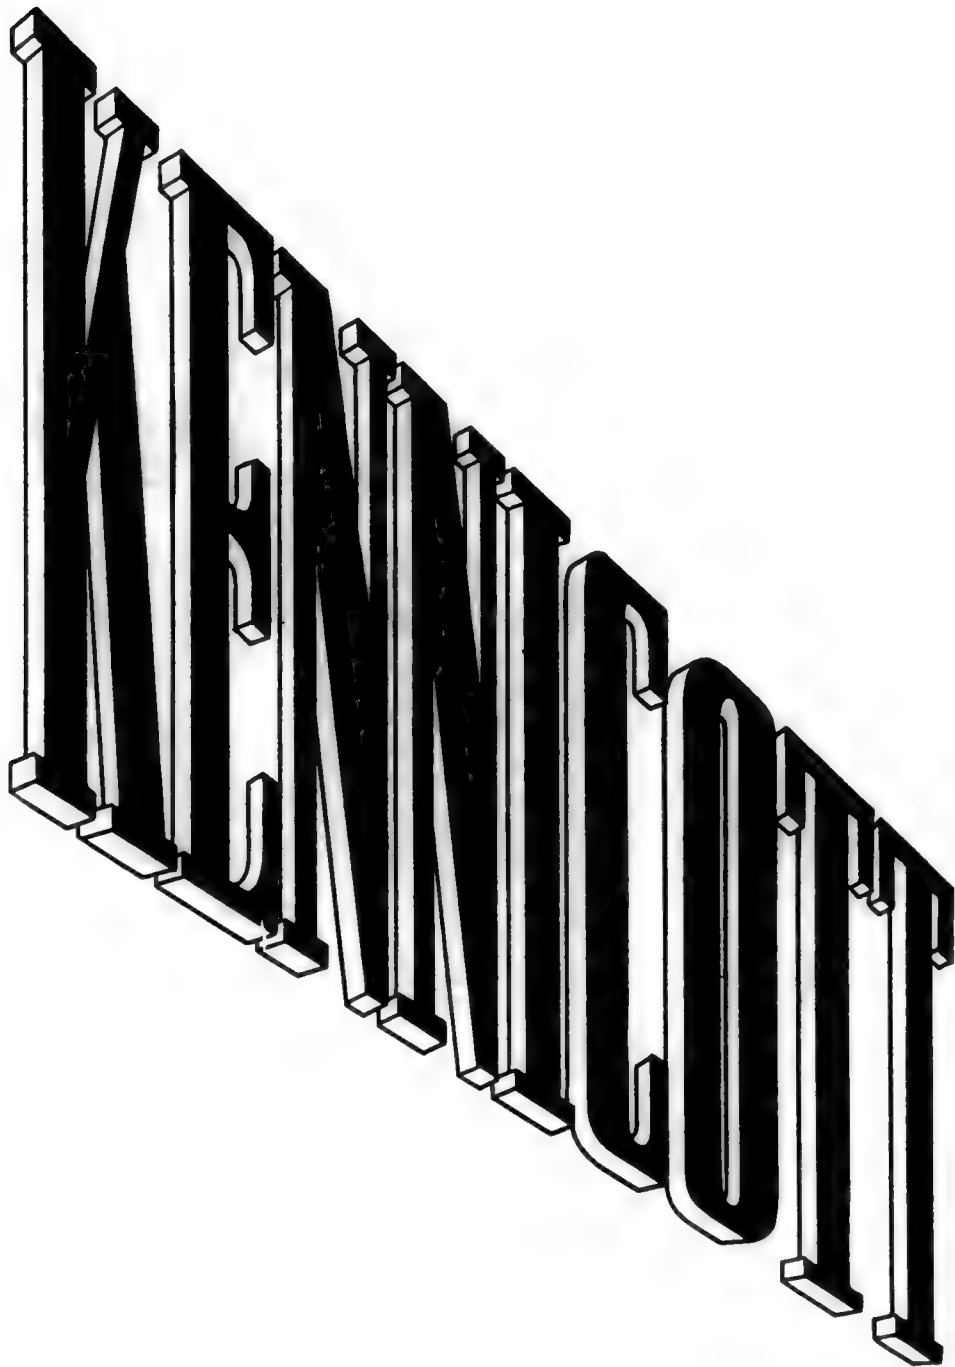

Henry A. Zender, president of Peter

Reinberg, Inc., was nominated as the Democratic candidate for probate clerk.

Joseph A. Mendel, west side retailer, was nominated for Democratic member of the board of county commissioners.

Many florists at Des Plaines, Niles and Morton Grove had devoted much time to campaigning for Coroner Peter M. Hoffman, who was nominated as the Republican candidate for sheriff.

Charles S. Peterson, on whose presses The Review is printed, was nominated as Republican candidate for president of the county board, the position held by the late Peter Reinberg.

Mr. Pollworth Retires.

April 8 August G. Urbanski, secretary and treasurer, announced in a signed notice that Joseph E. Pollworth is no longer connected with the Florists' Credit Association "as president or in any capacity." Mr. Urbanski, who has made a considerable investment in the Credit Association, states that the business will be continued under the direct management of Raymond E. Miller and that every effort will be made to have the service, the methods and the personnel such as to merit the approval of the trade.

Friends of F. S. Webb, organizer and builder of the Credit Association, who retired a few months ago because of failing health, will regret to hear that Mr. Webb's condition grows steadily worse.

Various Notes.

Richard E. Gloede, of Evanston, spent April 8 on the witness stand before the Illinois railway commission in Chicago. The Chicago and Milwaukee electric line is seeking a private right of way through Wilmette and wants to cut across Mr. Gloede's strip and the adjoining athletic field of Northwestern University. Mr. Gloede is unwilling to part with a strip 110 feet wide across his place, but will sell all his holdings if given a fair price.

There were only seven clear days in March and ten on which the sun did not shine at all. The percentage of possible sunshine was only forty-nine.

Wille-Douglass, 3954 West Harrison street, is removing to 4108 West Madison street. M. Douglass says they expect the move will result in a considerable increase in business.

C. L. Sherer spent twelve hours in Pittsburgh last week and came home more than pleased with his trip. Business he found much better there than on his last trip. He carried some statements and all but one were paid in full; he obtained an order at each store visited, larger orders, on the whole, than he expected and for the best grades of stock. "The flower business is looking up again," was his comment.

heart of the wholesale district, George Fisher & Bro. have an extremely busy retail store. Mr. Fisher is a large buyer on the market, as he acts for some out-of-town stores as well as his own, and his smiling good nature has given him one quite unusual line of business. Nearly all the wholesale houses have more or less calls every day from persons not in the trade and several of the wholesalers have acquired the habit of sending all such buyers to Mr. Fisher's retail store. Of a Saturday the place is thronged.

The Carson-Pirie department store has its spring flower show in progress this week. The work was done, as last year, by W. J. Smyth's staff under the direction of Arthur Weatherwax.

Bert Chadwick, of the E. C. Amling Co., spent a couple of days in Detroit last week. He reports business is quite evidently picking up there.

the Hupmobile arrived home from Florida in time to participate in the Easter rush. They were delayed a day or two by soft roads.

Carl Bachler, 3597 Archer avenue, is planning a summer trip to Europe.

According to the real estate columns of the daily papers, C. H. Bokedis, who is preparing to open a store opposite the Drake hotel, under the name of Michigan Boulevard Flower Shop, has a 10-year lease on the space, 19x80, from May 1, at a term rental of $55,000.

Leo Wietor, son of N. J. Wietor, returned April 9, after having spent two months on the Pacific coast.

Jacob Geimer, for some years superintendent of carnation growing for the late Peter Reinberg, will take over Mr. Reinberg's carnation range June 1. In the partition of the Reinberg glass, the carnation establishment on "the farm" was bequeathed to George Reinberg and one of the sisters, Mrs. M. Weiland. They are now turning it over to Mr. Geimer. George Reinberg has sold his new place on Lincoln avenue, started two or three years ago, to a firm of

Increase your sales

ONE important detail of your business has an important bearing on increased sales. It is the containers in which cut flowers are displayed. Discriminating florists now use "Fibrotta" Vases. They look like polished mahogany but are inexpensive. Water stays cool in them a long time. They do not chill the water when placed in your refrigerator, since they are non-conductors of heat and cold. Write Cordley & Hayes, 14 Leonard St., New York, for details.

Seal your fine boxes with a mark of Service!

FLORISTS take pride in delivering boxes of beautiful cut flowers or corsage bouquets. They are anxious to pack every ounce of beauty into that tempting box — for friends and customers are often made through fine deliveries. And service is the very best advertising.

Dennison recognizes the importance of these deliveries, suggesting and creating beautiful seals to accompany the boxes — and to advertise the quality service of the florist.

In addition to these labels, Dennison also designs and manufactures unusual address tags — address tags that are not discolored by water, and that have the standard Dennison quality.

These labels and tags are good advertising. Invest in them for the sake of your service. Let Dennison suggest a label for you, without charge. Fill out the coupon and write for samples and prices.

making the start with only one or two modest greenhouses. "Great oaks from little acorns grow."

Some excellent plants of Paul's Scarlet Climber have been flowered for Easter at the Batavia establishment of the Illinois Plant Co. A. Henderson & Co. have had samples on display this week.

The American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. is in its new offices, which will give one-third more space to accommodate the rapid growth which this company is enjoying. The new location is in the Masonic Temple, just opposite the former offices.

The sweet peas which Hans Jepsen showed at last week's meeting of the Florists' Club were subsequently on display in the window of Kunze's fruit store, on Randolph street, where they attracted much attention.

The A. B. C. has some excellent kentias in its store. The plants are being used as samples on which to book orders for autumn delivery. It is California stock which is being grown on in an eastern establishment.

G. Basler, of Buffalo, N. Y., visited friends here last week. Before leaving he called on Kroeschell Bros. Co. and ordered a new boiler, to be delivered in July.

P. W. Peterson, of Joliet, paid one of his infrequent visits to the market April 10. He is devoting nearly his whole time to the retail business at Joliet and is consuming in it practically the entire output of the greenhouses, the old range of the Chicago Carnation Co. There are about 150,000 feet of glass in the establishment. It has not all been in operation this winter, but during the approaching summer the heating apparatus will be overhauled and all the houses will be producing next season. Mr. Peterson says there is nothing whatever the matter with the florists' business from his point of view.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

With the coming of Easter the market is agog with stock. The weather is extremely warm for April, and, therefore, ruins stock quickly. Roses now are at their best and are arriving in large quantities. They are moving well. Carnations also are arriving in good supply and are moving out as fast as they arrive.

The bright sunshine is opening sweet peas in large quantities. Bulbous stock, with the exception of daffodils, is about gone for this season.

Snapdragons are better now than at any previous time this season and they move well at $10 to $12.50 per hundred. Lilies find a market. Where they are in constant demand they bring $15 to $25 per hundred. Violets of the home-grown variety are gone, but there are still some arriving from California that are in good condition upon arrival here. The new southern smilax received last week was in A-1 condition. Other green goods move well.

BETTER BOXES

for All Floral Shipments

Safeguard the freshness of your floral shipments by the use of Hinde & Dauch Corrugated Fibre Board Containers. It is the good condition of a shipment "when delivered" that stamps your place as a first-class house and brings you repeat orders.

H & D Corrugated Fibre Floral Boxes are specially constructed to meet the rigid requirements of floral shipments. There is no gaping of lid or box under the weight of other merchandise in transit, and cut flowers and plants are invariably in better delivery condition when packed in these specially designed containers. Light weight, accurately cut and economical, they offer a most satisfactory packing method.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Business slackened at the beginning of last week, quickening at the close. The general health of the city and country was good and white flowers, notably lilies and lilacs, were dull. The carnation crop shortened perceptibly, keeping the price firm. Snapdragons are in full crop.

The weather seemed to have less to do with market conditions than usual, because the dull period did not favor production, while the warm weather came with improvement, but this was apparent only because the demand materially increased as Palm Sunday approached, regardless of weather conditions.

Business is especially well distributed among the different varieties of flowers. The bulbous group, sweet peas, roses, carnations, snapdragons and the miscellaneous group all receive strong support. Prices are not high, except here and there, but the trading is large and the outlook for Easter is bright.

The Lace Flower.

It may not be generally known that Charles Henry Fox has created a considerable demand for the so-called lace flower. The lace flower resembles the wild carrot in appearance, except in color, which is blue. Mr. Fox secured seed of this flower, advertised and sold it and induced Zieger & Son to grow it for cut flowers. Zieger & Son have two benches of the lace flowers on their place, on East Washington lane; one bench was in bloom for the Christmas holidays; the other batch is in full bloom now. The flowers are durable and have made a hit.

Snapdragon.

Snapdragon is such an important factor in the cut flower market this Easter that a little "snap story" is in season.

It is the ambition of every grower of snapdragons to get flowers early, just as it is the ambition of every bulb forcer. Early snapdragons should be in bloom at Thanksgiving, be at their best at Christmas and continue through January; it is awfully difficult and hardly anybody does it. There is, however, at least one snapdragon specialist who does it and does it easily. He does not plant extremely early, but the seedlings go right ahead unchecked. He cuts at Thanksgiving, he is in crop at Christmas and he cuts heavily throughout January, all extra fine stuff, carefully disbudded and grown to perfection, and he gets an awful price for his flowers.

Various Notes.

Recent visitors included T. B. McClintock, Seranton, Pa.; John Giles, Reading, Pa.; George H. Berke, Atlantic City, N. J., and John C. Hatcher, of Amsterdam, N. Y.

J. P. McCarthy has resigned his position with the M. Rice Co.; he went into business for himself at Camden, N. J., April 1.

days than colored ones. Premier, Columbia, Priscilla, Butterfly and Pilgrim are the leaders among colored roses. For Easter a fair crop of Hadley and Crusader is expected and these will realize top-notch prices. Carnations, which had a bad fainting spell last week, are asserting themselves strongly. A small number only have come in the last few days. Either crops are off or growers are holding flowers back; most probably the latter. Whites have sold well of late. Prices are up to $6 to $8 per hundred, with Laddie and Maine Sunshine $12 per hundred.

Violets, except for some doubles, are about over. Sweet peas are abundant, with comparatively low prices. The same is true of bulbous material. Yellow marguerites are fine and there is an increased supply of calendulas at $2 to $3 per hundred. Callas and Easter lilies are stronger. Snapdragon varies from $6 to $15 per hundred and is now of fine quality. Primroses are over; pansies, nearly so. Mignonette is getting poor and wallflowers and forget-me-nots are both near the end. There are a few Spanish irises, some Gypsophila elegans, and small lots of hardy larkspurs.

Cattleya Mossiae is more plentiful, but the demand is not robust. There are some odontoglossums and cymbidiums, as well as a few odontiodas. Gardenias are in fine supply, as well as valley, and the call for asparagus is somewhat improved.

Various Notes.

The finance commission of the city of Boston has completed an investigation of the use of plants from the city greenhouses for decoration purposes. The commission states that in 1920 the park department made seventy-four decorations and ninety in 1921, up to November 15. Of these, fifty-four went to churches, and most of the balance went for school graduations. The city has delivered all plants, furnished heated vases for cold weather and cared for and arranged the decorations. Many plants have been killed or injured, and it has cost the city at least $5,000 to do this work, which legitimately belongs to the florists. The report recommends that hereafter city property be loaned for public celebrations and that schools securing plants be charged a suitable fee. These recommendations will, undoubtedly, be adopted.

to the New England Publishing Co., for the exclusive use of a Boston newspaper. The Boston Flower Exchange, H. M. Robinson & Co. and Dolansky & McDonald are among those now doing business in this block. Present leases expire in January, 1923. This will prevent any renewal of leases for wholesale flower selling, although a removal from this section had practically been discounted. The exact location of the new wholesale flower markets has not yet been decided upon.

The American Orchid Society will hold its annual meeting at Horticultural hall, Boston, Saturday, May 6, at 3 p. m., by daylight-saving time, for the election of officers for 1922 and the transaction of other business. The following names have been submitted by the nominating committee, to be balloted on at this meeting: President, A. C. Burrage, Boston; vice-presidents, Theodore H. Wickwire, Buffalo, N. Y.; Oakes Ames, North Easton, Mass., and W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J.; treasurer, Louis Burk, Philadelphia; secretary, Alfred J. Loveless, Lenox, Mass.; trustees for three years, Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.; Oliver Lines, Pittsfield, Mass., and E. B. Dane, Chestnut Hill, Mass. The great show of ferns and wild flowers will be in progress at the time of this meeting and promises to eclipse in popular interest even the native orchid show held in May, 1921.

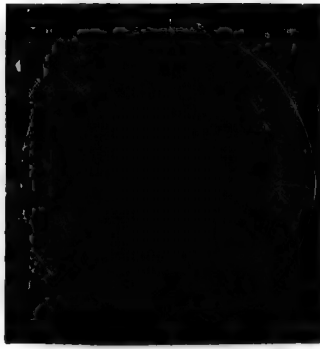

Paul Tatka, aged 46, a market gardener of Danvers, Mass., succumbed to coal gas fumes early in the morning of April 7, while trying to reach the door of the boiler room of his greenhouses. He had slept at the greenhouses, in order to keep close watch of the temperature of his vegetable houses during the recent cold spell. The deceased left a widow and four children.

The Easter lily situation this year is a curious one. Some time ago it was believed that available plants would be in excess of the demand, but there has been more disease than usual among giganteums, and plants were never so dwarf and have in the main flowered unsatisfactorily. Many plants are not over six to eight inches high, with buds hanging over the pots, and growers with plants as much as fifteen inches high are being envied. The demand is strong, and practically all available plants have been sold a considerable time ahead; in fact, some growers oversold, hoping to be able to buy sufficient elsewhere to fill orders, which they are now unable to do. There are some nice, healthy batches, but far more which are unsatisfactory. Any who grew formosums have found them clean and floriferous.

At the regular meeting of the North Shore Horticultural Society, April 5, at Manchester, Mass., Robert Cameron, W. N. Craig and George F. Stewart spoke on the aims and purposes of the National Association of Gardeners. The Boston convention, September 12 to 15, was referred to, and prominent north shore growers pledged their hearty support and will assist in entertaining the large delegation which will visit leading north shore estates September 14. Alfred E. Parsons showed a magnificent group of nemesias in 6-inch pots from seed sown August 10, 1921. These secured the society's silver medal. There were fifty plants in the collection, all superbly flowered. Over 100 members attended the meeting.

tailers are asking 40 cents to 50 cents. The supply seems inadequate at this time. Roses are abundant and exceptionally fine; so are French hydrangeas. There are fewer spiræas, ericas, acacias and bougainvilleas, but plenty of genistas, marguerites, late cinerarias and bulbous material. There are still a few azaleas and even some rhododendrons.

Penn the Florist is advertising heavily for Easter and is making special offers of hydrangeas, roses, lilies, narcissi, tulips and hyacinths among pot plants. Additional store space has been engaged for the immense additional trade.

Forty prominent growers, wholesalers and retailers joined in an attractive full-page "Say It with Flowers" advertisement in the Boston Sunday papers April 9.

The Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co. states that this has been the busiest seed season it has ever had. A large Easter trade is also done in flowering plants, to care for which the firm temporarily hired additional store space at 27 Dock square.

John J. O'Brien's store, on Beacon street, is worth a special visit these days. He has a roomy store and shows some superb specimens of acacias, bougainvilleas, ericas, roses, hydrangeas, gardenias and other plants. His store is a veritable flower show in itself.

Henry M. Robinson entertained a large party of friends at his summer home, Green Harbor, Mass., Sunday, April 2.

The demise of Mrs. Samuel Neil, wife of the well known Dorchester florist, is noted in the obituary column of this issue.

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

The annual convention and exhibition of the American Gladiolus Society will be held in Kalamazoo, Mich., August 16 and 17 of this year. From information received, this show promises to be one of the finest exhibitions that the society has held in years.

The officers of the society are as follows: President, C. R. Hinkle, St. Joseph, Mich.; vice-president, Dr. F. E. Bennett, St. Thomas, Ont.; treasurer, Madison Cooper, Calcium, N. Y.; secretary, David Tyndall, Brockton, Mass.

The following constitute the executive committee: John J. Prouty, Baldwinsville, N. Y.; H. E. Meader, Dover, N. H.; Joe Coleman, Ravenna, O.

Members of the exhibition committee are: John J. Prouty; Gerrit Vos, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Madison Cooper; D. L. Boardman, Buchanan, Mich. Mrs. A. H. Austin, Ravenna, O., will act as supervisor of judges.

MICHIGAN SHOW NOVEMBER 7.

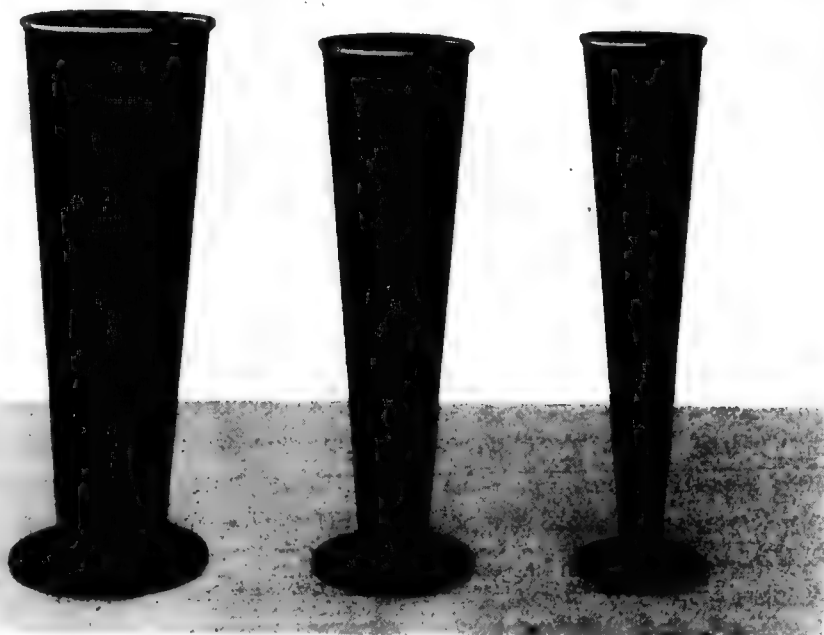

On account of so many shows this spring coming at or about the same time, the officers of the Michigan State Florists' Association met in the winter and postponed the Michigan state flower show until November 7 to 10. It will be held in the Furniture Exposition building, at Grand Rapids, Mich., and should be a fine show with a good attendance. The committees have been appointed and it is hoped to make this one of Michigan's best shows. The arrangement of the hall is in the hands of

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Santa Cruz, Cal.—Wells Pratcher is a grower of bulbs in this locality. He sells in quantity to the wholesalers.

Gardena, Cal.—K. G. Schulze, manager of the Theresean Plant Co., which claims to have the most complete geranium collection on the globe, says that during the month of January they received over 800 orders for geranium plants, which looks as though business is good.

El Cajon, Cal.—The Sunkist Gardens are building a small greenhouse, 15x22, for general stock. They have also purchased a lot on the paved highway here and expect to start a retail place in the near future. William Livesey and Benjamin Livesey, Jr., are the proprietors here.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

The supply of daffodils has shortened considerably since last week, while a good cut of Easter lilies is taking their place. Prices are stiffening, but there is every prospect of an abundant supply of stock for the holiday. Outdoor carnations are still scarce, but roses are plentiful. Valley, orchids, sweet peas and Cecile Brunner roses are even with the demand. Plumosus is still scarce and only of medium quality. Good lilies, cinerarias and begonias are the principal offerings in plants.

Various Notes.

Lanss Bros., well known nurserymen of West Pico street, have moved to a new location at Sixteenth and Arlington streets. They are sending in a fine line of potted bulbous stock to the American Florists' Exchange.

Jack Howard took a trip to San Diego last week.

G. Gorini, of Gorini Bros., was passing the cigars last week, because of the arrival at his home, March 31, of a baby girl. Both mother and child were reported as doing well.

Angelo Tassano, of Tassano Bros., is handling extra fine daffodils from their Artesia nurseries.

The large, old specimens of Cocos plumosa, for many years growing in J. Dietrich's nursery on Wall street, had to make way for the new building and were secured by Paul Staiger for Paul J. Howard's landscape department.

Harry Bailey, of Montebello, reports big business in plumosus seedlings, but says that the prospects for good seed for next year are by no means rosy. Plants will, undoubtedly, be scarce also.

Doss Lockhart, who has been for many years connected with Walter Armacost & Co. and S. Murata & Co., has started in business for himself with two stores, one at Hollywood and the other on Pasadena avenue.

Business is good with Herbert Bate-man, Inc., keeping the staff busy. A fine decoration at the Los Angeles Country Club, where a number of Easter hats were used, was something out of the ordinary. Carl Brose is still doing well with the sale of his pedigree Airedales and his recent score of ninety-three blue rocks out of a possible 100 shows that his eye is still in good shape.

The rainbow freesias handled by the E. C. Amling Co. for Alois Frey are particularly fine. Mr. Frey has secured additional land farther south, in the San Fernando valley near Chatsworth.

L. Gage, brother of H. N. Gage, of Montebello, is having great success with his bulb trials at his new grounds near Carlsbad. A judge with the reputation of Harry Bailey says he has never seen finer freesias than those grown by Mr. Gage. It looks as though there will be an exodus of Los Angeles growers to this favored section near San Diego.

Schaefer's Nursery, on South Figueroa street, is a busy place these days. Mr. Schaefer has a fine stock of small bedding and other plants, which are much in demand since the frost. While some retail business is done, a good deal of it at this store is wholesale to other nurserymen.

R. Loemell, salesman for Roy F. Wilcox & Co., is in the hospital suffering from a severe attack of pneumonia. Dick, as Mr. Loemell is familiarly known around the market, was down with influenza recently, and probably got around too soon.

R. Pluess, of the force of the E. C. Amling Co., has been among the sick, but has returned to work. Business is good at the store on Wall street and the firm has opened a retail place at Sawtelle.

The L. A. Evergreen Co. is handling a fine line of brake, in addition to the regular supply of greens and blossoms.

Another orchid house is being erected at the Sawtelle range of Walter Armacost & Co. There will be an exceptionally fine cut of roses for Easter, while Easter lilies will be plentiful. Large shipments of young rose stock are being sent out now.

O. C. Saake reports particularly good business and says that advance orders for Easter are much better than usual.

At the store of Geo. J. Hall & Co. business is good, especially in the shipping department. Mr. Hall has returned from a trip to Bakersfield and Fresno.

F. R. Hills is sending in some choice hybrid orchids from his collection. These are mostly lœliocattleyas.

Fine Dutch irises are being sent to the market by Polder Bros., as well as a good line of bulbous stock.

C. Groen reports the biggest demand he has ever known for young bedding and other plants. H. R. R.

TACOMA, WASH.

Concluding a visit to a number of the principal outlets of the trade, some interesting facts regarding market conditions were noted. The most surprising is that lilies are going to be scarce. With Easter coming late, planting was timed as usual, but the cold, late spring has held the stock back. The Tacoma Wholesale Floral Co. reports that less than eighty per cent of the lilies will be ready on time. The Woodland Park Floral Co. reports between sixty and seventy per cent of its lilies are all it expects. All are pushing them to the limit and a little help from the sun might change the prospect. Prices will be the same as they were last year.

Mr. Kloepper, of the Hayden-Watson Co., reports an abundance of all varieties of stock. Roses never were better, he says; in fact, he pointed to his display with the remark, "Aren't they beauties?" Callas, carnations, tulips, snapdragons, forget-me-nots, sweet peas and violets are of splendid quality.

The Smith Floral Co. reports outside early flowers coming in. This firm's windows are banked high and tastefully arranged; persons in the street jostled one another for a view of the first real touch of spring. Inside all were busy. Noted among the stock were two large containers of Laddie carnations, averaging three and one-half to four inches in diameter. The color was the best yet of any produced here, said Mr. Smith.

The California Florists' shop windows were a sight last week for lovers of flowers, and the abundance and quality of the stock were as noted in other places.

An interesting event of last week was the trip to Seattle of the Tacoma florists' bowling team and rooters. A grand time was enjoyed and the Tacoma team won. The start from Tacoma was made at 1 p. m., as time was wanted to visit several florists en route. The first stop was made at the greenhouses of Stuber & Richardson, at Bryn Mawr. A house of Easter lilies was much admired, being timed just right and of fine quality. The houses of tomatoes and cucumbers were seen and also in fine shape. A stop was made with Mr. Holze, of the Queen City Floral Co. After seeing the sights, all were invited to dinner and a royal one it was. Arriving at Seattle, the visitors were met by the committee and cordially welcomed. The Tacoma team was made up of L. F. Tehunko, captain; Henderson, Burrows, Benthien, Hedman and Tomalin. After the game the hosts escorted all to the Bungalow restaurant and a real banquet was enjoyed. Accompanying the team were A. A. Hintz, Fred Smith, Peter Benthien, Hans Benthien, A. G. Seamons, Frank Chervenka, John Karlik and Mr. Gullburg. A return game will be played in Tacoma soon.

The Market.

Stock continues plentiful and of good quality. The outdoor crop of tulips is especially fine, including Darwin and other varieties. Roses are plentiful, as are carnations. There is plenty of Scotch heather, snapdragons, sweet peas, marigolds, gillyflowers and other spring flowers. Violets are still in their prime. Easter lilies are improving in quality. Cut hyacinths are still coming in, with some freesias, jonquils and other bulbous stock. Blossoms are becoming less plentiful, but flowering peach is much in evidence and some acacia sprays are still in the market. Crab apple blossoms are more plentiful. Iris, both wild and cultivated, is now in the market and pansies are fairly plentiful. Lilies of the valley are now easy to obtain and gardenias are becoming more abundant as Easter approaches. A fair crop of ranunculi is being cut, but anemones are scarce.

Various Notes.

J. A. Axell has the exclusive handling of a cut of baby roses, as well as of some good Dutch iris, ranunculi and anemones. "We are daily handling 100 dozen Laddie carnations," said Mr. Axell. "Some of the Easter lilies are worth special mention." Mr. Axell has been showing some colored freesias from

Various Notes.

The monthly meeting of the Florists' Club was held Tuesday, April 4, and there was a large attendance. It was brought to the attention of the florists that our town is getting much publicity through the naming of a gladiolus Miss Spokane, as well as through the promise of W. Atlee Burpee to name a sweet pea Sunny Spokane.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business has been fair the last two weeks and stock has cleared readily. Carnations are scarce. Callas are plentiful and are of good quality. Indoor daffodils are almost a thing of the past, outdoor kinds taking their place. Darwin tulips are of prime quality. The prospect for Easter lilies is fair. A week of sunshine will bring them around in good shape.

Various Notes.

The Wilson-Crout Gehr Co. is turning out a new price list and is receiving orders for bedding plants, as well as for Easter lilies. The firm is coming in with a fine lot of pelargoniums, ranging from 4-inch to 6-inch.

Clarke Bros. had the decorations at the Waverly golf links, Arlington Club and the Chamber of Commerce for the entertainment of Sir Auckland Geddes, March 27. This firm received the silver trophy of the Chamber of Commerce for its new rose, Imperial Potentate, which it created and named in honor of the Mystic Shrine. This rose was tested out with several other new varieties in the test gardens in the City park, of Portland, and won the high honors.

Seed Trade News

President, L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

REVISION of the duties on seeds and bulbs by the Senate finance committee will be found on a forward page of this issue.

IN purchasing vegetable seed, the most important consideration is the reliability of the seedsman. Except to the trucker or farmer engaged extensively in the growing of a crop for a canning factory, a few cents per pound or even per ounce in the price of vegetable seed is insignificant because of the small quantity required by the average farmer, comments the Department of Agriculture's weekly.

L. D. WALLER, of Guadalupe, Cal., stopped in Chicago last week on his way to Philadelphia. Mr. Waller is optimistic, expecting a good season. Crops in his district, he says, are better than they were last year. More rain has fallen than in the preceding four seasons. The cold weather did not affect the crops around Guadalupe. Sweet pea and other flower seed crops are exceptionally good.

REPORTS to the United States Department of Agriculture indicate that the 1921 crop shipment of sorgo and Sudan grass seed, when completed, will be considerably less than the 1920 crop shipments. In only one important section, southwestern Kansas, do the reports show larger shipments of amber, orange or sumac sorgo for the 1921 crop, notwithstanding the fact that much of the 1920 crop was held on the farm for feeding because of poor demand and low prices for seed.

WARD BID ACCEPTED.

The sale of the personal property of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries which was ordered by the court February 17 was confirmed March 30. The return of sale was made March 13 and set for hearing to be confirmed March 27. On that date the order was postponed until March 30, so as to give more creditors a chance to be present.

Only three bids were received: One of $15,000 from D. S. Ward for all the personal property, one from H. Plath of $300 per thousand for the rooted araucarias and one from the West Coast Nursery of $3,000 for ericas, conifers and broad-leaved evergreens. The bid of David S. Ward was accepted and confirmed, there being no protest made by the creditors present at the hearing.

G. Vanden Abeele is now winding up the receivership. There are no assets left but open book accounts, which he hopes to be able to collect in ninety days.

VEGETABLE SEED ACREAGE.

Larger than Last Year's.

The prospective commercial acreage of vegetable seeds for harvest in 1922 is much larger than the acreage planted in 1921, according to reports received by the United States Department of Agriculture. The aggregate 1921 acreage, however, was the smallest since 1916 and the acreage of most kinds this year will be less than that of 1920 and the three previous years. Among the items for which market increases over last year are reported are: Dwarf snap beans, sixty-five per cent; garden peas, thirty-six per cent; and sweet corn, 126 per cent, as may be noted by referring to the table below. Of the California seed crops, increases of 142 per cent for carrot, ninety-four per cent for lettuce, fifteen per cent for parsnip, twenty-eight per cent for radish and 400 per cent for salsify are indicated, while onion seed is practically the same and parsley twenty-five per cent less.

The acreage of muskmelon seed probably will be slightly smaller and of watermelon somewhat larger than last year, and present indications are that the acreage of cucumber will be the largest since 1917. The tomato seed acreage may total 3,600 acres, which is about equal to the 5-year average, 1917 to 1921.

A substantial increase is reported in the acreage of cabbage seed both on Long Island and in the Puget Sound district. In the latter district much of the acreage of this crop, as well as of turnip and rutabaga, is reported a failure.

Because many beet sugar manufacturers have discontinued growing sugar-beet seed and others have curtailed their seed-growing operations, the acreage of this seed crop for harvest in 1922 is expected to be only about 1,480 acres, compared with 3,699 in 1921 and an average of 7,000 acres for the five years, 1916 to 1920.

Comparative Figures.

In the compilation of the foregoing data and the 1922 figures in the table below, reports of individual growing operations were submitted by growers who normally control approximately eighty-five per cent of the aggregate commercial acreage. A comparison was made of the 1922 acreage of each crop reported by these growers with their 1921 acreage and the prospective acreage of growers controlling the remaining fifteen per cent was estimated on the basis of this comparison and on miscellaneous current data, and the estimates are included in the figures given.

The department's figures on commercial acreage of vegetable seeds are as follows:

ACCEPTING ORDERS.

A memorandum in the form of an order for goods does not become a binding contract of sale merely because signed by the salesman and because he may be empowered to enter into a binding contract of sale, holds the United States District court for the eastern district of Pennsylvania in the case of C. F. Bally, Ltd., vs. Quaker City Corporation, 271 Federal Reporter, 957.

Plaintiff, suing as for breach of a contract to sell goods, relied on a paper designated on its face as a "sales order," and signed by one Hunneman as "salesman." In dismissing the suit the court declares:

"It cannot be said that the order was accepted because Hunneman had authority to bind the defendant. There is nothing on the paper, or in the evidence, to show that when he signed the paper he was exercising that authority. He signed as 'salesman.'

"The paper on its face is a mere order, which, in the absence of acceptance, does not constitute a contract. There are many cases holding that a memorandum to the effect that some commodity has been 'sold' to a purchaser, signed by one authorized to sign it, constitutes a contract of sale; also many cases where, upon an order being given and there being circumstances indicating acceptance by the vendor, it is held upon acceptance the contract is complete, and either party may sue thereon.

"I fail to discover among the authorities cited any well-reasoned case in which a paper such as the one in question has been held to be a contract. The common law is the result of a development in which custom and practice among merchants play an important part. It may be that in time authorities carrying weight will determine that, when one acting as a salesman and having authority to accept an order, signs it as a salesman, a binding contract has been entered into between the parties.

"I must decline, however, to take such advanced ground, unsustained by authority, inconsistent with settled ideas of what constitutes a contract, and with the probability of establishing a dangerous doctrine, by which merchants sending out drummers to take orders will be trapped into incur-

MOTT-LY GLEANINGS.

"One would think, with the vast amount of free literature circulated during the winter, the public would be well informed on the planting and care of gardens. Yet, no sooner does the season open than the seedsman finds himself transformed to a portable bureau of information, so to speak," observed Ernest Chamberlain, manager of the Lohrmann Seed Co., Detroit, Mich. The new store has already proved itself an advance upon the old. It is more attractive and commodious, and, while the season is rather late, counter sales are heavier than they were at this time last year.

W. T. Phillips, of W. T. Phillips & Co., Toledo, O., notes with regret that many farmers are looking for cheap rather than pure seed. He adds, however, that the loss of such patronage is offset by the increased purchases of customers willing to pay a fair price for reliable stock.

S. Bash, of Bash's Seed Store, Indianapolis, Ind., is well pleased with the results obtained with the booth which this firm maintained at the show. Information was dispensed free at this stand and packet seeds sold in large numbers.

The staff of Fagan's Seed Store, Indianapolis, Ind., was too busy and too short-handed to make a display at the show, so this firm arranged an attractive and seasonable home exhibit.

The Warren Seed Co., Indianapolis, was also in the "would have been had it been possible" class. The stronghold of this firm is the country trade in farm seeds of the highest quality.

The bulb and poultry supply sales this season of the Pershing Seed Store, Muncie, Ind., are going ahead of all previous established records.

"Fine business," observed Manager Rotherham, of Wood & Co., East Cleveland, O., referring to the seed and planting sales now in full rush, promising to be the best for several seasons past.

Johnson's Seed Store, Cleveland, reported everything in full swing. "Seed time and harvest shall not fail," observed the hustling scion of the house; "we are now getting both."

The A. C. Kendel Seed Store, Cleveland, finds the new location helpful to handling shipping trade. An enormous business in the handling of young chicks has been worked up. Manager Bailey mentioned the expert handling by a young lady who can spot at sight any bird of the ten varieties, an art in itself.

Walter E. Cook, of Walter E. Cook, Inc., Cleveland, O., in arranging a window display of grass seed called attention to the firm's special brands, which meet with large sale—Sunny Spot mixture, Golf mixture for hard knocks, and Shady mixture. Secretary James Fraser observed it was suggestive of types of the average purchaser.

The Harvey Seed Co., Buffalo, N. Y., is in the throes of a rushing counter and shipping seed business, consequent upon the late season.

O. W. Clark & Son, Buffalo, report an unusual trade with commuters, indicating a return to pre-war small garden conditions.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

REVISION of the duties on nursery stock by the Senate finance committee will be found on a forward page of this issue.

SOME interesting notes about Paul C. Lindley, vice-president of the American Association of Nurserymen, and of the companies which he directs, will be found on a forward page of this issue.

EACH year nursery firms note a large number of respectable orders for florists. But they are not nearly so numerous as they would be if more in the trade saw the opportunities for profit in a side-line of planting home grounds in spring and fall.

THE business formerly operated under the name of George F. Verhalen, at Scottsville, Tex., is now the Verhalen Nursery Co. S. J. Verhalen is general manager, George F. Verhalen is secretary-treasurer, and R. P. Verhalen, superintendent.

To further the "Plan to Plant Another Tree" campaign, J. A. Young, of Aurora, secretary of the Illinois State Florists' Association, is furnishing a column of arboricultural information for newspapers of the state one day a week. The value of the material makes it welcomed by the editors.

JOHN C. WISTER, president of the American Iris Society and secretary of the American Rose Society, expects to sail for Europe in May to represent the American Iris Society at the international iris conference, in Paris. During his trip he will visit Switzerland, Italy, Holland and England, to secure material for a new lecture on European gardens, which will be illustrated with views of public and private gardens in these countries. Mr. Wister plans to make tours during the coming fall and winter, giving several different lectures.

QUARANTINE NO. 54.

The Department of Agriculture of the United States has given notice that because of the prevalence of the white pine blister rust (Cronartium ribicola Fischer), no 5-leaved pines—white pine, western white or silver pine, sugar pine, limber pine, white-bark pine, bristlecone pine, fox tail pine, Mexican white pine, Swiss stone pine, Himalayan or Bhotan pine, Korean pine, Japanese white pine, Chinese white pine, Balkan pine—and no currant or gooseberry plants shall be moved or allowed to be moved interstate from the state of Washington, unless the establishment and enforcement by the state of Washington of control measures in coöperation with the United States Department of Agriculture shall be deemed adequate to effect the control and prevent the spread of the white pine blister rust with respect to the following counties lying west of the crest of the Cascade mountains, designated as a white pine blister rust infected area: Clallam, Clarke, Cowlitz, Grays Harbor, Island, Jefferson, King, Kitsap, Lewis, Mason, Pacific, Pierce, San Juan, Skagit, Skamania, Snohomish, Thurston, Wah-kiakum and Whatcom. The quarantine, known as No. 54, became effective March 15, 1922.

In case such control measures shall be so established and enforced by the state as to the infected area, the restrictions of the quarantine shall be limited to the interstate movement of the pines and currant and gooseberry plants from the area designated as infected.

PAINESVILLE, O.

Edwin H. Hawley has sent out over 1,000 invitations for Easter to his friends and customers in the form of a blotter, which, by the way, is a unique way of advertising locally.

W. B. Cole is having the busiest spring season trade in years. The transient trade is exceptionally heavy.

Andrew Wetzel, of J. L. Wetzel & Son, is building a beautiful new residence on the west side.

Competition in the nursery business in this locality seems to stimulate activity and progress. The demand in this particular line has always been more than the supply. If it were not for competition, many would have slumped long ago.

The demand for delphiniums has been heavy this year and also for Funkia undulata variegata. Both of these are used extensively by florists and are coming more into favor every year.

T. J. M.

FUTURE OF ORCHARDING.

Marshall Makes Nation-Wide Survey.

My experience in orcharding has been confined to the Missouri river section, and this territory is probably not more favorably situated, with reference to natural advantages for successful orcharding, than is most of the territory covered by the membership of this association. Government statistics show that during the period between 1910 and 1920 the number of bearing apple trees in the territory mentioned decreased

Part of the address of C. G. Marshall, secretary of the Arlington Nurseries, Arlington, Neb., delivered before the Western Association of Nurserymen at Kansas City.

Important Items in Choice Dormant Nursery Stock

In our new and modern storage we have one of the best assortments of trees, small fruits, hedges, shrubs and roses in the country and shall be able to fill large or small orders until the end of the shipping season. If you are not on our mailing list, send for our trade list at once. Wire for any of these items and shipment will be made same day in all cases.

almost one-half. They also show that planting during this period was much less than during the preceding ten years, so that there is now a considerably smaller number of orchard trees, both bearing and non-bearing, than there was ten years ago.

Authorities seem to agree that the northwest has now reached its peak of apple production. There has been less planting in the northwest during the last ten years than during the previous 10-year period, and when the trees that are now bearing their maximum crops begin to die off, there will be a smaller number of trees coming on to take their places.

ern Kansas, commercial orchard planting has been almost at a standstill for the last ten or fifteen years. Few young trees are coming into bearing in this territory.

New York, which normally has produced almost one-fourth of the apple crop of the United States, has not planted as many apple trees in the last ten or twenty years as during the ten to twenty years just previous.

The Shenandoah-Cumberland and Piedmont districts of Pennsylvania, Maryland and the Virginias have come into prominence in recent years, and we may expect an increase in production from this territory for some years to come.

Orchard sections of the great central west, which include the Ozark and southern Missouri regions, which a few years ago had millions of bearing trees, are not keeping up their former rate of planting.

Colorado, New Mexico, Idaho and Utah have barely held their own in commercial planting in recent years, and this territory has probably nearly reached its period of maximum production.

Statistics show that the states of Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and Kentucky have a considerable less number of apple trees of bearing age and, in fact, all ages, than they had ten to twenty years ago. In some sections of this territory there has been considerable commercial planting, but this has not been general and the total number of trees in this great territory is now only slightly more than one-half of what it was in 1910. So, after summing up the condition of orchards in all parts of the country, I can see no reason why the wide-awake apple grower of the great central west should not be successful.

Absorbing Surplus Produced.

There are possibilities of developing foreign markets for a great many more of our apples than we have been exporting. European markets, as well as the orient and South America, furnish tremendous possibilities as consumers of the American apple. Before the war we exported about 2,000,000 barrels annually. Direct shipments to South America began in 1910 and in four years the shipments to this continent increased about 400 per cent. These factors for increasing our markets are likely to prevent any overproduction for years to come. The lack of planting since 1910 is apt to cause an actual shortage in the near future.

Are the nurserymen of this territory doing what they should to encourage orchard planting? True, we are sending our catalogues and our representatives to the home owners in all parts of the country. We have not, however, shown enough interest in the spreading of commercial orchard planting doctrines, and I believe it is up to the nurserymen of this association to get more information before the people, that will interest them in this industry. I believe we should have a slogan that is suggestive to every reader. The greater part of the orders received, especially by salesmen, are obtained by the use of this idea: "There's a place for more trees and shrubs." It is a challenge to the country, community and individual; to the commercial or home orchard prospect, and even to the man who needs a few trees to fill in. Suppose we all used this as a slogan. The "follow-up" is to suggest the place and what to plant there. "I haven't

GLOEDE CONSERVATORIES, EVANSTON, ILLINOIS

America, the middle west, your community, the prospect's place.

It seems to me that we can say considerably more than we usually do in our catalogues about commercial orcharding. A half-page or a page in the catalogue pointing out what can be done, giving some definite figures showing what has been accomplished in certain sections of the territory, will help materially to encourage people to plant such orchards. Nurserymen who sell through agents can also keep these agents posted and give them good information on the profits of orcharding in the sections in which they are working. There are always plenty of good data to be had, and if we will simply get these data together and put them in shape so that the agents can use them; if these agents are sent circular letters or bulletins occasionally, giving some real figures on what has been accomplished and what might be done, undoubtedly they will use such information to good advantage.

The nurseryman should advise himself as to the best and most up-to-date orchard practices. He should know varieties, so that he can at least identify the principal ones. He should be able to advise intelligently as to the most profitable varieties for each part of his territory. He should also be in a position to advise relative to cultivation, pruning and spraying, and if he sells through agents he should pass such information on to them so far as possible and practical. Such information should point out the requirements for success, and it should help to combat the gossip and misunderstanding of those who say, "It doesn't pay to plant orchards."

The central west also contains a number of large cities that receive and distribute a great bulk of the apple production of the United States. It is hardly more than 500 or 600 miles from any of this territory to Minneapolis, Chicago, Indianapolis or Pittsburgh.

Legislation and Legal Decisions

PORTABLE STAND AS NUISANCE.

Gives Reason to Sue.

Where a portable flower stand is so conducted on a street or highway as to constitute a nuisance to an abutting property owner, the latter has a standing in court to sue to restrain its continued maintenance, holds the California District Court of Appeal in the recent case of Cypress Lawn Cemetery Association vs. Lievre et al., 203 Pacific Reporter, 150.

The opinion affirms a judgment of a lower court, restraining defendants from conducting a portable flower stand near the entrance to plaintiff's cemetery at Redwood City, Cal. It is to be inferred that plaintiff and the defendants were competitors in the sale of flowers to patrons of the cemetery, but this circumstance is given no weight in the decision. The decision rests squarely on the proposition that defendants so conducted their business as unreasonably to interfere with access of the public to the cemetery grounds. And the reasoning would manifestly apply to a situation where a florist having an established location abutting upon a street should be aggrieved by the act of some ambulant florist or other street vender in taking up a location in a street in such way as to interfere with access to and from the floral store. The opinion of the court is as follows:

Court's Opinion.

"The plaintiff brought this action to enjoin the defendants from maintaining, along the state highway in front of and adjacent to its cemetery in San Mateo county, portable stands for the sale of flowers and floral decorations, and from obstructing the entrances to the cemetery grounds. The lower court determined that the maintenance of these stands and the selling of flowers therefrom created a nuisance by interrupting traffic and interfering with plaintiff's ingress and egress, and with the passage of its patrons to and from the highway, and in and out of the cemetery. It granted a perpetual injunction, from which judgment the defendants appeal.

"The respondent owns land on both sides of the Mission road, a public highway in San Mateo county, for a distance of some 2,500 feet. Part of it is occupied as a cemetery, which extends far back on both sides of the road. On a portion of the property adjacent to the highway, and about 100 feet from it, respondent erected a building containing its business offices and a flower store, which was conducted in the premises. It has constructed and maintained an entrance in front of this building from the highway, which connects with and joins the main entrance to the cemetery, which, in turn, is the main and only public entrance to the cemetery on both sides of the roadway.

Conditions of the Case.

"Until and prior to about six months before the filing of this action the appellant, Marie Lievre, had for a period of seventeen years maintained a movable flower stand on the side of the highway at a point directly in front of the present location of the recently erected office building. When that structure was completed Mrs. Lievre was ordered away from that point. She thereupon moved her stand to a point on the roadway about nine feet away from the northerly entrance to that structure, where she continued to maintain her stand for the sale of flowers. The lower court found that the appellants, who, it appears, are all members of one family, on each morning placed on the sidewalk of the public highway, immediately in front of the cemetery of respondent, and in close proximity to the entrance thereto, large portable stands with projecting shelves, large and unsightly boxes and baskets in which were great quantities of greens, ferns, cut flowers, wreaths, wire holders, and other like materials, and also brought bottles, tin tubs, glass and crockery, jars and other like receptacles, which they filled with water, and from which from time to time they splashed water upon their wares and upon the highway, causing the road to become slippery, dangerous, and unsafe for pedestrians, and that the selling of the flowers by the appellants from their stands created a nuisance, by causing the stopping of automobiles, interrupting traffic and interfering with the plaintiff's ingress and egress, and with the passage of its patrons to and from the highway and in and out of the cemetery, to such an extent at times that funeral processions cannot enter the main entrance or driveway to the cemetery, but are obliged to use another roadway, and that the action of the appellants prevents plaintiff from carrying on its business of burying the dead with proper regulation, and from having unobstructed use of its premises.

Further Argument

"It was further found that the appellants throw large quantities of greens, withered plants and flowers upon the highway in front of the entrance, and make and cause great noise and confusion in and about the place, and impede, obstruct, annoy and frequently insult persons who enter the grounds.

"On the foregoing complete and comprehensive findings, which are amply supported by the evidence, the trial court rested its judgment. We think its conclusion was correct. The acts of the appellants, while partaking of the nature of a public nuisance, undoubtedly inflict upon the respondent a peculiar injury, different in kind, and not merely in degree, from that suffered by the general public. Under such circumstances the party thus injured may maintain an action for the abatement of the nuisance." S.

"Not to be taken away," observed De Forest Weeks, of Tong & Weeks Floral Co., Ashtabula, O., referring to the Easter number of The Review, which arrived in time to get the latest items touching that busy season. De Forest Weeks, Jr., is a promising addition to this flourishing concern. Mrs. Weeks is a silent partner. Herbert Tong is past taking an active part, to the regret of his numerous friends.

George F. Hartung, Sandusky, O., points with pride to two houses constructed by him with material, including a boiler, from Chicago concerns which had razed their places to build larger houses.

Leo Wagner, Sandusky, O., made a fine showing at Easter. The handsome store was featured with some of the newest conceits seen when at the Indianapolis flower show.

The windows of W. J. Palmer & Son and S. A. Anderson, Buffalo, N. Y., were beautifully decorated Palm Sunday. Invitations to the floral display at the greenhouses were freely given and taken advantage of by a big afternoon crowd that visited the city places of L. H. Neubeck, William Scott Co., S. A. Anderson and the W. J. Palmer & Son range, at Lancaster, where W. J. Palmer,

He Handed Me One

Last Friday, in blew Harold Chumley Harrison, of Los Angeles, one of the Movie Men who telegraphs us a lot of orders for delivery to the feminine stars.

We went across to the Plaza to lunch and before realizing it, I was kind of telling him some of my imagined worries.

He's just the kind of fellow who kind of invites such confidences.

Of a sudden he pulled out his card case, selected a clipping and handed it to me.

This is what it said:

"You know the trouble with most of us, is really no trouble at all. It's just what we think something may be, when it isn't at all.

"Oh, the worries we have, and the tears we shed, and the sunshine that is past recall, just because we think a thing might be, what it really isn't at all."

Of course, I promptly got over on the sunny side of the street and thanked him heartily for his help hint.

Reckon if most of us would do more doing, and less fussing, our cash registers would do more merry ringing.

assisted by Manager Barney Myers, received. Judging from the admiration expressed at the fine stocks of hydrangeas, rambler roses, bougainvilleas and bulbous plants at the several places, Easter will be found as popular as ever.

Dann & Son, Westfield, N. Y., held their usual pre-Easter show Palm Sunday. Stock is fully up to the usual high standard and prospects for a thorough clean-up at Easter are bright.

Robert Rahaley, manager of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, Detroit, Mich., returning from the usual pre-Easter tour among both growers and retailers, gave the members the benefit of his experience at the meeting of the Detroit Florists' Club April 4. It was gathered from Mr. Rahaley's remarks that the general outlook is encouraging, favorable weather being the only important factor required. The atmosphere at the meeting was optimistic.

"The planting season is at its height, never busier," observed Edward George, of the Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O., who was caught on the fly, so to speak—now here, now there.

One of the sights at the houses of the Flick Floral Co., Fort Wayne, Ind., is a crop of snapdragons of a fine strain. "Best we ever had and one which will materially help to swell our coffers at Easter. These are right in line with a heavy crop of roses, Columbia and Premier," observed Manager Aaron Shrive. "A delightful trip," remarked F. R. Williams, manager of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co., referring to the visit to Indianapolis made by a party of four by automobile. "The boys deserve the fullest amount of credit and nothing but praise, for it was the best show ever given at such short notice."

The visit to Richmond was full of interest, also that to Newcastle, where at the Dittman place the one-time favorite rose, Bride, was seen in fine shape. Our worthy conferees claim it is the best white yet. Easter prospects, both in cut flowers and plants, are good. Large volume in sales, while not in profits, is predicted.

"Our Easter offering," commented James MacLaughlin, the hustling president of the Cleveland Florists' Club, referring to the addition of eighty-eight new members, whose names he secured and who were elected at the last meeting. Mr. MacLaughlin intends to land an even 100 before he gives up office six months hence, being fully persuaded that this is the most practical move for strengthening the hands of the parent society. Touching on the Easter outlook, big business is in sight for the Cleveland-McCallum Co.

"When one pictures the crowds going out so far in the rain," observed Adam Graham III, referring to the Indianapolis show, "it sets one thinking. Here in Cleveland the show must be centrally located to draw the crowd. Our fellow craftsmen at Indianapolis must have the public well educated and deserve our encomiums." Adam Graham II was prevented from attending by an attack of the "flu," from which he is gradually recovering. Adam Graham I is sojourning in Bermuda, accompanied by his two daughters.

The St. Louis Flower Growers' Publicity Association called a meeting for April 4, at publicity headquarters. All growers paying their one per cent into the fund and wholesalers are members of this association. The election of officers and a new board of nine directors was postponed until next month. The directors held a meeting. In the absence of Chairman Bourdet and Vice-chairman Pilcher, W. A. Rowe presided. The financial report showed plenty of funds on hand for Easter advertising, and all outstanding bills were ordered paid. W. A. Ferree, advertising manager of the association, reported that the retailers had responded to the call and that the St. Louis Star, the St. Louis Times and the Globe Democrat had each secured a page of advertising from the retailers. The association's placing of advertisements likewise was fully discussed. A motion prevailed that the association take a page in each of the three papers. This will give a double page in each paper April 18, 20 and 22, at a cost of about $2,000. Mothers' day was also fully discussed and plans will that $1,200 had been received from this call. The premium committee reported that the preliminary list had been issued and mailed to all prominent growers by the secretary. Other committees made short reports of the workings of the committees. The next meeting of this committee will be called May 1.

President George H. Pring, of the St. Louis Gardeners' Association, says the feature of the meeting April 5 was the illustrated talk by Frederick Mueller on "School Gardening." This gave the members a good idea of what is being done at the various public schools throughout the city. The meeting was held at the municipal greenhouses, in Forest park, and was well attended.

Louis Florists' Club was held April 6, at Trustee Ruff's home. The next meeting is to be held April 13 at the place of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. An interesting program is planned.

Arbor day was made memorial to the men who died in the world war. A court of honor of trees on King's highway was planted by the city park department and the American Legion. The total number of trees was 1,000.

Charles and Herman Johann, of Collinsville, Ill., were visitors last week. Charles attends to the growing end of the business and Herman attends to the retail store. Both are well pleased with the season's business.

George Kirchner, manager for H. G. Berning, says that notwithstanding the greatly increased consignments in roses, sweet peas and bulbous stock, all moved exceptionally well all last week. Heavy shipping orders have been booked for the present week.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle spent a most pleasant afternoon April 5, at the home of Mrs. J. J. Beneke. The members will be entertained May 9 by Mrs. E. E. Windler.

The new Melbourne hotel, which is to be completed May 1, will have a florists' establishment on the Grand avenue side, the firm to be known as the Melbourne Floral Co. Mr. Lancher, who will be a member of the company, says that the business will be opened May 1.

At the bowling matches April 5 the Roses, Daisies and Carnations were the winners, each winning two of the three

Easter stock was brought along rapidly last week. Each day several hours of sunshine have been recorded and the rains have held off well. There will be plenty of stock and the greater part of it will be of good quality. It was feared that lilies would be scarce, but a good quantity is available. Calla lilies are reaching us in fair quantities and there is a good demand for them. Roses have stiffened in price. Sweet peas are particularly good and are available in various grades. Violets are not as good as could be wished, but, considering the lateness of the season, they are presentable. Orchids are Carnations are not cropped heavily, but there will be a good supply from now on. Bachelor's buttons, yellow daisies, marguerites, forget-me-nots and calendulas are reaching us in larger supply. Thousands of jonquils reach us daily and sell well. In potted stock there are ramblers, deutzias, primroses, giganteums, begonias, genistas and cinerarias.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

This market is well supplied with lilies for Easter and, unless weather conditions change, all stock will be plentiful. Lilies will sell at wholesale for 25 cents a bloom. There will be some for 20 cents each. There will be no advance in the price of any stock unless, as stated, unfavorable weather should shorten blooms. The last week has been cloudy and rainy. One day was bright, with a temperature of 81 degrees. The cloudy weather has spoiled some of the sweet peas. The heat made roses a little soft. There was a good demand for stock the first part of last week. The last two days were not so active and there was a surplus of roses, carnations and sweet peas. The retail stores have beautiful displays to encourage early orders for Easter. Already many orders have been booked and will be delivered before Saturday, April 15.

The Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co. will handle pot lilies and hydrangeas for Easter. More than 2,000 lilies have been shipped so far on orders and the plant business in general has been good with this company all the month. Cut lilies will also be sold.

In a long-distance telephone conversation with T. J. Noll Saturday, April 8, William Hasselman, of Independence, Kan., said that his greenhouses were

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. had a special sale Saturday, April 8, on baskets of cut flowers at $1.25 each. They were regular $2.50 baskets. J. E. K.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.

The Market.

As Easter approaches, sales show considerable increase, especially in the pot plant line. However, cut flowers are cleaning up well and nothing is going to waste. Roses are in fairly good supply, but cloudy and stormy weather is holding the cut down considerably.

Rose prices for Easter this year will range from $8 to $20 per hundred, about twenty per cent lower than those of last year. Carnations will be scarce at $6 and $8 per hundred. On account of the extremely hard winter and late spring, the big crops have not begun to come on. Darwin tulips at $10 per hundred and daffodils at $6 per hundred will be plentiful. Sweet peas have been benefited by the cool weather and a good cut of these for Easter is looked for.

Pot plant growers, as a whole, have a larger and better supply of pot plants than have been offered for a number of years. The supply of lilies will not be large enough to take care of the demand; all growers have already booked orders for all they have. Aside from the lilies, spiræas, hydrangeas, ramblers, pelargoniums, potted lilies of the valley and miscellaneous bulbous stock constitute the majority of the offerings.

Various Notes.

Bertha L. Atkins, proprietor of the Atkins Florist Shop, at Pocatello, Ida., is a Salt Lake visitor at the present time. This firm enjoyed exceptionally good business last month.

Reuel Steed, of the plant department, and Tom Hughes, of the sales force of the Miller Floral Co., at Farmington, passed the cigars around Monday, April 10. Tom's is a boy, while Reuel's is of the gentle sex. This firm says it is entirely sold out on lilies, baby roses and hydrangeas. The concern expects the best Easter business ever.

The Miller Floral Co., on Broadway, has put in its Easter window. This firm is noted for its wonderful window displays, and the one this year is no exception. Mrs. Huff, who takes care of the window, is to be complimented on her artistic arrangements. Robert Miller, of the firm, returned from the east Sunday, April 9. While there, he vis-

last week, but towards the end we had a few real summer days; the exceedingly warm weather has made it extremely hard for the growers to hold back their stock. If this continues, there will hardly be enough stock to go around. It looks as though corsage stock will be extremely scarce; sweet peas, especially. From all indications, this will be a big Easter.

store of Daniel T. McCarthy displayed attractive windows, but particularly, beautiful was the window of the Lewis Flower Shop. The idea was symbolic of home. The center of the window was occupied by a miniature thatched house, surrounded by a lawn, made of moss. A driveway, flanked by two white entrance posts, with tiny lights on them, cut through the yard. A bed of spring flowers, a hedge of Chatelaine begonias and a small pool, overhung by ferns, put the finishing touches on the scene. In the evening a miniature moon hung just above the house. Altogether the arrangement was well done and gained favorable comment from the public.

BALTIMORE, MD.

Needed, Cooperation!

The following paragraph appeared in one of our local papers last week and explains fairly well the condition of the pre-Easter market. But I wonder if it is not a mistake to have such an article appear in an evening paper just one week before Easter. What will the flower buying public think when they inquire about the Easter prices? Will they think they are being fooled and that the florist is taking advantage of the holiday season? Would not local cooperative publicity solve the above problem?

FLOWERS ON MARKET ARE MANY AND CHEAP—ROSES, SWEET PEAS AND CALLA LILIES HAVE NOW APPEARED.

Flowers in abundance and cheaper than for many years are now on the market. Florists are prepared to carry the breath of spring into every home where such things are appreciated. Roses are here from $1.50 to $3 a dozen. Carnations about the same price. Sweet peas are selling at $2 per hundred. Callas are selling at from $1.50 to $4 and $5 a dozen and the Easter lilies about the same. Orchids can be had for 75 cents up to $3, $4 and $5. Lilies in pot are bringing from 25 cents to 50 cents each.

Various Notes.

All florists are preparing for the Easter rush. The retail stores have already taken on a real Easter aspect. And all are hoping for the best Easter in many years.

SULPHUR CAUSES BURNS.

Please examine the specimens of geranium, fuchsia, Martha Washington and rose leaves which I am sending you, and determine, if possible, the cause of the burns on them. My greenhouse is situated within two miles of a lead smelter and it may be that the acid in the fumes arising from the smelter are having an ill effect upon my plants. This trouble does not show itself during the winter, but as soon as I open the ventilators and the wind is from the direction of the smelter, the leaves show signs of having been burned. The plants look strong and healthy, but the leaves burn and fall off. K. F.—Idaho.

about thirty-five days before coming through the ground and the temperature averages between 55 and 60 degrees. They have been given a little air at night and a temperature of 50 degrees since we noticed that they were falling. Kindly advise us regarding the probable cause. About when should these bloom? Most of them are starting a third leaf. S. B.—Ill.

I think the most probable cause of your Halley acting as indicated is a too high temperature, with insufficient ventilation in the early stages of growth. A temperature of 48 to 50 degrees at night will suit the gladioli much better and, by giving plenty of ventilation, you are likely to avoid any further trouble. Your plants should flower about the end of May.

JAPANESE LILIES.

We know nothing whatever about the growing of Japanese lily bulbs and shall be grateful for any information as to climate and soil conditions best suited to these bulbs. When is the best time to plant in the field? What is the best size of planting stock? We have been interested for some time in these. Lilium candidum does finely here. We have about two acres of Paper Whites, different daffodils and Godfrey callas at present. H. E. C.—Cal.

I am not sure which of the Japanese lilies you have in mind, but in your splendid climate it should be possible to grow any of them. If candidum succeeds well, there is no reason why the various forms of speciosum should not do equally well. Probably you might succeed with longiflorum, giganteum and formosum grown from seed and the new, magnificent regale, Sargentiae Willmottiae and others should be equally happy in your salubrious climate.

About all the lilies named succeed well in loam and the ideal kind is a medium loam, containing considerable sand. Seedlings of the various lilies should start well outdoors with you. In colder states we find it necessary to start them under glass. Speciosum makes numerous small bulbs on the sides of the flower stalks, which can all be used for propagation. A dark, muck-like soil, with sand, suits most of the lilies. One thing which must be religiously avoided is fresh animal manure; I have seen fine blocks of hardy lilliums ruined by its use. If you do use manure, let it be well decayed and it is better used as a mulch than incorporated with the soil when the bulbs are planted. Between propagation of lilies from scales, small bulblets and seeds there would seem to be a fine opening for you. Let me say that Florida Liliun longiflorum, grown outdoors from seed, forces and flowers splendidly and there is no earthly reason why your state should not produce equally good or even better ones. C. W.

ANNUAL STATICE.

Will you please tell me how to grow annual statice? Should it be started in the greenhouse or planted in the garden where it is to be grown? What is the best way to grow everlastings? I am trying all the varieties of these that I can find this year. Do they all require the same treatment. H. C.—Ore.

Statice are really everlastings and can be started in a greenhouse or hotbed and planted out, or sown outdoors in shallow drills. In your state the latter plan should answer well. Statice sinuata hybrida, Bonduellii and Suworowii are all good; the last-named also makes a fine pot plant for winter or spring flowering, if sown late. Plants sown last July flowered well for Christmas; others sown in late September are fast coming into bloom.

The other everlastings will all flower earlier and more profusely if started under glass, but careful sowing outdoors usually gives excellent results. While helichrysums and globe amaranths, or gomphrenas, are the varieties chiefly grown commercially, the delicate rhodanthes are charming, while

PLANTS FOR FLOWER BEDS.

How many geraniums, with a border of dusty miller or coleus, will be needed to make a 12-foot bed? What would make a better star than the plants mentioned?

How many oriental poppies will be required for a 12-foot star?

How many white geraniums will be needed for a Greek cross? If I border it with dusty miller, how many will it take?

We also intend to make a 12-foot shield. What would be a good flower to use?
F. & F.—Wis.

For a circular bed of geraniums twelve feet in diameter, use 125 plants and fifty-four for a border. Scarlet geraniums, bordered with Mme. Salleroy, would look well, but my preference would be a bed of one solid color, to be really effective. Plants numbering 150 of scarlet would give you a fine bed, using Ricard or Nutt. For salmon nothing beats Poitevine.

Oriental poppies would be of little value for a star or any kind of flower bed. It takes a year to establish them.
They flower in late May, for a week or two, and later the foliage dies away completely. They would be valueless for your purpose. For continuous bloom, why not plant one bed with white vincas and the other with rose vincas?
If you want something scarlet, use a dwarf form of Salvia splendens, planted twelve inches apart. Plant vincas eight inches apart each way.

You do not state the size of the Greek cross desired. White geraniums would need no bordering of other material.
Plant nine inches apart each way, to get a good, solid bed. Jean Viaud is suggested as another fine geranium to use. I would prefer not to use the cen-

Stock of all kinds was plentiful last week, with the exception of carnations. The demand for the latter far exceeded the supply. Growers are looking for a shortage of carnations during the Easter period.

Plenty of bulbous stock, such as daffodils, tulips, etc., is coming into the market.

Roses are arriving in good condition. Sweet peas are arriving in large quantities, but are short-stemmed. Easter and calla lilies are in demand. Yellow daisies, calendulas and valley are in taurea (dusty miller) for a border. If you want something taller and at the same time free-flowering, try a canna like Crimson Bedder.

For a shield of the size named, suggested combinations are 125 Geranium Mme. Barney, bordered with white alyssum, six inches apart; pink lantanas, planted eight inches apart, and also edged with double white alyssum; Petunia Balcony Blue, dotted with a few standards of white lantanas; white petunias, dotted with a few standard blue heliotropes, or, if you want a glaring shield, try Salvia Bonfire, bordered with Vinca alba. constant demand. Orchids are scarce.
Business in general has been pretty good.

Various Notes.

The monthly meeting of the Retail Florists' Association was held Thursday evening, April 6, at the Chatham hotel. The meeting was well attended, and the talk of E. C. Tipton on the "Management of the Retail Flower Store in the Rush Season" was profitable. The talk given by H. W. Breitenstein, of the McClements Co., on "Color," was instructive.

Mr. Rosenfelt, of Wertheimer Bros., New York, and Mr. Strauss, of Lion & Co., New York, were visitors in Pittsburgh last week. H. J. H.

REGARDING FIRE INSURANCE.

Persons conducting unincorporated floral or seed businesses and carrying fire insurance on their stocks, etc., are apt to find that their policies contain a clause to the effect that if any change other than by death of the insured takes place in the interest, title or possession of the subject of insurance the policy shall become void.

To guard against invalidity arising under this clause, insurance companies should be promptly advised of changes in ownership, etc. This is a specially important suggestion from the standpoint of the purchaser of an established business, for insurance is void as against such persons unless properly transferred on the books of the insurance company from the seller of the business, who took out the policy, to his successor.

But the Indiana Appellate court holds in the case of Shepherd vs. the German-American Insurance Co., 126 Northeastern Reporter, 447, that such a clause as they believe that anything retailing under $3 will sell rapidly. Potted hydrangeas are in larger supply and their quality is good. There is a heavier showing of primroses and the colored tulips continue in popular favor. There are a few cyclamens in the market, but their best season is over, while hyacinths are not selling heavily. Ferns are selling steadily, and those shops located in the residence sections of the city note good sales of fern balls for porch hangings.

Florists handling gladiolus and dahlia bulbs have been making some fine displays, although it is noted that buyers are showing a preference for the brighter shades of both flowers. There is no real activity in bedding stock, but growers have been preparing for a good season and have considerable stock ready for shipment.

The cut of roses shows some increase. Orchids are still scarce and violets clean up easily. There is a larger demand for short-stemmed roses than can be conveniently supplied, as corsages have been among the heavy sellers of late. The other spring flowers are plentiful, and sell fairly well.

Various Notes.

Harry Crouch, of the Woodlawn Flower Shop, spent the early part of last week in Victoria, being a delegate from the local club to the northwestern convention of International Rotary Clubs. Thomas Luke, of Smith's Flower Shop, Portland, was another florist expected to attend this session.

McCoy's have taken over the store room adjoining that section of the Rainier building occupied by their flower shop during the foregoing year and one-half and this firm has enlarged its quarters. This gives the store two fine show windows, in which a display of roses was featured last week. A heavier cut of carnations is noted at the greenhouses.

An Easter window, developed by the Woodlawn Flower Shop, attracted general attention. A box in the shape of an egg was placed upon a raised platform in the center of the window and was arranged as a brooder room for a group of fluffy, baby chicks. The opening of the box was jagged in order to make it resemble a crack in the egg shell. A portion of the display space was arranged for the chicks to run in and various suggestions on how to use flowers effectively as Easter gifts were made. This window has already secured advance orders. The card calling attenhurst Floral Shop has been noted. The good weather is drawing more visitors into the shopping sections during the afternoons. Some fine long-stemmed daffodils have been featured in the window displays of this store, with good results.

Rosaia Bros. arranged one effective display window through the use of yellow daffodils, lavender and orchid-shaded sweet peas and sheet moss, the sheet moss being used on the sides of circular stands shaded by floral parasols of sweet peas and flanked by the daffodils. This shop received considerable local publicity because it was visited by a motion picture star. Further publicity has been secured through the use of several hundred feet of film in one of the national news reels, showing the greenhouses at Thomas and some of the Easter lilies being grown there.

E. G. Benson is cutting some fine sweet peas and reports a considerable increase in the quantity.

Morgan's Flower Shop continues to feature gladiolus bulbs and other seasonable offerings for planting. Orders have exceeded expectations at this store, while some shipping business has also been developed.

Potted cinerarias of unusually fine coloring and large size have been good sellers with the City Flower Shop, while shipping orders on large funeral pieces have been increasing as well.

A heavier cut of carnations is reported by A. B. Matthiesen, and weather conditions have been more favorable to color development.

Seattle florists are planning to send a delegation to the coming tulip festival at Bellingham, which has grown into one of the important civic ventures of the Pacific northwest. It is stated that this year's showing of the blooms will be the largest ever seen.

A surprising increase in funeral work has been a late feature of business at Melby's Flower Shop.

The B. E. Hammond Co. reports a continued demand for local growers' stock for shipping, while the demand for roses is so heavy that good-sized shipments are being brought in daily to meet the demand. Mr. Hammond was out of town last week on business.

The Seattle Fern & Moss Co. notes a further extension of the territory drawing on local sources for its supply of dagger ferns, while other branches of the shipping trade are holding up well. Felix Rosaia has been devoting one entire window to potted tulips and other potted spring offerings. Special selling

A Moderate Priced Power Mower for Medium Sized Lawns

Here is a Power Lawn Mower that will be welcomed by thousands of home owners who have large lawns to care for.

We call it the Ideal "Junior." It is a machine that fulfills a greater need than any power mower ever built. It is surprisingly moderate in price, absolutely dependable, easy to handle, and costs but a few cents per day to operate. It is a simple mower that anyone can run with splendid results.

In general principle, the Ideal Junior is exactly the same as the larger Ideal Power Lawn Mower which is giving universal satisfaction upon thousands of the best-kept lawns in the country. It is smaller and lighter in weight, having a 22-inch cut. It will mow from 3 to 4 acres of grass per day. Just the machine to use when there is too much grass to economically cut with hand mower, yet where the lawn is hardly large enough to warrant the purchase of a larger power mower.

Also used by golf clubs for work on putting greens, and by parks and cemeteries for close cutting, trimming around shrubbery and as an auxiliary unit to the larger power mowers.

The Ideal Power Mower for Large Lawns

For larger lawns the standard Ideal Power Lawn Mower has no equal. It cuts from 5 to 6 acres of grass per day, doing the work of 6 or 7 men. There are thousands of these machines in use on private estates, public parks, golf courses, college grounds, industrial grounds, cemeteries, etc.

For Large Parks and Golf Courses

For large parks and golf courses we build the Ideal Triplex Power Mower which cuts from 25 to 30 acres of grass per day.

Greenhouse Heating

INSTALLING PIPE.

What size of main feed pipe will be required to supply four 4-inch flows with hot water? Will it be more convenient and economical to run the feed pipes directly from the boiler, eliminating the one large main between the boiler and the greenhouses, a distance of about twelve feet? C. R. K.—O.

A good deal depends upon the character of the boiler, as well as on the location of the houses. It often simplifies matters if the flow and return pipes for each house are connected directly with the boiler, but in the present case the best thing will be to start from the boiler with two 5-inch flow pipes and, when the first house is reached, take off a 4-inch feed pipe and continue with a 4-inch flow to the second house.

If only one supply pipe is used, it should be not less than a 6-inch pipe, and a still larger pipe might be desirable, depending on the amount of radiation to be supplied. The suggestion that two 5-inch flows be used is conditioned upon a 4-inch pipe being sufficiently large for each house.

PROVIDING FOR ADDITIONS.

I have two greenhouses, one 9x40 feet and the other 12x45 feet. These houses are four feet high at the eaves and eight feet high at the ridge, making 480 square feet of glass in the roof of the first house, and 630 square feet of glass in the second house. These measurements also include the glass in one gable in each house. The boiler room is located at the other end of the houses. What size of boiler and chimney will be required and how much pipe will it take to heat these houses with hot water to 60 degrees?

It is my intention later, perhaps, to build an additional house, 24x60 feet. Would it be advisable to install a boiler which is large enough to heat this additional house immediately, or would you put in an extra one later?

I wish to place all of the pipes under the benches, as these houses are low. A. B. M.—Pa.

To heat the two houses now in use and an additional house, 24x60 feet, to 60 degrees in zero weather, a boiler rated at about 1,800 square feet of radiation should be installed, for use with soft coal.

While it is well to have two boilers, so that one can be held in reserve except in extremely cold weather, the amount of radiation will hardly warrant it at this time. If a fourth house, with 2,000 square feet of glass, is likely to be constructed later, it would be advisable to install at this time a boiler rated at 1,000 square feet, and when the third house is erected a second boiler rated at 1,600 square feet would be sufficiently large for four houses. If only these houses are to be built, put in at this time a heater rated at 1,800 square feet.

The chimney for such a boiler should be twelve inches square inside and thirty to thirty-six feet high.

To heat the small house to 60 degrees, use two 2½-inch flow pipes and four 2-inch returns. In the house twelve feet wide use two 2½-inch flow pipes and six

The Quickest Water Heater in the World

The Kroeschell Boiler heats quicker, gives more heat and uses less fuel than any other boiler.

The efficiency and economy of Kroeschell Boilers can in no way be better proved than in the following statements of three big men of the greenhouse trade:

Charles Totty

"The Kroeschell Boiler I installed last year usually runs from 10 p. m. to 6 a. m. without attention. I do not have the least trouble to keep temperatures in the coldest weather. The boiler has given entire satisfaction. The Kroeschell is the best boiler we have ever handled."

Frank Oechslin

"I have used Kroeschell Boilers ever since I built my first greenhouse. They have always given me the very best satisfaction and I believe them as good boilers as money can buy."

Chas. McCauley

"In speaking of the Kroeschell Boiler as an economical greenhouse boiler I cannot say too much. Personally I have had the pleasure or misfortune to fire nearly every make of greenhouse boiler on the market and I can safely say the Kroeschell is the best of them all."

2-inch returns. All of the heating pipes may be under the benches, but rather better results could be secured by placing the flow pipes on the side wall plates.

Give all of the pipes, both flows and returns, a slope of about one inch in ten to fifteen feet.

When the house 24x60 feet is constructed, it can be heated by means of three 2 1/2-inch flow pipes and twelve 2-inch returns.

IS SYSTEM ADEQUATE?

I have a heating apparatus comprising one hot water boiler, nine feet long. There are thirty-four 2 1/2-inch tubes and a fire box 4x4 feet. The smoke-stack is thirty-four feet high and has a diameter of twenty inches. There are two houses in the range, one of which is 10x100 feet, and the other 16x100 feet. There are sixteen inches of glass in one side wall of the large house and no glass in the side walls of the small house. One 3-inch main rises to the highest point in the system and then separates and runs into two 2 1/2-inch flows, going through the large house and returning in six 2-inch returns, flowing thence into one 4-inch return main. I have a large amount of 1-inch pipe on hand which I should like to use in making the coils for the small house. The temperature to be maintained is 60 degrees, when the outside temperature is 20 degrees below zero. Coal for night firing and wood for day firing will be used. Can you give me any advice in regard to the arrangement of the piping for the small house? Is the boiler which I have described large enough to meet the requirements? A. G.

The length of the sashbars is not given for the large house, and, as there is no reference to the height of the walls, it is impossible to make the computation. The dimensions of the house, however, are stated as 16x100 feet, and it is twelve feet to the ridge. The sashbars, therefore, must be approximately eleven feet long and the walls about five feet high, with sixteen inches of glass in the west wall.

To heat this house to 60 degrees, when the outside temperature is 20 degrees below zero, 1,000 square feet of radiation will be required. To supply this requirement, three 2½-inch flows and twelve 2-inch returns should be used.

The other house is 10x100 feet, with concrete walls projecting two feet above the surface of the earth, and the length of the sashbars is ten feet. To heat this house will require about 800 square feet of radiation. It is inadvisable to use 1-inch pipe in a house of this length, but the suggestion to use three 2½-inch flow and nine 2-inch return pipes is made.

The boiler is large enough to heat the two houses, but you should use a 4-inch main feed pipe to the 16x100-foot house, or if one of the 2½-inch flow pipes can be connected directly with the boiler, in addition to the 3-inch flow now in use, this will also answer the purpose.

Although it would be advisable to use a 4-inch flow pipe for the 10x100-foot house, a 3-inch flow and return would give fairly good results. It will be helpful if two 4-inch inlets can be provided for the boiler, but if the main returns are 4-inch and 3-inch respectively, they may be joined at the boiler and enter through the present 4-inch opening.

CLEVELAND CLUB DOINGS.

The meeting of the Cleveland, O., Florists' Club, held in the clubroom at the Hollenden hotel, was one of the best held in months and more than seventy attended.

A report on the national show was given by Herman P. Knoble, of the national S. A. F. committee. It was quite interesting and Mr. Knoble was well pleased with the showing made by the Cleveland florists. Lars Anderson, of Rocky River, O., one of the members, came home from the national show with practically all the prizes for hydrangeas. He reports that he could have sold his thousands of plants right at the Indianapolis show. What does this mean to Cleveland growers? It is a cold fact that the Cleveland growers are not strong enough on exhibiting their products. What we need for Cleveland, a city of a million, is one or two good plant shows each year.

At the meeting, the writer talked with several growers. Their general difficulty is that they have the plants and can not get rid of them. One co-operative effort to aid our publicity committee would help this condition much.

Another dance and get-together meeting will be given by our hustling committee. The club turned the funds made at the last dance into a recreation fund. Let us hope that before next season there will be a handsome amount in the hands of this committee.

The membership was increased by ten at this meeting, making a total of eighty-eight since the beginning of President McLaughlin's term. Carl Hagenburger was much missed.

Homer Frey's talk on glazing compounds was indeed interesting. Mr. Frey, who was the speaker of the evening, complimented the Cleveland club, when he said it is one of the liveliest he has ever visited. A. T. F.

Gentlemen:

Find enclosed check covering the last shipment of Pulverized Poultry Manure. We think very well of this fertilizer; getting extra good results wherever used. We have been feeding the rose beds in the greenhouses and like it better than any fertilizer we have ever used.

Yours Respectfully,

W. J. PALMER & SON

By B. S. Myers, Manager.

Growers of Roses, Dahlias, Ferns, Gladioli, Carnations, Sweet Peas and other flowers are loud in their praise of this wonderful fertilizer and of the results obtained by its use.

"Eventually, why not now?"

It has proven superior to all other fertilizers, both under glass and in the field.

The Market.

The approaching Easter-tide was heralded last week by a gradual stiffening in prices all along the line, roses and carnations jumping from 5 cents to 25 cents each at wholesale. As the Holy week approaches, reports do not give any encouragement for a plentiful supply of first quality lilies; A-1 stock promises to be one of the scarcest articles in the local list.

Potted bulbous plants are in evidence everywhere in great quantities. The last days of last week brought almost a perfect avalanche of them, the warm days having drawn the heads up to such a size that the growers were forced to unload at any price. The result has been a low mark, but the public that has thought to anticipate Easter and has taken advantage of the low prices will find themselves flowerless when Easter Sunday comes.

Violets are even scarcer than prime lilies and will bring the best prices that have been paid for violets in this city in many years. There is considerable demand for lily of the valley, especially potted pips, pans with six and eight shoots selling at retail for 75 cents to $2.

Various Notes.

An organization has been perfected, to be known as the Narragansett Gardeners' and Florists' Association, and officers have been elected. Meeting nights have been set and plans are under way for a midsummer flower show in the south county. Meetings will be held in the parish house of the Episcopal church at Narragansett, on the first Tuesday of each month, and all interested in horticulture have been invited to affiliate themselves with the movement. Chester O. Childs, of Peace Dale, has been elected president; Conrad Vernstrom, of Wakefield, is vice-president; James Mackie, of Narragansett, is secretary, and James C. Garrie, of Peace Dale, is treasurer. An executive committee, consisting of Chester O. Childs, Conrad Vernstrom, James D. Nall, John Cirwein and William Matson, has been elected.

Thomas Curley is busy with the preparatory work about the state house grounds, on Capitol Hill.

ASK ANY SOUTHERN GROWER

FUTURE OF ORCHARDING.

Before the war, apple growers in the central west found it fairly profitable to grow apples, spray them thoroughly, and put them on the cars at 50 cents a bushel or $1 per hundred pounds in bulk. Ten to 20 cents per bushel would put this fruit on Chicago or other large markets, so that it could be sold for 60 or 75 cents per bushel and give the grower a fair return. Pre-war freight rates made it cost the northwest grower 50 to 60 cents per bushel to get his apples to these markets, so that the grower of the central west could market his fruit at a profit in competition with the grower of the Pacific coast, while he was getting only freight charges. Figures taken by the United States Department of Agriculture on cost of production items in the northwest, including labor, material, investment, insurance, taxes, etc., showed that it cost about 80 cents per bushel box to produce fruit in that section, which, added to the freight at that time of 50 to 60 cents, made a total cost of putting the fruit on these markets at $1.30 to $1.40 per bushel. Present freight rates make this cost considerably higher. While the cost of production and also freight charges have increased in about the same proportion for the grower of the central west, the difference in cost of production in these sections is wider than it was before the war.

Our 40-acre orchard produced about 75,000 bushels of apples during one 7-year period. And during the life of these trees, which ranged from 25 to 30 years, this orchard produced more than 100,000 bushels of apples, or averaged about 100 bushels per acre annually, from the time the trees were set until they were cut out after a large proportion of them had died. Several crops of this orchard approached $10,000 in value, and each of these crops would have paid for the land on which the trees stood, and left enough extra money to pay for the care of the orchard during those particular years. The net profits, after deducting all expenses, including planting, cultivation, pruning, spraying, harvesting and the cost of several hand sprayers and three power sprayers, all of which were not worn out on this orchard, was about $43,000.

gardenias are now coming in plentifully. The rose crop has been held back for Easter.

The Growers' Coöperative Market is sold out every morning, in spite of the large amount of stock that is daily brought to it.

Enomoto & Co. are specializing in eucalyptus boughs, some with buds and others with pods. Some highly ornamental cyperus, with cones about the size of a hazelnut, are also being handled by this firm. They have received some shipments of mats from Japan.

The United Flower & Supply Co. is making heavy cuttings of outdoor Darwin tulips. The stems are long and the colors fine.

Domoto Bros. made an enormous horseshoe of roses and maidenhair for the opening of the new offices of the Toyo Kisen Kaisha, the transpacific steamship line.

Fred Bertrand has sold his flower shop in the Palace hotel to Miss Delfina Riley. Some seven years ago Miss Riley was with Julius Eppstein and she is well remembered by the trade. One of the new proprietress' first acts was to change the appearance of the attractive store by giving it a novel effect with draperies. Against a heavy, plush background, of a neutral, tan color, Miss Riley arranged masses of ornamental fruit blossoms and other spring flowers. Mr. Bertrand says that he is preparing to branch out, but is not ready to make an announcement. The sale took place April 1.

Brown & Kennedy say that, despite the Lenten season, they have been kept busy by general work.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. are preparing to handle the floral decorations for the banquet to be given Marshal Joffre at the Palace hotel. It will be a big affair and all the decorating will be done with spring flowers.

Podesta & Baldocchi had the decorating work for the luncheon, at the Fairmont hotel, to Mary Garden and the other stars of the Chicago Grand Opera Co. There was one large table, with lavish decorations of spring flowers.

ASTERS

100,000 ASTER SEEDLINGS.

High priced quality seeds were germinated in flats that were previously sterilized with the soil under high pressure of steam. It's a lot of extra hard work and expense, but this is the only way to get healthy plants, and I want you to have plants, to start with, that have a healthy and clean root system. My flats are placed on raised beds of sterilized soil, no weeds or bacteria come in touch with them.

The seedlings are not leggy, sappy nor stunted, just in condition to stand the transplanting or potting and keep right on growing. My list of varieties is complete, if you fail in the early market you may win in the next one. I have no guarantee of success to offer you, but try and find out for yourself the best way to succeed under your own conditions.

Queen of Market, earliest of all, white, pink, lavender.

Carlson's and Invincible, next early, bearing Peony formed flowers, white, pink, lavender.

Pink Enchantress, flowers very double of large size, making it a grand Aster.

Purity, similar to Daybreak, pure white color.

Bail's White, originator's seeds, the sensation of Chicago market in 1921, very full and well centered, ideal for long distance shipping.

Crego's Giant, best late in existence, large flowers borne on good stems, white, pink and lavender.

All labeled and true to name.

75c per 100, not less than 25 of a kind or color; $5.00 per 1000, not less than 50 of a kind or color; 10,000 for $45.00, see Pansy, Salvia, Vegetable

CYCLAMEN SEEDLINGS.

In offering our block of 300,000 TRANSPLANTED CYCLAMEN SEEDLINGS to the trade, we can emphatically recommend them as a superior grade of plants, in as much as we have specialized on CYCLAMEN for years, and are constantly improving our strain and methods of growing.

Through the use of a specially prepared compost, we have produced wonderful root action and a fine foliage, in fact we have never had a finer lot of seedlings of the very best known varieties. We established a new record with our CYCLAMEN plants last fall when we shipped them in full carload lots to the East.

Remember—Our plants have no trace or sign of the mite or any other diseases CYCLAMEN are subject to.

CYCLAMEN SEED.

New crop for July and later delivery.

A No. 1 seed from the best German specialist. One who grows for quality instead of quantity.

This is a No. 1, or largest size seed; not mixed sizes as it comes from the plant; therefore gives practically 100 per cent germination; also gives quicker and stronger seedlings and plants.

THE KIND I BUY TO GROW MYSELF.

Dark blood red, bright red, bright rose (Marienthal), $12.00 per 1000. Light and dark salmon and Snow Queen, at $15.00 per 1000.

Let's have your order now for next season's requirements.

WINFIELD S. KIRCHER.

VERY SPECIAL!

For $12.00 I will send 5000 selected bulbets of the new pure white Gladiolus Lilywhite and include 10 blooming size gratis. Lilywhite is the long desired pure white Gladiolus of vigorous, healthy growth; great multiplying power; straight spikes opening six to eight blooms at a time; an ideal forcer, early as Halley and the best commercial pure white to date.

Awarded first prize by New York, Massachusetts and St. Thomas, Ontario, Canada, Horticultural Societies and American Gladiolus Society.

This variety will be grown eventually by the million and practical florists will get stock at once.

Send for our descriptive list of cut-flower varieties suitable for retail florists; also testimonials from leading growers.
